Letter to Dudley Chase

Philander Chase

The Philander Chase letters were written in the 18th and 19th century and therefore may contain language that we understand today as harmful or offensive. You may encounter paternalist descriptions of Native Americans, racial slurs, or sexism. For more information, see our policy page.

Dear Brother

Nothing has turned up since you went from here worth mentioning. The government have had up front but what they said to him I know not. The judgment concerning the horses being taken, is not brought in as yet. However ^{the} Attorneys will be but little done as the authorities have found some of their ^{favorites} particularly instrumental in the fact. What my dear brother would have been my punishment & judging from the nature of the offence had I been guilty of this crime! I should have popped off the rocks very quick. I have heard from Heber, tho' so indirectly that I cannot rely on the news as truth. That he was in Albany in Yorks State. Mr Hasbell who was in Concord about a week ago, where Mr Cordie informed him that he had heard tho' indirectly that Heber had gone to the afore said place. Our father will be here a week from tomorrow as he has written me, with the Chaise & Attorneys I shall ride home with him; however it is probable that shall be at Mandosits this vacation. I want to see Pierre at his trunk and drink a glass in honest friendship once more ^{with him}. Indeed my peculiar attachment to this generous soul has ever been great - give him my best wishes for his prosperity in his business.

If I do not get to the same warehouse & to Cornish if you can for it is not likely I shall ^{see} you again I know not when - you know why. - Write to me every opportunity & depend on I will answer you punctually - I am by no means happy here since you went away I have felt more disagreeably than ever. However I strive to forget my feelings in my studies.

If you have an opportunity I wish you would write to Harding that your soul would feel ever grateful if you should. It is likely you can send by the post -

Dudley Chase Jr
I am ever your loving brother
Richard Chase
My respects to Mr. M. - Thine
