The Democratic party is now as has been for twenty years, hunting about for something it can profitably pretend to believe in, Having tried its hand at everything that offered, from declaring the Union incapable of self-preservation down to its adoption of the doctrines of soft money and inflation, without success, it is still seeking for an issue which will enable it to ride into power and secure the spoils of office. THE SENATORSHIP.

We have not indulged in any glowng panegyrics over the claim of Secretary Sherman to the Ohio Senatorship because we did not believe such a course necessary, The President-elect, Gen. Garfield, in presenting his name to the Chicago Convention, said all that need be said of Mr. Sherman's abilities, and said it, too, in a masterly manner. The claims then urged in behalf of Mr. Sherman to the nomination of his party for the Presidency of the United States have not diminished because they failed to secure him the prize sought for. That they will have due consideration at the hands of the Republican members of the Ohio Legislature it is but fair to suppose, and that this consideration will result in Mr. Sherman's election to the Senate we have never the whole country are interested in this contest, it contest it can be called, ton, on the Hudson River, was burned and are watching the result with an on Saturday last. A FRENCH INVASION:

Our much praised and never enough lauded state of freedom in this great commonwealth brings many blessings with it, but, unfortunately, a great deal of evil; if only sufficiently perwithal, it finds no insurmountable barrier interposed. Worshipers of the golden calf find it easy enough to effect an entrance within our gates, and garner a rich harvest of gold thereafter. We are a silly people, after all, in many respects, perhaps from very innocence, perhaps from a serene conceit that we are invulnerable in some points-which we are not. We guard our dumb animals in with regulations which are mostly effectual in protecting them from contagion. But when it comes to the guarding of morals, either of our own selves or of our neighbors, in whose welfare we should take an abiding interest, we are sometimes wofully lax and loose. The stage is popularly looked on as to

But let the case be reversed, and the harm their example may do public morals, and, of course, private example, is not to be lightly estimated.

When that queen of song, Jenny Lind, came to America, now nearly a generation since, she was received with such ovations as has never since been granted any public performer, and in every section of the country voice but was the better for it; nor was any one in thought or word the every detail of which was cagerly ought for by a greedy public. Her writers have done more to poison the spring of fiction our great State in the Senate with han all the world besides, and that this demoralizing adjunct? poison has done more work here than has far exceeded all former invasions of our virtues, all the more powerful for being dressed in such an insidious garb. A few weeks ago it was announced that a play was shortly to be presented on the New York stage which should mimic the last hours of our Saviour among men. Public opinion was outraged, and so loudly was that feeling expressed that the daring sacrilege was adandoned. That design, impious as it appears, could not, certainly, have had the same deep, insidious effect in blunting the moral sensibilities of the people as the parading and constant trumpeting of this actress, who, as a woman, instead of presenting a pure example in her life, defiantly and constantly tramples on the finest and purest attributes of Holiday advertising occupies considerable space in this week's issue, but as this thing only occurs once a year, we ope our readers, like ourselves, will bear it with Christian resignation. While some might prefer the usual variety of reading matter, we are sure all will find teacher fails to attend these meetings he omething of interest in what our merchants have to say about the countless good things in their stores suitable for holiday gifts. Don't send abroad for what can be purchased just as cheaply at your own doors. The variety, too, is great enough to satisfy those who are most hard to please.

Last Friday the local freight, C., Mt V. & C. R. R., due in this city from the greater part of them have gone to their East at 8:30 p. m., broke in two when coming down the steep grade this side of the Summit. The engineer, with his engine and a portion of the train, ran some distance before the break was discovered, and he stopped for the balance of his train to catch up, supposing that the train men would hold the rear portion of the train when it came up. It seems, however, that they were unaware of the oreak, and the rear portion went crashing into the stationary half, resulting in he complete demolition of two flat cars, causing a delay of several hours.

> Some 600 years ago there was estabhshed in Europe by the Catholic Church religious society called the Knights of he Red Cross, and its existence has continued uninterruptedly ever since. Someime ago it was determined to organize a oranch of the order in this city, and, acordingly, on Sunday morning last, ather Lane, of the St. Vincent de Paul's Church, administered the obligation and conferred the Knight rank on about fifty candidates, each one of whom was presented with the insignia of the order-the Red Cross badge. The ceremony was quite interesting, made the more so by the history of the society, which was read by the priest.

Some enterprising individual on last Friday, made sad havoc among the canines that roam the public thoroughfares, by distributing poison in small quantities at different points. The result of this freak is the demise of two or three of the thousand-and-one four legged nuisances. If the person who started this "reform" will only carry on the good work. MARIA GREEN PHILO. The deceased was the wife of Mr William Philo, and this community and that of Monroe township, where she for nany years resided, deeply sympathize with her immediate relatives and mourn with them her loss. Mrs. Philo was thirty-two years of age at the time of her demise; the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Green, residents of Monroe township, and for the past fifteen years he kind and loving consort of Mr. Wm. Philo. For the past six months she had been in delicate health, though not conined to the house but a few days prior to her death. Her death was caused by ung troubles, and the end came on last Friday morning. She had been staying with her parents for several weeks, and ner death occurred under their care which was the most watchful and attentive. At the funeral services, on Sunday afternoon, an expression of the esteem with which her memory was held by neighbors and acquaintances far and near, was manifest by the large number of persons present. The Rev. Wm. Thompson, of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, this city, officiated, and the remains were interred in the family burying ground north of the home of her childhood.

PILIZA RENNETT GREER For the past four years the subject o this notice has been afflicted with disease of the lungs and heart, which resulted fatally on last Tuesday morning at halfpast eleven o'clock. Deceased was born in this city on the 15th of July, 1838. and consequently was in the forty-third year of her age. In the year' 1865 she was married to Colonel B. A. F. Greer. Mrs. Greer has been a consistent membe of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in thi city for a number of years, and was much loved by her friends and acquaintances. She has been a patient sufferer for the past three or four years. Though her last ness was but ten days in duration, she suffered intensely, but was perfectly conscious to the last moment. The funeral services will be held at the residence of her father, Mr. C. L. Bennett, on Gay street, at 2 o'clock this after County Superintendents.

Representative Koons introduced oill last winter in the Legislature, the main features of which related to the anpointment of County School Superintendents. Hon. D. T. DeWolf, the new State School Commissioner, objects to many provisions in Mr. Koons' bill, because, he thinks, if enacted into a law, they would seriously embarrass its opera-

The popular lecture course inaugurated by the M. E. Church of Gambier bids fair to be a pronounced success. There is no more rational way in which to epond an evening, and at the came time contribute to a worthy cause. The first lecture was by Rev. C. H. Payne, D.D., LL. D., President of Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio, on the 3d nstant, and the second was on last Tuesday evening, by N. S. Albright, M. A., B. D., of Wellington, O. Both occasions drew large audiences. Dr. Payne's subect was "Shams," and it is needless to say that the lecture was intensely interesting. He took occasion to express his opinion of one of the prevailing shams in the following forcible language:

There are some shams which excite your laughter, others that awaken pity nd others still that call for honest indig nation. When society amuses itself with comedy and simply plays the fool, one can afford to laugh; but when comedy changes to tragedy in the sad work corrupting your sons and daughters, it is time for something other than laughter.
When a shameless woman, fresh from the tinselled abominations of Parisian society, conspicuous for her disregard of the laws of moral purity, without a sign of penitence or a word of apology, but rather with brazened face effrontery, glorying in her shame, stalks upon the American stage, and with loud heralding and spectacular display, btds for the public ge, it is not a pard ness or folly, but a grave offense against society, by word or act, to award the be-gulled and bedizened sinner the slightest favorable recognition. Such recognition is a direct and fearfully fatal blow at the very foundations of chastity and virtue, the sanctity of the marriage rela-tion and the safety of our cherished homes—a blow conspicuously struck before the gaze of the whole nation.

How any man who loves virtue; how any woman who prizes purity and seeks the honor of her sex can thus become actress and the artist and not her moral haracter to which society thus pays its llegiance. As though it were possible separate the artist from the woman, e captivating actress on the stage from the corrupting courtesan behind the scenes. To press the charm of talent and beauty as against character and purity is to proclaim with trumpet voice throughsut the land that gilded sin is harmless, and that pleasing attainments will atone for the most loathsome moral rottenness. It is not pleasant thus publicly to al-lude to a subject which we would fain anish from our thoughts; but the safety of our children, and of the youth of ou entire country, demands honest and plain spoken words. It is not assuring to read n the daily press that men and women phose social position would lead us to ook to them for examplary conduct, are paying homage to this gilded impersona-tion of impurity; that New York is lavishly casting its honors and its abundant gold at her feet, and that Puritanic Boston is making the most elaborate

A Pleasant Occasion.

One of those pleasant events that go o make life happy and endear friends to each other, occurred at the residence of Mr. Ezra Hook, corner of Gav and Gambier streets, on Friday last, the occasion being the thirty-seventh anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Hook, and the celebration of the fifty-seventh birthday of Mrs. Hook. As early as eleven o'clock, about forty friends and relatives had arrived, each bringing some beautiful, useful, and ornamental present. After the presents were tastefully ar ranged upon the center-table, an escort was sent for the bride and groom, and Major Horace Smith, in a very neat manner, delivered the goods and best wishes of the assembled guests. After hearty congratulations, the company were marshaled to the spacious dining room, where they immediately surroun-ded a table groaning beneath its load of delicacies, prepared by that princess of caterers, Mrs. John Sliger, of Hunt's Station. The attack on the good things seemed to be general, and the supply in exhaustible, yet the friends lingered around that festive board and wished hat thirty-seven more happy occasions would summon them to meet again.

Then have your chickens (two, weighing about seven pounds) neatly cut up, and stew for two hours steadily, but not letting it boil too fast. If the chickens are tough, give them an hour's longer cooking. Then take the pieces of chicken out on the dish it is to be served on, and keep it warm; strain the sauce, and put it back into the stewpan; rub a teaspoonful of flour and butter smoothly together, add the yolks of two eggs and a tablespoonful of finely-chopped parsely; stir gradually in a cup of boiling water, and pour the whole into the chicken sauce. Let it boil for five minutes, stirring continually to keep it from curdling; pour over the and early summer time. A pretty widow of twenty was amenting the loss of her husband, to whom she had been wedded less than a year. "To think," she said. that he would have been glad to live long enough to see me wearing mourning for him. Why, do you know I had just got used to the kind of breakfasts he liked, and I shall have to learn them all over again with my next husband."

Everybody has heard of the jolly Dutchman who, when the steamboat was likely to sink, succeeded, after much trouble, in finding a life preserver large enough to fit him. While he was trying his best to blow it up, a young fellow standing by said: "You can't fill that with wind, it leaks. Don't you hear it sis?" "Ish dot so?" he replied. "Vell, I dinks den, I better keep de vind in myself."

The San Francisco Wasp, having been driven desperate by voluntary poetical contributors, sounds this note of warning: "We don't know exactly how newspapers were conducted at that distant period, but during some recent excavations in Assyria, a poem on the silver moon was dug up. It was engraved on a tile, and close beside it were lying a large battered club and part of a human skull. You may draw your own conclusions."

A scene in a picture gallery shows a "model" in a man who serves as a model for an artist, and, in the artist's absence, explains the picture to a lady visitor. "From whom did Mr. McGlip paint that head?" "From yours obediently, Madam: I sit for the 'eds of all 'is 'oly men." "He must find you a very useful person." "Yes, Madam. I order his frames, stretch his canvas, wash his brushes, set his palette and mix his colors. All he's got to do is to shove 'em on."

"Mr. O'Rafferty," said the Recorder, "why did you strike Mr. Murphy?" "Because Murphy would not give me a civil answer to a civil question, yer Honor." "What was the civil question you asked him?" "I asked him, as polite as you please, Murphy, ain't your own brother the biggest thafe on Galveston Island, excepting yourself and your uncle, who is absent at the Penitentiary in Huntsville?"
