The Warsaw and Baltic railroad is reported to have been torn up for a mile and a half, but the damage is said to have been repaired. There are rumors of trouble in Finland and disaffection of the troops. It is reported also that Father Gopon has been arrested.

peror. Sunday was a day of terror in St. Petersburg. "Strikers, goaded to desperation by a day of violence, fury and bloodshed, are in a state of open insurrection against the government. A condition almost bordering on civil war exists in the terror-stricken Russian capital. The city is under martial law, with Prince Vassilchikoff as commander of over 50,000 of the emperor's mander of over 50,000 of the emperor's barricades were carried by the troops. The figures of the total number killed or wounded here, at the Mos cow gate, at various bridges and islands and at the winter palace, vary. The best estimate is 500, although there are exaggerated figures placing the number as high as 5,000. Many men were accompanied by their wives and children, and in the confusion. which left no time for discrimination. the latter shared the fate of the men The troops, with the excepion of a single regiment, which is reported to have thrown down its arms, remained loyal and obeyed orders. But the blood which crimsoned the snaw has fired the brains and passions of the strikers and turned women as well as men into wild beasts, and the cry of the infuriated populace is for vengeance. The military authorities had a firm grip on every artery in the city. At daybreak guards, regiments, cavalry and infantry held every bridge across the frozen Neva, the network of canals which interlaces the city and the gates leading from the industrial section, while in the palace square, at the storm center, were massed dragoon regiments, infantry and Cossacks of the guards. Barred from the bridges and gates, men, women and children crossed the frozen river and the canals on the ice by twos and threes, hurrying to the palace square, where they were sure the emperor would be present to hear them. But the street approaches to the square were cleared by volleys and Cossack charges. Men and women, infuriated to frenzy by the loss of loved ones, cursed the soldiers while they retreated. Men harangued the crowds, telling them that the emperor had foiled them and that the time had come to act. Men began to build barricades in the Nevsky prospect and at other points, using any material that came to hand, and even chopping down telegraph poles. Fighting meantime continued at various places, soldiers volleying and charging the mob. The whole city was in a state of panic. Women were running through the streets seeking lost members of their families. Several ed by a crowd in a neighboring street, tric Bitters, which saved his life. At

On the Kaminostov island all the lights were extinguished. Every officer wearing the uniform of the emperor who was found alone was mobbed. A general was killed on the Nicholas bridge and a dozen officers graph, telephone and electric light were seized, stripped of their epaulets and deprived of their swords.

Hundreds Shot Down. There was a very dramatic scene at the Narva gate when Father Gopon, in golden vestments, bearing aloft an ikon and flanked by two clergymen carrying religious banners, approached at the head of a procession of 8,000 workmen. Troops were drawn up across the entrance. Several times an officer called upon the procession to stop, but Father Gopon did not falter. Then an order was given to fire, first with blank cartridges. The volleys rang out, but the line still did not waver. Then, with seeming reluctance, an officer gave the command to load with ball, and the next volley was followed by shrieks and cries of the wounded. As the Cossacks followed up the volley with a charge the workmen fled before them, leaving about 100 dead or wounded. It was evident that the soldiers deliberately spared Father Gopon. One of the clergymen by his side was wounded, but he escapeduntouched and hid behind a wall until the Cossacks passed, and he was soon spirited away by workmen. It is rumored that M. Witte will be appointed dictator, but the report is

The crowd there persisted in refusing to move on, clamoring for the emperor, and continually hurling abuse at the troops, but attempted no violence. Two companies of the Proebranjensky guards, of which Emperor Nicholas himself was formerly colonel. which had been standing at ease in front of the palace, formed and marched at double quick towards the fatal corner. Events followed with awful swiftness. The commanding officer shouted "Disperse! Disperse! Disperse!" Many in the crowd turned to flee, but it was too late. The young man was put under the influence of ether by the surgeons Saturday night and the broken and splintered bones in the leg and arm were set, his broken riba were bandaged and a bad scalp wound was dressed. After the operation the patient seemed to be resting well, but was in a semi-conscious state. Later he became entirely unconscious and remained so until death, Mrs. Richard Croker, mother of the unfortunate young man, and his sister are here.

Conditions In European Turkey. Washington, Jan. 23.-The state department has made public portions of an important report recently made by Director Thomas E. Norton, American consul at Harput, Turkey, on the results of a tour of investigation made by him under instructions from the department through the vilayets of Bitlis and Van, which were the scenes during several months last summer of repeated attacks upon and massacres of Christians by the Kurds and other elements of the population. The principal object of the visit was for the better protection of American interests there, and the timely arrival of Dr. Norton, it is stated, contributed to a peaceful termination. No Americans were known to have been injured. Dr. Norton says Mush is practically an armored camp, where Armenians are in constant terror. He estimates that in the Sassun district 5,000 lives were lost in last summer's massacres, including 2,771 children.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 23. - United States Customs Collector Leach has found valuable ivories and laces belonging to Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick in the Chadwick home on Euclid avenue. Mr. Leach is going to learn whether duty has been paid on the articles, all of which have been imported. The goods were taken to the office of Receiver Loeser and examined by an expert. They are said to be worth at least $10,000, most of that sum being spent on a number of fine and expensive articles of lace, such as curtains, collarettes, handkerchiefs, etc. Some of the handkerchiefs are valued at $100 each. If it is shown that the duty has not been paid on the goods they will be sold to recover duty and the proceeds will become a part of the fund which Mr. Loeser is accumulating for the benefit of the Chadwick creditors.

Another interesting phase of the Chadwick developments is that Receiver Nathan Loeser will not permit Mrs. Chadwick to go to her Euclid avenue home until her right to do so has been passed on by Federal Judgo Wing. This question will not come up, however, until Mrs. Chadwick is released on bail. Should she be allowed to go home she will not be per-

Harry Borden Has A Finger Nearly Bitten Off In The Encounter With Schlappacasse

A fight of considerable size occured Saturday evening about 11 o'clock on South Main street between Gambier and Front streets. The participants in the encounter were Harry Borden and Ernest Schiappacasse. As a result of the encounter Schiappacasse has a badly scarred face caused by scratches and Borden has the little finger of his right hand nearly bitten off.

The two were finally separated and Borden was taken to the office of Dr. C. K. Conard where his injuries were cared for. Schiappacasse's face is scratched in many places and there is a small scratch on the left eye ball. No arrests have yet been made.

The fight grew out of a controversy between the two earlier in the evening at Schiappacasse's store.

An Incident That Gives an Insight

Into Russian Character. A few years ago I was taking a country walk in Kovno. The road lay through a dense forest, and the day was oppressively hot. I arrived at last at a crossroad and sat down under the shade of the trees to rest. A signpost pointed its two arms down the converging roads. On one of them was inscribed "14 versts to Janova," on the other "17 versts to Shadowa." Presently the creaking of wheels and the slow "clop, clop" of a horse's hoofs on the road behind roused me. A cart piled high with tinware was coming down the road, with the driver perched on the top of the load.

"Good day, brother," I called out as the cart, with its sorry horse, came abreast of me. The man returned my salute, and the horse, glad of any excuse to rest his weary legs, came to a standstill in the middle of the road.

"Which way are you going?" I asked. "To Janova. There is a market there tomorrow." "But there is also a market in Sha-dowa," I answered, "and it is a more important place than Janova." "So it is, so it is," the driver replied, with perfect indifference. "What have you for sale?"

"Plenty of good tinware, as you can see, brother. I have worked for six weeks to make this cartload."

"Well, good luck to you and your tinware," I said, pulling and eating the berries within reach. "Will you take it

But the cowbird never makes any such poor job as that. She always selects the nest of some smaller bird-in regions where warbiers are plentiful the home of one of these little singers is most frequently chosen-and there as many eggs as she thinks the owner of the nest will submit to are laid. Sometimes the warbler goes right on incubating the intruder, but now and then the two old birds get together and dump the egg out on the ground. Nests have been found in which the warblers put a mud floor over the first nest and built another one on top of it, leaving their own eggs to spoil because they knew no other way to rid themselves of the cowbird. If the cowbird comes back by the repaired nest she will put another egg in it, and generally this egg is hatched and raised by the foster pair on whom it has been forced.

It requires about ten or eleven days for the young cowbird to break the shell, while most other birds of its size are two or three days longer, and thus he has a good start on the other nestlings in point of growth. When hatched the cowbird is larger than the sparrow or the warbler and consequently gradually crowds them into that should belong to them. As they grow weaker from this he grows stronger, and it is not long until he tips them out of the nest and is sole mas-What It Cost One Woman In Peace ter of the two old birds, who work Mary Makepeace sat down in her fa- tite. Likea Wooden Ships.

Admiral Farragut was a "very old fashioned sailor, with a strong prejudice in favor of wooden ships," says Captain F. S. Hill in his "Twenty Years at Sea." The admiral had gained his victories in such ships and declared himself "too old a dog to learn new tricks." In the Mobile fights his flagship was the wooden ship Hartford, though he was urged to take the new ironclad Tecumsch. It was a noteworthy coincidence that the Tecumseh was the only vessel lost in the battle. She was sunk by a torpedo and wert down with her captain and more than a hundred of her crew.

During luncheon the subject of widows arose, and on this interesting topic many original ideas were expressed. One of the company said:

"Some widows are to be pitied; others, again, are to be felicitated. My father used to describe a widow of the latter sort. She lived in Maryland and kept a little village store. Her husband was a worthless fellow. He never worked, and he drank a great deal, A worthless fellow, I repeat, but nevertheless when he died suddenly many persons made calls of sympathy and condolence on the widow. My father did not call, but one day, stopping at the store to buy some trifle or other, he thought it was no more than right to say in a feeling tone:

'You must miss your husband a great deal, madam?

'Well, sir,' said the widow, 'it does seem strange to come into the shop and find something in the till."

Quieting a "Green" Horse. The sight of a big draft horse with its head entirely wrapped in a rubber coat attracted the attention of hundreds of persons in the neighborhood of Twelfth and Market streets a few days ago. Many stopped in wonder, and not a few inquired from the driver the reason for this unusual proceeding.

He was an obliging young fellow and was industriously hauling up ashes from a cellar beneath the pavement and dumping them into the wagon to which the horse with the coat on its head and a meek looking gray were hitched.

"Well, you see," said the driver, "this is the first day in the city for that young horse. He is just in from the west, and the strange sights and sounds make him very nervous. When I stopped here he was pulling and hauling, so I just put my coat over his head. Now he is afraid to start either way."

It seemed to be a good idea, for the powerful animal, although trembling and ill at ease, stood still and gave the driver no trouble whatever, and the latter did not even hitch his team.

It was an illustration of how much good the exercise of a little judgment and forethought will do,-Philadelphia

What the Fingers Tell.

Pointed fingers are said to indicate a love of luxury, combined in many cases with a tendency to idleness. Here may be seen the influence of heredity. Ancestors of the past in easy circumstances had no need to work. They had hard places smoothed for them, and servants did the laborious tasks. So their skin remained fine and their muscles unstretched and their finger tips in fair shape. They bequeathed the sign of ease, rest, affluence, to their posterity. Tramps of the genius "Weary Willie" often have this sign of pointed fingers. Money did not descend with the luxurious instinct. Workers bequeathed square, flat tips to posterity and with them stores of energy. Square fingers on a well proportioned hand show much ability to reason and to plan and to carry out plans. The owner of the pointed fingers may reason equally well, but is likely to lack executive ability.

The Power of Eloquence.

Speaking about church revivals and the inspired orators that move people to tears and repentence with their eloquence, a lawyer said: "I once listened to a passionate address on charity that one of these inspired orators made, and at the address' end an old lady with whom I was slightly acquainted turned and borrowed $5 from me to put in the poor collection.
