BROOKLYN CORRESPONDENCE.

Interesting Letter from a Naval Officer—Various Impressions and Observations.

U. S. RECEIVING SHIP "COLORADO," NAVY YARD, N. Y., Oct. 17, '81.

EDITOR OF THE BANNER—Brooklyn,
"the city of churches," the third city in the United States in respect to population, contains the largest, the finest and the most important naval station in the United States. This Navy Yard is built around Wallabout Bay, which is a portion of East River, the great aquatic artery between New York and Brooklyn. It is reached from Fulton Ferry by Sands street horse-cars. It is the largest, finest, and best equipped, because it is the great life-centre of the United States. It is the most active because it is the principle recruiting station, and contains the great Naval store houses from which other stations are supplied. The grounds, enclosed by huge walls, embrace a total area of one hundred and forty-four acres, with more than a mile of splendid wharves. Here may be seen the large store houses, many machine shops, foundries, work-houses, etc., of different kinds. Down to the very waters edge stand two massive ship-houses.
The yard is regularly laid out into streets and avenues, well paved and shaded, and as every one must be continually kept.

A visitor must be impressed with the order and busy appearance of the little town that he finds here, for more than two thousand men are employed here almost constantly. He will also find very many things to interest him, one of which is the immense dry-dock, which is one of the most remarkable structures of the kind in the world. It is built of granite and the main chamber is two hundred and eighty-six feet long by thirty-five feet wide at the bottom, and three hundred and seven feet long by ninety-eight feet wide at the top, with a depth of thirty-six feet; with this are connected steam pumps which empty it of water in four and a half hours. The United States Navy Yard, founded by officers of the Navy in 1833, is situated here. It contains a fine library, a large collection of curiosities collected from different parts of the world. In it you can see things peculiar in the domestic and religious life of nearly all the races known. It is intensely interesting to see so many curiosities, no two of which are alike, brought so closely together. Some are so unique, so strange, that the beholder can find truly wonderful and ask: "To what race of mankind does it belong?"

The collections, geological, mineralogical, zoological and morphological, are valuable not alone for being complete, but in giving the student of nature a vast field for study and enlightenment.

The recruiting work here is not a small thing. More than two hundred men have been examined on board this ship during the past ninety days. With the great number of immigrants that reach our shores a representative of most foreign nations is to be found among them, and some of them are sea-going men find their way to the recruiting bureau, hoping to secure steady employment and fair pay, such as the Navy offers. Out of one-third the number examined, your correspondent found not less than twenty different languages speaking men; so one will instantaneously see that our American Navy contains many foreign men. Not every man is admitted however; about sixty per cent.
are rejected, because of physical defects.

The resources of an inventive mind will last but a short time in trying to communicate with such odd specimens, and a perplexed examiner is left to guess what he wishes to ascertain.

The Yorktown celebration is the all absorbing topic in Naval circles. Week before last the French guests came to New York, and last week the Germans came and had the freedom of the city. In both cases the reception was formal. After the national honors were paid, the visiters expressed themselves in flattering terms of New York and the courtesies and generous reception they received.

Brooklyn is a part of New York, yet it is so very different. Instantly the stranger entering from the latter he is impressed with the provinciality and serenity of the place; contrasting so vividly with the feverish energy which makes every pulse of life just across East river throb so fiercely. In many respects it reminds one of Philadelphia in this quiet, peaceful feeling which is diffused through all its associations.

The East River bridge, one of the finest specimens of bridge engineering in the world, will be the great connection between the two cities when completed. Besides the already great number of ferries, and the principle one is Fulton, the river seems ever alive with ferry boats, that carry annually, it is estimated, little less than eighty million people! Every one knows of this bridge whether they have ever visited New York or not. It will not be very long ere it will be completed. Foreign people on first seeing it believe it the ruins of some old massive structure. It is truly amusing to know some of the conceptions of which the newly-arrived foreigner is capable. This bridge when completed, if a success, will be a delightful convenience, because of the elevated railroad connection. More anon.

I know Hop Bitters will bear recommendation honestly. All who use them confer upon them the highest encomiums, and give them credit for making cures—all the proprietors claim for them. I have kept them since they were first offered to the public. They took high rank from the first, and maintained it, and are more valued than all others combined. So long as they keep up their high reputation for purity and usefulness, I shall continue to recommend them—something I have never before done with any other patent medicine. J. J. BARCOCK, M. D.,

A POLICEMAN'S MISTAKE.

It was a dull rainy day, toward the end of August—one of those days when earth and sky alike are gray and dreary, and the raindrops pattering against the window sound like human sobbing. The clock that hung against the wall pointed to the hour of 3 in the afternoon, and I was sitting by myself in our little inner office, looking out at the expanse of dull, gray wall that formed my only prospect from the not over-clean window, and thinking. I had read every square inch of type in the newspapers; I had made out all the necessary papers and documents, and now, with literally "nothing to do," I was wondering about Kitty Elton, and musing how long it would be before I should be able to marry her.

Dear little Kitty! She was as sweet and as patient as it was in the nature of a woman to be, but I knew it was a hard life for her in that overcrowded milliner's work-room, day after day and month after month, and I longed to set her free from the monotonous captivity. She was a pretty, blue-eyed girl of 20, with a dimple in her chin and the sweetest roses on her cheek that ever inspired the pen of a poet.
I was no poet, yet I think I understood and appreciated all her womanly grace and delicate beauty as fully as if my heart's thoughts could shape themselves into verse. And it was of them I was thinking when the door opened and Mr.
Clenner came in.

Mr. Clenner was our "chief"—a dark, silent little man with a stern, brief and clouded gray eyes, which appeared almost expressionless when they were turned full upon you, and yet which seemed to see everything at a glance. He sat down beside me.

"Well, I have something for you to do,"

"What is it, sir?"

"Nothing which will bring you both credit and friends, if you manage it skillfully. I had intended to go myself, but circumstances have intervened, and I shall send you instead."

He then handed me a pair of advocates, and replaced the envelope, he told me the special business on which I was to be sent. There had been, it seems, a series of very heavy forgeries, lately committed, with a boldness and audacity which seemed to set the authorities at defiance. For some time he had been in doubt as to the exact perpetrator of the crime, but after a thorough investigation and careful either and either, he had detected the hidden spring—one Perley Mattoon—who had skillfully eluded all pursuit, and was now somewhere hiding in the northeastern portion of the State. His whereabouts had been ascertained as nearly as possible, and it was for me to go quietly and apprehend him, before he should become aware of our knowledge of all his movements.

I had listened to all the various details of our plans as they were sketched out by Mr. Clenner. The reward that had been privately ordered was high—my heart beated as I reflected how much nearer it would bring me to Kitty Elton, nor did the enterprise seem particularly difficult to accomplish.

"Do you think you can do it?" Mr.
Clenner asked, after the whole thing had been laid before me.

"Yes, sir. When shall I start?"

"Now—within half an hour."

"Can you direct me to Mr. Clenner, if I could think of no sufficient reason except one, which I did not care to communicate to my superior—the longing wish to see Kitty once more before I started."

"Just as you direct me, Mr. Clenner, of course," I said, rising. If I take the 4 o'clock express I shall be there by daylight to-morrow morning."

"Yes, and that is altogether the best plan. He will not remain long in any one place just at present, depend upon it and what you have to do must be done at once."

All through that long, night journey I mused to myself upon the task that lay before me. The house to which I was directed was in the midst of woods, about a half a mile beyond the village of Drown-ville. I was directed to Mr. Mattoon, the mother of the audacious forger. If help was needed I was fully authorized to call for it upon the constabulary authorities of Drownville, but I expected to need none.

The rosy dawn was just flushing the eastern sky when I alighted, stiff, weary and jaded, from the train at the little way-station of Drownville.

"Can you direct me to Mrs. Mattoon's place?" I asked of the sleepy station-master, who was yawning behind the little aperture of the ticket office.

"Mattoon—Mrs. Mattoon; I don't know her but I can tell you where she lives. Just you follow the main street of the village about half a mile, and you'll come to a patch of woods. Go through them a little further on, and you'll see a little yellow house, just the last place in the world where you would expect to see a house. That's where Mrs. Mattoon lives."

I thanked my informant, and set out on a brisk walk, carrying my traveling bag.
It was quite a distance ere I emerged from the suburbs of the "main street" into a quiet and somewhat lonely road, rather dark and gloomy, with the bare, and the "patch of woods," with the bare, and the "little yellow house"—a cream-colored cottage, literally overgrown with honeysuckles—rewarded my search, and as I looked at it at the door a clock somewhere inside struck ten.

A decent-looking, elderly woman in widow's weeds came to the door.

"Is Mr. Mattoon in?" Mr. Perley."

"No," she answered quickly, with an amazed, rather a confused look. I did not believe her, and asked quietly:

of his friends reasoned that if the earth would receive electricity from the buried end of a lightning rod it would in the same manner draw out the charge with which they supposed him to be filled. Therefore they dug a hole and covered him up to the chin. He died in that position.

has kept it up uninterruptedly ever since. He has been a member of the Legislature of Maine and Speaker of its House, a member of Congress, Governor of Maine, Senator of the United States, collector of the port of Boston, Vice President of the United States, and is now an ardent and wary diplomat.

Mr. Shober (Dem.) has been re-elected Chief Clerk of the Senate, without opposition. This lets Gorham out.

—Fred S. Crowell, the well-known photographer appears this week with a large display advertisement. Read it carefully.
—The Dresden branch of the C. & O. R. R. will be built as soon as the late sale of the road is fully confirmed by the courts.

—Parents, see that your children attend school regularly. A pupil is rarely able to make up for the loss occasioned by a day's absence from school.
—A subscriber writes to us inquiring the best method to rid a bed of bed-bugs. The best way we know of is to burn the bed and shoot the bugs as they come out.
—The funeral of Edward Hunt on Friday last was largely attended, the remains being escorted to the cemetery by the Knights of the Red Cross and the Cornet Band.

—Be careful whose autograph album you put your name in. An Indiana farmer wrote his name in an album, and in a few days a note turned up against him as a result.
—All tools going out of use for the season should be put away in a whole and bright condition. Teach the boys the habit of cleaning shovels, hoes and cultivator teeth.

—Mrs. John Eichelberger, of Mansfield, underwent a critical surgical operation last week, when an ovarian tumor, weighing twenty-five pounds, was successfully removed. Mrs. E. suffered a relapse, however, and died on Tuesday of this week. Her funeral takes place to-day.

—In the ruins of a burned barn at Geneva recently were found the remains of an unknown tramp. At least they thought he was a tramp until they found that he was an editor taking his summer vacation.
—This remarkable season has not yet ceased the disclosure of unusual phenomena. Fruit trees, in many instances, are blooming a second time, and other trees which had lost their foliage from the drouth, are putting out new.

—A telephone line has been established between the depot at Gambier and the store of Mr. R. S. Doolittle in the village, which is a great accommodation to the people on "College Hill."
—A Kenyon College student, in rendering to his father an account of his term expenses, inserted: "To charity, $30." His father wrote back: "I fear charity covers a multitude of sins."

—The union prayer meeting at the Presbyterian Church last Sunday afternoon was largely attended, and great interest manifested. Over $30 was raised for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A.
—Mr. Wm. Green, a well known farmer and dealer in fancy cattle, died at his residence in Monroe township, last Saturday and was buried on Sunday in the family burial ground on his place.

—The B. & O. railroad are enjoying a freight blockade at Newark. It is said that every side track between Newark and Chicago Junction is crowded with freight, and the company haven't the power to move it.

—Frederick Linger, stand up: Knowing that Coroner Carey offered to sell your body to a medical college for $10 and expenses, don't your miserable old bones rattle in the coffin, and your teeth chatter at his mendacity?
—The Vance Cadets have received a letter from Governor Foster, through the Adjutant General, complimenting them for the efficient services rendered during the funeral obsequies of President Garfield at Cleveland.

—The Adelaide Elliott Combination played good business at Kirk Opera House on Thursday and Friday nights last. Miss Elliott possesses a fair amount of talent, but the support in many respects is lacking in this essential quality.
—Coroner Carey also wrote a "keerd" and sent it to the Enquirer. It didn't appear, however, as that "great moral engine" reposed confidence in its correspondent at this point, and knew he had the avaricious Coroner "dead to rights."

—I borrow this paper every week, and frequently read it through before my neighbor, who pays for it, has a chance to see it. I won't subscribe for the paper, but I have no objection to discommoding my neighbor and cheat the editor out of $2.
—Joshua Payne, of Pleasant township, who lost a $50 coat last week, recovered it on Monday from James Buxton, of Brandon, a BANNER subscriber, who read the advertisement. The coat had followed Mr. Buxton from Mt. Vernon to his home.

—Out in Monroetownship they elected a Justice of the Peace this year, and this in face of the fact that the time of the present incumbent, Allison Adams, does not expire for one year. The term of a Justice of the Peace is three years, and not two, as many erroneously suppose.
—Perplexing mathematical problems are the popular amusement. For instance: How long would it take to empty a tank containing a cubic mile of water if drawn off at the rate of a cubic yard per second? Guess at it, and then figure the solution. You will be astonished.

—A young fellow named Will Landerbaugh, created a sensation on the streets Monday by displaying a bottle of laudanum and threatening suicide, because he had had some misunderstanding with his wife. He was accosted by his "better half," who persuaded him from his rash intentions.
—At an early hour Saturday morning two freight trains on the B. & O. railroad, collided at a point near Independence. The trainmen saved themselves by jumping. About a dozen cars were badly wrecked and both engines were considerably damaged. Mistaken orders caused the accident.

—Coroner Carey carried his card of countenousness to the Republican last week. The contribution was carefully considered, and the consummate cussedness curtailed, causing chagrin to the constructionist. Consequently the cold corpse consigned to the College without (7) compensation cannot be reclaimed. Catch?
—We regret to learn that Doctress Jane Payne is seriously troubled with an aggravated cancer of the breast, and that her friends are entertained for her recovery.

—Miss Payne made a trip to London over a year ago, where she underwent an operation, which it was thought would permanently relieve the trouble, but it has returned in a more virulent form.
—A Mt. Vernon school-girl who was requested to write a quotation from Shakespeare on the blackboard inscribed this: "A fellow, feeling, makes us wondrous kind." When the teacher corrected the punctuation to accord with the text, the girl flounced into her seat with the spiteful remark that "if the teacher wasn't an old maid she could see that the correction spoiled the sense of it."

—Saturday last the John Cooper Mfg. Co., of this city, received information from the Light House Board, in session at Charleston, S. C., that their company had been awarded the contract of erecting eleven new iron light-houses for the coast and Savannah river harbor. Their principal competition was from Eastern manufacturers, but we are glad to know the Cooper Co. took the entire "cake."

—We again caution our readers to be careful in putting up stores, and every one should see that all rubbish and trash has been removed from around or near the pipes and chimneys. The majority of fires are caused by heat from the stove-pipes firing combustible material, too near the stove. A little care observed in this direction, and we will have less fires. Zinc should be placed under each stove.

—Anxiety About the Crops.
Owing to the unusual warm weather and frequent rains during the past two weeks, nature has taken a fresh start, and wheat planted during September has prematurely advanced and attained a rank growth, greatly to the disappointment and consternation of our farmers. In many instances the entire planting will be re-plowed and sowed over, it having been found that the roots had been destroyed by the Hessian fly, or rotted off by the soggy condition of the soil. The clover crop, which gave fair promise near the close of the season, has turned out to be almost an entire failure. This condition of affairs has caused a gloom among the tillers of the soil in this county.

HOUSEHOLDERS.

East Lynne—Miss Ada Gray, supported by Mr. Chas. A. Watkins and Fifth Avenue Company, will give one of their superb entertainments at the above place on Tuesday next, Nov. 1st. Miss Gray will appear in the dual character of "Lady Isabel" and "Mme. Vinc" in a "revised edition" of East Lynne. The St. Louis Globe says:

"An audience full of sympathy with the actress greeted Miss Gray in her dual role of Lady Isabel and Mme. Vinc in 'East Lynne.' The story is an old one, deftly told in the novel, and admirably constructed by the dramatist for stage representation; power, pathos and feeling chase each other through the play, ending with a fitting climax. Miss Gray last evening drew tears from many eyes by her faithful portrayal of the character."

The Two Orphans—Next Wednesday evening, Nov. 24, we are to have Miss Pauline Markham, supported by a select New York company. She is an actress of national reputation, and is said to excel Kate Claxton in the role of 'Louise.' The following notice is from the New Haven Patriot:

"Miss Pauline Markham played Louie in 'The Two Orphans' in Peck's Grand Opera House last evening very successfully. She had the support of a good company, and her performance was meritorious. The support includes many very accomplished people and the play was given with smoothness. There will be repetitions this afternoon and evening, and the company will be found one of the best of 'Two Orphans' companies ever organized."

—Miss Litta will appear in Traveller at Kirk Opera House on Friday, November 4th. This announcement should fill the house to overflowing. Litta has established herself as a favorite in Mt. Vernon and now that her friends have an opportunity of hearing her in opera, we know they will not let the opportunity pass by. She is supported by the popular tenor Mr. Harry Cleveland.

Patsy Sullivan in Hoe for Stealing a Watch.
Monday afternoon last, Mr. D. B. Kirk, of this city, was waiting at the Mansfield depot to take a train on the B. & O. Railroad, that was reported late. Mr. Kirk endeavored to find entertainment in reading a book, but becoming drowsy fell asleep. On awakening he found that his gold watch was missing. He reported the matter to the police authorities there, but they were unable to get a clue, and Mr. Kirk returned home with his regret.

Patsy Sullivan, a well known corker, who was reared in Mt. Vernon, but who has been operating the confidence game at Columbus and other points, put in appearance here Tuesday, accompanied by the notorious "Akron Kid." They were at once spotted by Marshal Magers, who kept an eye on their movements. Mr. Kirk reported his loss to the Marshal, and the latter officer soon learned that Patsy had been in Mansfield the day previous.

Some time later, the Marshal learned that Patsy had sold a gold watch to Will Weaver for $10. Mr. Kirk was apprised of this fact, and identified the watch as the one that had been stolen. The Marshal at once scopped Patsy and the Kid and placed them in jail. The Kid had pawned a fine new Spring overcoat, which Mr. Kirk said he believed to belong to a passenger on the same train, who hailed from Van Wert. Tuesday evening, the Marshal took his prisoners to Mansfield, where they will be arraigned in the county where the crime was committed.

Of course Mr. Kirk was glad to recover the watch, which was a family heirloom, and it is safe to say that in the future he will enjoy his sissiest hat instead of in public places, where festive pickpockets abound.

Resolved, That the festival of "All Saints Day" be designated as said "Founder's Day" and that it be hereafter regarded as a holiday in these Institutions."

At the same meeting Bishop and Mrs. Beil set apart the interest on $5,000 to be devoted to the establishment of a lecture or lectures in the Institutions at Gambier, on the Evidence of Natural and Revealed Religion, and the Relations of Science and Religion.

The lecture or lectures to be delivered biennially on Founder's Day. Agreeable to the foregoing, Tuesday Nov. 1st, All Saints Day, will be observed as a holiday, and a lecture on the subjects named will be delivered by Dr. Rev. Bishop Williams, of the Diocese of Connecticut. On the same day instruction of students will take place. The second lecture of Bishop Williams will be on Wednesday, Nov. 3d.

Among other noted divines who will be in attendance and participate in the exercises will be Bishop Peterkin, of West Virginia, and Harris of Michigan.
