MIGHT HAVE BEEN KING

But for the war this young man might have been now the ruler of Bavaria. He is the former Prince Albrecht, who was heir apparent to the throne.

Novel "Ferris Wheel."
The ferris wheel of Bagdad is built of long poles attached to a heavy long crosspiece; on the ends of the poles rude wooden chairs are placed, in which the lovers of excitement are strapped, while by man power the revolution is made, the rider getting a tabloid thrill of the real Ferris wheel.

Mongolian Pony Hardy Animal.
For endurance, cleverness and originality the Mongol pony is said to have few rivals. In the depth of winter his owner neither feeds nor provides him shelter. An extra growth of hair and thickness of hoof—for he is never shod—protect him from the bitter cold. For food he lerns to scrape away the snow with his forefeet and find the sparse remains of the summer grass underneath.

Patience.
The need for heroism in our daily lives may seem to be small, but surely calls for patience are numerous enough, patience with slow-moving circumstances, with the brother who does not see truth as we see it, with the unreasonable people who must be managed, if they are to go forward at all. Last, most important of all, we need patience with our blundering, sadly discouraged selves. After all, it may be that from a greater height and clearer vision than ours, patience itself may show as a heroic virtue.
