HONORARY DEGREES

Doctor of Laws

Henry G. Cisneros Mayor, San Antonio, Texas

Presented by Juan E. de Pascuale Assistant Professor of Philosophy

Educator, distinguished public servant, your innovative leadership of the nation's ninth largest city has made you one of the most respected mayors in the country and the pride of the Hispanic community. Committed to public welfare, you have successfully combined a career of teaching urban planning at Trinity University and the University of Texas at San Antonio with one devoted to public service. Elected mayor of the city of San Antonio at the young age of thirty-three, you refuted skeptics by making concrete, long-lasting contributions to the common good. During the four consecutive terms of your leadership, San Antonio evolved from a sleepy Texas town into the showcase of the Southwest. Your economic development plans revitalized the downtown and secured the city's future on a strong industrial base. Your Educational Partnership Program responded to the needs of the young and the poor by providing incentives that sharply reduced the number of high-school dropouts. San Antonio not only became a prosperous city under your guidance, but a model community with strong cultural identity and civic pride. In recognition of your outstanding accomplishments in education and public service, Kenyon is proud to honor you with this degree.

Doctor of Science, honoris causa

Elias J. Corey Sheldon Emery Professor of Chemistry, Harvard University

Presented by Owen York Professor of Chemistry

Scientist of renowned virtuosity, you have dedicated yourself to bringing the power of basic research to the service of human health and welfare. In your hands organic chemistry has been raised to a high art. The syntheses of unimaginably complex natural products from amyrin to the prostaglandins and the ginkgolides have yielded to your unique and brilliant strategies. Your enunciation of "retero-synthetic" analysis ranks with milestone events in science where a truly revolutionary view—a reversal of entrenched dogma—sets us off in new directions and opens new horizons. An abiding interest in classical languages and mathematics allowed you to realize the power of graphical communication and to provide leadership in an emerging world of computergenerated structures and synthetic strategies. Your prodigious scholarship has been celebrated worldwide through such honors as the American Chemical Society Award in Pure Chemistry, the National Medal of Science, the Paracelsus Award, the Wolf Prize in Chemistry, and, most recently, the Japan Prize in Science. Individualism, independence, and imagination have led you into many uncharted areas of chemistry, and your students and the world of science have been immensely enriched. We are honored on this day to honor you with this degree.

Doctor of Letters

Barbara Jordan Lyndon B. Johnson Centennial Professor of National Policy, Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs, University of Texas at Austin

Presented by Joan Cadden Professor of History

Voice of reason, voice of justice, you have insisted that our nation live up to its promise. Previously unrepresented voters elected you first to the Texas Senate, then to the United States House of Representatives. Strong and practical in oratory and negotiation, you successfully promoted legislation to extend Civil Rights and to give the government and the people the means to enforce them. Your voice inspired a troubled nation when you expounded the constitutional principles and scrutinized the facts in the case of Richard Nixon and the matter of Robert Bork. We honor you today, lawyer, legislator, leader, educator, whose voice makes "earth and heaven ring, ring with the harmony of liberty."

Doctor of Science, honoris causa

Frances Moore Lappé Cofounder, Institute for Food and Development Policy

Presented by Miriam Dean-Otting Assistant Professor of Religion

Author, world-hunger expert, conscience for us all, you have warned us concerning blind abuse of the world's resources and alerted us to the insidious path we have taken by eating from the top of the food chain without regard to the needs of the less affluent. Diet for a Small Planet has transformed millions of households, offering meatless dishes that have become standard fare: "Nutty Noodle Casserole," "Leafy Chinese Tofu," and "Bean-Vegetable Casserole," renamed by my appreciative family "Chickpea Heaven." You studied at the Martin Luther King School of Social Change and ultimately founded the Institute for Food and Development Policy, hailed as "one of the most established food think-tanks." Your more recent publications, including Aid as Obstacle: Twenty Questions about Our Foreign Aid and the Hungry and World Hunger: Twelve Myths, are utilized by development workers at the World Bank and elsewhere. For your humane and scientific challenge to us to reexamine our cultural assumptions, your ability to translate the highest ethical values into practical global policy, and your work as a catalyst for change, Kenyon is honored to honor you.

Doctor of Laws

Joan Jones Portman Civic Leader and Trustee, Kenyon College

Presented by Thomas J. Edwards Dean of Students

Humanist, community leader and servant, student advocate, loyal trustee, your dynamism is legend. So also is your devotion to dozens of church, civic, and educational organizations in your beloved Cincinnati, where befittingly you were proclaimed Woman of the Year. It is our good fortune that Kenyon has been strong among your passions. Beginning with your appointment to Kenyon's then all-male Board of Trustees during the College's early years of coeducation, your wise counsel and insights about students quickly established a gender balance on the board and helped to build a more humane and vital College. As a dedicated Kenyon parent and long-time chair of the board's Student Affairs Committee, you constantly and graciously encouraged new opportunities for Kenyon students. In recognition of your distinguished career of service, and for your many contributions to the College, the faculty and trustees of Kenyon proudly honor you with this degree.

Doctor of Humane Letters

Robert L. Baker Professor of History, Kenyon College

Presented by Michael J. Evans Associate Professor of History

Scholar, teacher, and gentleman, for over a quarter of a century you have given Kenyon the benefit of your extraordinary learning and wisdom. Although a medievalist by training, the breadth and depth of your historical learning has been an inspiration and a reminder to us, your colleagues, that true professionalism should never be content with narrow specialization. To generations of Kenyon students your courses—particularly Medieval History-have been rites of passage, not always comfortable, sometimes stormy, but ever memorable. A humanist of excellence, you have asked young minds to stretch and test themselves, reminding them in the process that they are capable of more than they had realized. Your irreplaceable gift to them has been a fuller awareness of their potential strengths and abilities, both of character and intellect. A man of decency, probity, and civility—and always the gentle ironist—you shall be missed. Honoring you today is our small gift in return.

Doctor of Science, honoris causa

James Meredith Pappenhagen Professor of Chemistry, Kenyon College

Presented by Gordon L. Johnson Professor of Chemistry

Chemist, academician, colleague, and friend, we honor you for your years of loyal devotion to chemistry, to your many students, and to Kenyon College. You followed in your father's footsteps by earning your doctorate in analytical chemistry at Purdue University and by teaching at a small liberal arts college. You have devoted thirtyseven years of your life to helping students understand and appreciate the role of chemistry in their lives. You showed your concern about pollution long before its current popularity by carrying out research and contributing to the literature on the detection of pollutants in water. Your concern and compassion for people has extended beyond the Kenyon community through your help in organizing Hospice of Knox County and your involvement with the Knox Community Hospital Foundation and Rotary Club of Mount Vernon. Kenyon College and Knox County are richer for your service. We are pleased to honor you today and to acknowledge that your retirement from the College has been "well and honorably earned."

Doctor of Humane Letters

Basil Peter Seymour Professor of French, Kenyon College

Presented by Linda Metzler Associate Professor of Spanish

Lifelong gentle journeyer in language, poetry, and friendship, you came to Kenyon on an odyssey that took you from your native Bermuda as a Rhodes Scholar to Oxford University, where you studied modern foreign languages and literature. You next journeyed to the University of Toronto and later to Johns Hopkins University, where you taught and pursued graduate study. Once settled in Gambier, you let your students be the sojourners, issuing to them an Invitation au Voyage. You were their troubadour, and your words were the words of Rimbaud, Mallarme, Baudelaire, and Valery. In 1980, guided by a sense of the reality-transforming power of language study, you embarked with your colleagues on a new voyage: the Kenyon Intensive Language Model. You showed your colleagues the ropes as teacher and as director, and we still remember how, often, you would burst from the Intensive classroom, your shirt wringing-wet. In whatever the endeavor, your example infused us with noblesse, good will, and vision for the journey. Students and fellow voyagers hear echoes of your call in Robert Lowell's rendering of Baudelaire's "The Voyage":

We want to break the boredom of our jails and cross the oceans without oars or steam—give us visions to stretch our minds like sails, the blue, exotic shoreline of your dream!

Tell us, what have you seen?

Notes

A Kenyon Honor Scholar (indicated by a †) is a student who has demonstrated academic excellence, leadership ability, and school or community involvement.

IPHS is the Integrated Program in Humane Studies. Graduating seniors who have received the IPHS Certificate have successfully completed work in each of three years at Kenyon as part of this program.

5-STEP is a five-year teacher education program, a double-degree option for Kenyon students who plan careers as teachers. Graduating seniors in the program, who have spent a year at Columbia University Teachers College, the Bank Street College of Education, or Tufts University, earn both a bachelor's degree from Kenyon and a master's degree from the other institution.

A student completing a double major has completed all the requirements for the major in two departments and passed a senior exercise in each.

A synoptic major program is individually designed by the student to meet his or her special interests and includes work in two or more departments. It requires satisfactory completion of one senior exercise.

*Senior Exercise passed with distinction †Kenyon Honor Scholars

Honors at Graduation

The bachelor of arts degree with collegiate honors is achieved by attaining a cumulative grade average within the following ranges:

3.25-3.49, cum laude; 3.50-3.74, magna cum laude;

3.75 and above, summa cum laude.

Students showing exceptional scholarship may be accepted by their major department to read for the degree with departmental honors. The three major classes of departmental honors, based on work in the major, are Honors, High Honors, and Highest Honors, as determined jointly by an outside examiner and the members of the student's department.

A senior exercise must be satisfactorily completed by each graduating senior. While each department determines the nature of its exercise, the purpose in general is to promote coherence of the student's major program. Each department reports a grade of Pass or Pass with Distinction for this exercise.

Phi Beta Kappa, Beta Chapter of Ohio. Phi Beta Kappa, the oldest Greek-letter fraternity in the country, was founded in 1776. The Kenyon chapter was organized in 1858 as an honorary society dedicated to the recognition of scholarly achievement. It is the fourteenth in age of one hundred and sixty chapters. Elections to membership are made from the best scholars in the junior and senior classes who have shown achievement through grades and an intellectual disposition.

DEGREES AND AWARDS CONFERRED AT HONORS DAY, APRIL 18, 1989

Outstanding Kenyon students and faculty members, as well as three distinguished alumni and a former faculty member, were recognized at the College's annual Honors Day Convocation on April 18.

Honorary degrees were awarded to Stephen W. Carmichael '67, professor of anatomy at the Mayo Medical School; Donald B. Hamister '44, chair of the Joslyn Corporation; Richard P. Ralston 1950, who retires this year as superintendent of buildings and grounds at the College; and John Agresto, former Kenyon political science faculty member and president-elect of St. John's College in Sante Fe, New Mexico. Each of the honorees presented a short address based on their experiences and careers.

Unless otherwise noted, those students listed as award and prize winners are members of the Class of 1989.

COMMENCEMENT 1989

Barbara Jordan, the first black woman from the South to serve in the U.S. Congress and the keynote speaker at the 1976 Democratic National Convention, will share the spotlight today with 418 graduating seniors at the one hundred sixty-first Commencement at Kenyon.

In addition to the bachelor of arts degrees granted to its graduates, the College will award eight honorary degrees. The recipients include Jordan, San Antonio Mayor Henry G. Cisneros, chemist Elias J. Corey, worldhunger authority Frances Moore Lappé, Kenyon trustee Joan J. Portman, and Kenyon professors Robert L. Baker, James M. Pappenhagen, and B. Peter Seymour, who are all retiring this year.

Barbara Jordan first rose to national attention when she served on the House Committee on the Judiciary during the Watergate hearings. In that forum, she won acclaim for delivering what Newsweek later called an "ode to the Constitution." Her renown as an orator grew after her 1976 keynote address, which led many to suggest that she might be a nominee for attorney general, ambassador to the United Nations, or even vice president.

After finishing her congressional term in 1978, however, Jordan left politics to teach in the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas at Austin. Since 1982 she has held the school's Lyndon B. Johnson Centennial Chair.

For twelve consecutive years, World Almanac called Jordan one of the twenty-five most influential women in America, and in 1984 the International Platform Association voted her "Best Living Orator." A 1956 graduate of Texas Southern University, in 1959 she received her LL.B. degree from Boston University. The doctor of letters degree she receives today will be her twenty-ninth honorary degree.

Cisneros, mayor of San Antonio for four terms, beginning in 1981, will be awarded a doctor of laws degree. He has held a variety of positions in San Antonio's government, including a seat on city council for six years. In addition, Cisneros has been involved in national politics as president of the National League of Cities and as assistant to the secretary of health, education, and welfare. In 1984 he was interviewed as a potential Democratic vice-presidential candidate, and in 1987 he was asked by then-Vice President George Bush to assist in briefing Soviet Secretary General Mikhail Gorbachev during the summit meeting that year.

A graduate of Texas A&M University, Cisneros holds master's degrees from Texas A&M and the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University and a doctorate in public administration from George Washington University.

Corey, Sheldon Emery Professor of Chemistry at Harvard University, will receive a doctor of science degree. An organic chemist, he was awarded the 1989 Japan Prize for his research. Considered to be equivalent to the Nobel Prize, the government-sponsored award was presented to Corey for being the first to synthesize prostaglandins, natural hormones that may be used to control blood pressure and other body processes.

Corey graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1948, receiving his doctorate from the same institution just two years later at the age of twenty-two. He is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the National Academy of Sciences, and in 1988 he received the National Medal of Science, awarded by the president of the United States.

Lappé will be awarded the degree of doctor of science. She is cofounder of the Institute for Food and Development Policy, a San Francisco-based organization researching solutions to world hunger issues. Rejecting the idea that hunger is inevitable, the organization has sought alternative solutions to hunger problems.

Lappe's 1971 book Diet for a Small Planet was a seminal work in analyzing food production and the world economy, and it has sold more than three million copies worldwide. She and institute cofounder Joseph Collins have since collaborated on two other works on food development. Lappe's most recent work, Rediscovering America's Values, is to be published this year.

A graduate of Earlham College, Lappé attended the Martin Luther King School of Social Change and the Graduate School of Social Work at the University of California at Berkeley.

Portman, a member of Kenyon's Board of Trustees since 1975, will receive a doctor of laws degree. Currently general manager of the Golden Lamb Inn in Lebanon, Ohio, she has been a leader in volunteer activities in the Cincinnati area. She is a member of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, currently serving as Protestant chair; the executive committee of the Miami Purchase for Historic Preservation; the advisory board of Hospice Incorporated; a task force studying student affairs at the University of Cincinnati; the New Museum Committee of the Cincinnati Historical Museum; and the advisory committee of the Cincinnati Council on World Affairs, among other groups. Portman's activities led her to be named "Woman of the Year" by the Cincinnati Enquirer in 1979.

Baker, who will receive a doctor of humane letters degree, has been a member of Kenyon's faculty since 1959. A 1947 graduate of Brown University, he did graduate work at Princeton University and at King's College of the University of London, which he attended on a Fulbright Scholarship. Having received his doctorate in history from Princeton in 1955, he taught at Brown for four years before taking his position at Kenyon. He has been professor of history at Kenyon since 1968.

Baker's specialties are medieval and English history, with a principal interest in the British administration of wool trade in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries. He has written several articles on this topic, as well as a European history textbook published by McGraw-Hill.

Pappenhagen, a member of the Kenyon faculty since 1952, will be awarded a doctor of science degree. After graduating from Mount Union College in 1949, he received his master's and doctoral degrees from Purdue University, with a specialty in analytical chemistry. His principal research has been in the analysis of ions in wastes and water, supported by grants from the National Institutes of Health, the Public Health Service, the Department of the Interior, and the Environmental Protection Agency, among others.

His publications include articles in the journal Analytical Chemistry and more than twenty book reviews for the Journal of Chemical Education. He is a founder and member of the Board of Directors of Hospice of Knox County and of the Board of Trustees of Knox Community Hospital and the Knox Community Hospital Foundation. A veteran of World War II, Pappenhagen served in the infantry and earned the Bronze Star and the Purple Heart.

(Pappenhagen's father, the late Louis A. Pappenhagen, composed the first piece played in today's recessional, Hail Alma Mater, in 1931. The elder Pappenhagen, also a chemist, taught at Ohio Wesleyan University and at Mount Union. Prior to that, he worked as a musician on the Chautauqua Circuit, playing the French horn and the piano. Carl H. Kandel, who retired from the Mount Union faculty this year, arranged the music for brass choir in 1965.)

Seymour, who has taught at Kenyon since 1963, will receive the degree of doctor of humane letters. A native of Bermuda, he graduated with honors from Oxford University, which he attended on a Rhodes Scholarship. He received his master's degree in French from the University of Toronto in 1956 and did additional graduate work at the Graduate School of Romance Languages at Johns Hopkins University.

While at Kenyon, Seymour has been instrumental in implementing the Kenyon Intensive Language Model, a system of teaching introductory courses that uses dramatics and rapid drill as part of a daily, two-hour course. Since bringing the program to Kenyon, he has served as consultant for its implementation at two other colleges. He has also taught in Kenyon's Integrated Program in Humane Studies and served as chair of the modern foreign languages and literatures department.

A HISTORY OF KENYON COMMENCEMENTS

Kenyon's founder, Bishop Philander Chase, conducted the first Commencement exercises of the College on September 9, 1829, in a large, bare, basement room in the just-completed center section of Old Kenyon, the first permanent building. There were six graduates: G. Dennison, J.B. Chase, A. Blake, S. Chase, P.C. Freeman, and B.B. Sayre.

As soon as Rosse Chapel (later known as Rosse Hall) was completed (about 1840), the ceremonies were moved there; Rosse was the location for all graduation exercises for more than a century. It was in Rosse Chapel on August 3, 1842, that the class valedictorian, Rutherford B. Hayes, a future president of the United States, delivered a Commencement address entitled "College Life."

Until the 1890s, it was customary for each graduating senior to deliver an oration, sometimes in English but often in Latin, Greek, or Hebrew. Since the number of graduates fluctuated from four in 1879 to eighteen in more prosperous years, the programs could sometimes be completed in an afternoon but often took all day, with an hour and a half break for lunch. By 1894, activities connected with Commencement had assumed such large proportions that events started on Sunday and culminated with the graduation exercises on Thursday.

During World War II the civilian enrollment at Kenyon shrank to about forty students, but President Gordon Keith Chalmers was determined that every Kenyon graduate should still have his moment of glory. So, in December 1943, formal Commencement ceremonies, with the faculty in full academic regalia, were held for two graduates.

The tremendous influx of students coming to Kenyon after World War II under the provisions of the G.I. Bill made graduating classes so large that it was no longer possible to accommodate the Commencement audiences in Rosse Hall. The first outdoor ceremony was held in 1949, in the same location as today's exercises. The rain site was then Wertheimer Fieldhouse; in recent years it has been the Ernst Center.

Every seventeen years, the move outdoors results in exposure to countless millions of uninvited and unwanted visitors—the cicadas that appear on Gambier Hill in late

May and early June. The 1965 Commencement was especially plagued by the harmless insects, which dropped from the trees and piled up in great heaps around the tree trunks. However, the 1982 festivities were held early enough to outwit most of the pests. Next invasion: 1999.

Kenyon adheres to its classical tradition of conducting the formal part of the Commencement exercises in Latin and printing diplomas in Latin. But it no longer translates the names of the graduates; up until the late 1960s, William became Guliemus and Thomas was transcribed as Thomam.

ACADEMIC COSTUME AND PROCESSION

Academic gowns represent a tradition handed down from the universities of the Middle Ages. These institutions were founded by the Church; the students, being clerics, were obliged to wear the prescribed gowns at all times. Round caps later became square mortarboards. The hood, originally a cowl attached to the gown, seems to have had three uses: it could be slipped over the head for warmth, worn as a shoulder cape, or, when hanging from the shoulder, as a bag in which alms could be collected. It is believed that when large wigs were worn the cape part of the hood was cut open in front and a narrow neckband inserted. The entire garment, cape and hood proper, was allowed to fall back, producing approximately the effect we see today.

In America, the hood is the most outstanding feature. Much of the American academic costume is derived from regalia worn at British universities. The usual color for academic gowns in the United States is black. The bachelor's gown is worn closed; the master's and doctor's may be worn open or closed. The shape of the sleeve is the distinguishing mark of the gowns: bachelor, long pointed sleeve; master, oblong, square cut in back with an arc cut away in front: doctor, bell shaped.

Caps are black, as are the tassels for the bachelor of arts (B.A. or A.B.), bachelor of science (B.S.), and bachelor of engineering (B.E.) degrees. Tassels for the doctor of philosophy (Ph.D.) degree are gold, while those for other graduate and professional degrees may be of the color corresponding to the trimming on the hoods.

Special caps—beefeater caps—are worn at Kenyon by the trustees. This type of cap is also used by some European universities.

Many European universities have distinctive caps and gowns that are different from those commonly used in this country. Some of the gowns are of bright colors, some are embellished with fur. A few of these may be noted in the academic procession today.

The shape and size of the hood marks the college degree of the wearer. The hoods are lined with the color of the institution from which the wearer received his or her degree. The trimming of the collar of the hood is the color that designates the degree: liberal arts, white; fine arts and architecture, brown; science, golden yellow; music, pink; divinity, scarlet; law, purple; engineering, orange; philosophy, blue; medicine, green; public health, salmon; forestry, russet; nursing, apricot. Since there are several hundred colleges and universities in the United States, various arrangements of the primary colors are used.

Honorary degree hoods are distinguished as follows: master of arts (M.A.), white; doctor of humane letters (L.H.D.), white; doctor of science (Sc.D.), golden yellow; doctor of divinity (D.D.), scarlet; doctor of laws (LL.D.), purple.

The broadaxe, carried by the faculty marshal, symbolizes the frontier heritage of the College. In the 1820s, the structural beams of Kenyon's first buildings were fashioned from available oak timber.
