The enclosed come to hand this morning, also one franked by Mr Adams which I have directed to the care of Mr Hodgson, and which you will probably receive with this. I have nothing new to communicate, having written to you fully on Saturday evening, except a communication from Mr Mosley who had read the appeal, and promised me to go over to one of the parties & deliver them the following day.

He has also desired me to put his name to the subscription for five guineas, and give his compliments to you with most hearty wishes for your success. I hope soon to communicate something interesting from the Ward and other I remain Sir

most Sincerely Yours
J. W. Higgins
