

In the News

Malpractice charges are being filed by a Long Island man after two surgeons, an anesthetist, and a nurse allowed a surgical equipment salesman to aid in the operation on the man's artificial hip. The salesman, William MacKay, said he assisted with the artificial joint after doctors appeared "in total confusion" with the equipment.

Without mentioning further possible inflation, President Carter boosted the minimum wage to $2.65 per hour in 1978 and to $3.35 per hour by 1981.
