

In the News

When OPEC meets in December in Venezuela, the Shah of Iran has been convinced by President Carter to attempt to persuade the oil exporting nations to resist any oil price increases, considering the state of the world economy. However, the Shah indicates future hikes are forthcoming unless strict conservation measures are followed by the oil-guzzling countries.

Government officials are skeptical about future normal relations with Cuba since studies prove its large military presence in Africa, particularly in Angola. Contrary to Castro's promise that military forces would be decreased, Cuba is supporting a Marxist faction in the Angolan civil war.

Despite heavy criticism by Syrian President Hafez Assad, President Anwar Sadat of Egypt is planning to leave Saturday for his visit to Israel and the Israeli parliament. Sadat promised Assad that there would be no separate Egyptian agreement with Israel and that the Arab nations' peace demands are still in agreement.
