Letter to Dudley Chase

Philander Chase

The Philander Chase letters were written in the 18th and 19th century and therefore may contain language that we understand today as harmful or offensive. You may encounter paternalist descriptions of Native Americans, racial slurs, or sexism. For more information, see our policy page.

Philadelphia 14 July 1840.

My dearest Brother:

Don't blame me for not wishing to see you sooner: for I am not under my own control: Duty points out the way I should, and the grace of God only enables me to pursue it.

Every city I come to places that before me, which I did not expect. —

"You must," say they, "tell your story here and in every Church. If nothing, from these tragic difficulty of the times, be given to your glorious object now; our heads will be informed of the facts, and our hearts warmed with desire to give you some future day: We promise you to remember your noble work; and as it progresses you shall find ^{us} willing and ready to assist you in completing it.

My anxiety to be home is a pledge that I will be with you before long: but when that will be I can not now say. I must stay a little longer longer in Phil.^a. — Perhaps, till I shall have completed a Professorship, to be named after this city, of brotherly love. Of $4,000 necessary, for this object, I got the promise this mornin of the one with sixth vol, $1,666-66. — If successful, one week or a fortnight spent in Summit, will have been well employed. — I hope for your prayers that I may have a steady eye to the glory of God in all I do in this great matter; and that all may be ordered so as to promote the salvation of the souls of men. We are now, both of us, very near the period when our course will be finished and our trial over.

May we so pass the remainder of our lives as thro faith in Christi atonement will secure the salvation of our souls.

Do give my best love to Sister Olivea and to all the other dear ones in Bethel Proyettin and thankdolph

Ever your loving Brother
