Letter to Laura Chase

Philander Chase

The Philander Chase letters were written in the 18th and 19th century and therefore may contain language that we understand today as harmful or offensive. You may encounter paternalist descriptions of Native Americans, racial slurs, or sexism. For more information, see our policy page.

Jubilee 29th July 43

My dear Laura
You see I am now at home
My health which was very indifferent all my long journey at the south is now better. But we have a drought here at Jubilee truly afflictive
- Every thing seems dried up: and what we shall do but to pray to God for resignation I know not.

My success in my late journey was greater than I expected. Our places of Ministration being few and far between My fatigue was great and being unwell most of the time and living only on boiled corn meal my spirits were low and my soul sustained only by God's grace in the conscious discharge of my duty.

We are all well here at home and often think most tenderly of you.

Having (as they say) one hour did & one letter of the greatest consequence to the Church to answer I can say no more to you at present than to desire to be kindly remembered to all friends I am your loving Grand Father P. Chan

Don't forget me to Sister Rachael. Tell her that her son James has lately exhibited both mind and I trust true piety in the Convention of Texas — I am now answering the letter of that National Church as the Senior Bishop of the Churches in the United States, on the subject of obtaining a Bishop
