Letter to Joseph Denison

Philander Chase

The Philander Chase letters were written in the 18th and 19th century and therefore may contain language that we understand today as harmful or offensive. You may encounter paternalist descriptions of Native Americans, racial slurs, or sexism. For more information, see our policy page.

Very dear Brother;

You wd. have reason to blame me, were I to omit your name among the few Generous whom I have been able to address on the subject of our present distress.

The enclosed "extract" is that to which I allude & to which I solicit your sympathetic attention, on whether successful in obtaining relief or not it will be a part of my history. Should your name stand recorded among those who gave me help in time of need, I think, the blessed fact will not damp your blush when we meet in Heaven.

A compromise is offered, though informally for $200.
For obvious reasons, I do not think it right to go before the Public in print. Under God I rely on my private private friends of whom I have some in England as well in this my native country.

One man, a Mr. Munro who on his visit to his little son now in our flourishing school, said to me at parting - Put one down for £100. - May God bless him and also all others who do likewise.

"Writ of Pepperson" has been "med. out" already - some delay maybe obtained - not with a view that I can pay - for I have no money but to pay my present debts: Samuel, (the Rev. Dr. Chap) says he will quit the moment the land papers into the hands of them and is divided into lots - In other words the college will be no more ~~if~~ ^{the view on} the lots (now is ardently expected by my enemies) will be moonshine.

Pray let me hear from you soon Yours truly Tho: Chase
