THE ALUMNI LIBRARY

The new Alumni Library is fast approaching completion and the subscriptions made by the college men are now due. Do not make the committee come to you for the money but help them by paying at the first opportunity. Some statistics concerning the cost of the building will probably be of interest.

The total cost of the new Library including interior finish and furnishing will be about $48,000. Of this sum $28,000 was secured last winter from these sources:

Insurance on Hubbard Hall $8,000
Andrew Carnegie 5,000
David Z. Norton 15,000

Total $28,000

The President was then authorized by the Trustees to appeal to the Alumni of the College for the remaining $20,000 and the Board resolved further that if this sum was raised the building should be called the Alumni Library. Between March and June, 1910, nearly $11,000 was subscribed by the Alumni to this fund and the Alumni committeemen present in Gambier during commencement week assured the Trustees that more subscriptions could certainly be obtained and that in their judgment the $9,000 still needed could be raised within the next year. Inasmuch as work of instruction was badly crippled by the lack of a library and inasmuch as $39,000 of the $48,000 needed was already provided, the Board of Trustees decided to proceed with the construction of the building relying upon the assurance of the alumni representatives that the remaining $9,000 could be subscribed.

The walls of the structure have now risen above the first story and as the work proceeds the beautiful lines and the pure and noble architectural style of the building are increasingly evident. In interior arrangement the building is ideally adapted for the purposes of a College Library and in appearance it will be perhaps the most beautiful ornament to the College Park. This fine structure will be a worthy and notable monument to the loyalty and generosity of Kenyon men.

During the coming spring the funds necessary to complete the building must be subscribed and raised for at the present rate of progress the Library will be ready for occupancy about the opening of the next college year.

WORSE

And More of It -- Team
Can't Break Habit of Losing.

Allegheny 35—Kenyon 17

Although the score does not indicate it, this game was probably the best game played on the Kenyon floor for years. Due to a little talking in the Assembly there was a big crowd in Rosse Hall when the two teams lined up for the bat-off. Allegheny's elongated center started the scoring by dropping in a beauty from the middle of the floor. Not content with this he immediately put in another from the same place.

To vary the monotony Capt. Firestone of the visitors slipped up and scored a couple of more points.

During this time the Kenyon team was striving valiantly but unsuccessfully to break up the visitor's team work. Their superior coaching was very much in evidence and when the half ended, they had corralled eleven field baskets while Kenyon's total amounted to two insignificant fouls.

Between halves something must have happened to the losing team for they came back in the true Kenyon style and literally played the Allegheny men off their feet. First Marty and then Beatty and Weaver in quick succession slipped away from their men and caged the ball. Fighting desperately, they scored fourteen points before Allegheny got their bearings. The game from then until the end was fast and furious.

Aves was forced to leave the game on account of sickness in the middle of the first half. The whole team deserves credit for the way they waded in and played during the second half. No particular luminaries were in evidence on the Kenyon team while Hawk and Firestone pulled off the fireworks for the visitors.

Oberlin 81—Kenyon 15

Whatever honor there was connected with our resumption of athletics with Oberlin went to that team on Feb. 25. After an extremely hard day's travel we were completely annihilated by the team which is conceded to be the champion of the state. Oberlin has every right to the title for their passing and floor work was of the highest class and they seldom missed a chance to drop in a basket.

Nichols started the scoring for Oberlin but from that time on this clever forward was practically helpless. But while the Kenyon guards were holding their men down, the forwards were being outplayed. No team can expect to make any showing when the opposing guards get away with eighteen baskets.

Beatty's man, alone, made enough points to defeat Kenyon.

At the end of the first half Oberlin lead by the score of 43-8. The second half was very similar to the first and although the team played hard they had no effective defense to offer to the whirlwind offense of the Congregationalists.

The game throughout was clean and exceedingly fast. The Oberlin team played marvelous ball and we have no excuses to offer. Marty played the best for Kenyon.

KENYON WINS

The Esteem of the Engineers

BUT LOSES GAME.

Otterbein 48—Kenyon 12

The third time wasn't a charm because we were just as easy for Otterbein as for Allegheny and Oberlin. It is not so bad to lose to schools like Allegheny and Oberlin but we certainly ought to draw the line when Otterbein begins to wallop us.

After getting on a train that didn't stop at Westerville our loyal little band finally persuaded the engineer that his steed had congestion of the steam pipes otherwise known as a hot-box and luckily enough he discovered this exactly at the Westerville station. Anyway that engineer was a good fellow because he thought he was doing us a favor by letting us off. Perish the thought! He should have carried us to Cincinnati.

After waiting until the "gym" had been mopped out the game started. Before this game our opponents had been winning because our forwards wouldn't watch their men. Consequently, when we had the promise of better behavior from our forwards we felt sure that we had a good chance of winning. But our old stand-by, the center, forgot about his duty and was so busily engaged in counting the attendance that he let his man cage several baskets. Even at that he lost track of the attendance.

Now that you have this clear and lucid account of the game, no doubt you understand why we lost. Oh, I forgot to tell you that the captain of the Otterbein team also acts as cheer leader and continually exhorts the audience to root. Even at that Westerville is a great place—in which to die.

Track Prospects

It has been three years since Kenyon put out a winning track team. This has been due to lack of interest in track and the fact that we have had no coach during that time. This year however, the prospects are better than they have been for some time. There is plenty of material from which to draw and the track team may have several advantages which they have not had heretofore.

Weaver and Mason both did well in the Bix Six Meet last spring and they will form the nucleus of the new team. Among the upperclassmen are Downe and Axtell, both of whom have considerable ability. In the Sophomore class are Marty, Aves, Snyder and Krieg. Besides these are a number of other men who will show up well.

More interest has been shown than formerly. The track has been put in good condition, and basket ball and cross country have given the track men an opportunity to train during the winter. The absence of a regular coach will, of course, be a handicap; but if those who turn out train consistently, the team gives promise of being a credit to Kenyon. From indications, it will be strong in the jumps and weights, good in the dashes and hurdles, but weak in the distances.

Besides the annual interclass meet, meets with Wooster and Denison, and the Big Six Meet, other meets will be arranged, so that the team will have plenty of chances to display its ability.

Prospective Coach Here

Clyde Waters, one of the foremost candidates for the position of athletic director at Kenyon, visited the Hill during the last part of last week. Waters, who is a Williams man, is an athlete of note and while in college played on the football, basketball and baseball teams. He captained the football team during his last year in school. After serving as assistant coach at Williams, he coached the Oberlin and Erie High Schools. At each place he had great success. It is probable that his greatest success would be in baseball for he caught for Montreal in the Eastern league and later played in the New England league.

Mr. Waters made a very good impression, while here, but the choice of the coach will not be made until the board of managers has had a meeting.

Harcourt Dance

The last evening in February, also the last night before Gambier's gay social festivities stop, to observe Lent, was made very pleasant for many of the college men by the Harcourt Dance given in honor of the Senior Class. Miss Merwin assisted by the Seniors, the Misses Hill, Smith and Tanner received in the gymnasium members of the college faculty with their wives and about thirty five of the students.

The study hall was transformed by the Juniors with yellow and white Harcourt banners, rugs, easy chairs, and tables in place of desks. Drop lights, covered with dark green shades were placed on the tables, producing a dim light and such a cozy effect that this room was much sought after during the intermissions between dances and for supper which was served after the tenth dance.

The musical program was excellent, so carefully selected and so well rendered by Jackson's Orchestra of Columbus that everyone was mighty sorry when the chimes struck midnight.

Dr. George Meyland, director of the Gymnasium at Columbia, has collected statistics which show that men who do not use tobacco stand higher in scholarships than those who do, but that 47 per cent. of the smokers among the students examined had won places on the University teams while only 37 per cent. of the non-smokers could secure places.

Oberlin, following after Harvard, has opened a Men's Union Building which serves the same purpose as the Harvard Commons. The building was formally opened the last week in February.

SPRING

The time for the poet to start his flight has come and it is fitting that some editorial comment should be made upon the change in seasons. We wish it to be understood that this is an extremely hard subject to write about and the editor had to stop twice and banish the office boy from the sanctum sanctorum. He had insisted on pulling the tail of the editor's cat.

To come back to the subject we might say that this will be a splendid time for many of the fellows to spruce up. Away with the corduroys and jerseys and let the rubber collars come into their own.

At Kenyon this period of the year is the pleasantest of all. Nature, always bountiful, showers its greatest rewards on the "Hill." Every thing takes on new life and the crack of the bat joins with the whirl of the racquet in front of Old Kenyon.

Last year at this time there was an agitation for a "college sing" to be held every Sunday night around the prayer cross. Now would be the proper time to start the good custom again.

After getting this out of our system we feel that we have done our duty towards Spring and an appropriate ending would be:

"Sprig Hath Cub."

THE NOONDAY SERVICES

During the past few years, services have been conducted in the college chapel at 12:00 o'clock every day through Lent. These services have been well attended in the past and have been a source of much real benefit to the men in college.

During the present Lent, arrangements have been made to continue the custom of noonday services. The eleven o'clock classes will close five minutes early, thus giving all the men an opportunity of attending the services. It is the purpose to make the services brief, and they will not last over ten minutes.

This is a custom which should receive the support of Kenyon men and we believe, if the men in college will drop into the chapel, say a prayer and listen to the short address, they will feel better for having done so. So far, the services have been well attended.

DO COLLEGE MEN LACK INITIATIVE?

It is a lamentable fact, that to a very large extent, men are mere imitators and few original minds exist. This is just as true of the average college man as it is of the man who has never had the advantage of higher education.

To a very great degree, the explanation of this defect may be found in the conditions which exist in the classroom. Education has come to be regarded by students as a grinding out of so many lines of a language, so many problems in mathematics, or so many pages from an assigned text. As a matter of fact, this is almost the universal method employed in schools and colleges and from the operation of this method, instructors get the material for their semi-annual examinations.

But what is the effect of such a system upon the development of mind and character? The first and most objectionable of its evils is the fact that it demands students to accept the statement made in such texts as law and gospel. There is little or no opportunity for the analytical mind to exercise itself and the man studying under such conditions falls into the habit of letting his text do his thinking for him. In other words, his mind becomes a machine. Having become accustomed, in the four years spent in college, to rely on such authorities, he goes out into the world and the logical sequence is, that he follows the line of least resistance.

This same thing is true at Kenyon, but to a much less degree, for Kenyon has evolved a plan which throws her students upon their own responsibility. In the maintenance of student activities, men are made to study conditions and to exercise a certain degree of responsibility. The student organizations present problems to be solved, which can only be settled by exercising the individual mind. The conditions of living lead men to think and reason about subjects which broaden his view of life and fit him for a future career.

The fact remains, however, that most college men are not original, that they do not have the ability to think out problems and to lead great enterprises. Since this is true, one of the important duties before American educators, today, is the training of men to think for themselves.

A Weak Point in Colleges

From the dean of Columbia University comes the report that American colleges do not help their students to choose a career. He declares that inquiries among college men show that most boys pick their vocations independent of any college advice or influence and out of 500 college men whom Dean Keppel interviewed on this subject, more than 200 had chosen their life work before going to college and did not change their minds.

A table is presented showing that business attracts more men than any other occupation, 22 per cent. enrolling themselves as aiming at such a career. Law is next with 19 per cent., teaching claims 13 per cent., and engineering 9 per cent. Only a very few devote themselves to writing and journalism, while the rest are scattered among agriculture, architecture, manufacturing, public service and the ministry.

Noon Day Services in the Chapel

Following the custom which has been observed on the Hill "for many years noon day services are held in the chapel each week day throughout Lent. All college classes are excused at five minutes before twelve giving everyone an opportunity to reach the chapel at twelve, at which time the services begin."

These Lenten services are only of ten minutes duration and each day a short talk is given by Dr. Smythe or some other member of the faculty on subjects of vital interest to every college man. It has been said by those attending that there services are by far the most inspiring and interesting of all religious services held on the "Hill." The large number of men present each day vouch for this statement, as the attendance is not compulsory.

Kenyon Humor

That Kenyon wit is nothing new, rather that it has been handed down from generation to generation on Gambier Hill, is shown by the following extract from the Kenyon book, by one of the class of '39.

"It is related that when G— was engaged with the rest of his class in the most celestial study of astronomy he, as usual, came to the recitation room one day having a very vague idea of the orbits and motions of the different planets which were the topic of the day's lesson.

"Well, 'In the course of human events' it became his turn to recite.

"Mr. G.' said the Professor to our hero, 'tell us all you know about Jupiter. By the way, how would you conjugate Jupiter?' 'It is a noun, sir,' said G. 'I'd rather decline it.'

"Well, then," exclaimed the Professor, a little vexed at having been caught in so evident a mistake, 'how would you decline it?'

"Most respectfully," was the laconic reply. The Professor pronounced it capital, and passed to the next with a new question."

Literary Society

The members of Nu Pi Kappa are to have a novel program in connection with their regular work. They have been arranging for some time to have a mock trial, which will surely cause some laughs as well as be instructive to the participants and listeners.

The following are the judges, prisoners, etc.:

Judge	Wood

The Prisoner	Senft

The prisoner will be accused of breaking into the chemistry recitation room and stealing the first semester "exam" papers.

Stephan Rockwell, '13 has recently received an appointment to the Naval School at Annapolis where he will enter next fall if successful in the entrance examinations to be taken in June. Senator Dick of Ohio secured the appointment for "Steve."

DR. PEIRCE

Will Have a Very Fine New Home -- Plans Nearly Completed.

Every Kenyon man, graduate or underclassman, is interested in the plans which have been drawn up for the President's new home, and so many questions have been asked concerning it that the "Collegian" has deemed it fitting to publish a few facts concerning this new addition to the college campus buildings. The readers must bear in mind the fact that these plans, although complete at present, must be passed upon by several authorities before they can be decided upon and specifications drawn up. Mr. Cromwell of New York, the donor of the fund for building professors' houses, has seen the plans and has stamped them with his approval. They are now in the hands of Mr. Schweinfurth, the college architect. Leaving his hands they must go successively before the committee on grounds and buildings and then before the Board of Trustees. It is understood, however, that the plans, if altered at all, will not be changed radically and the outlines given here will, for all intents and purposes, hold for the final result.

The house will be of the English cottage type, long and low, with broad full piazza in front and a high stone gable at one end. The first story of stone (native) will be surmounted by beam and plastered construction in ornamental design which will continue to the eaves. The roof will be broad and gently sloping, its edges forming deep over hanging eaves. Second floor windows will be small and set deep in casements. Facing the east, the house will be parallel to the middle path.

Regarding location and size, the present home of Dr. Peirce will be moved to a place somewhere in the neighborhood of Dr. Smythe's and the new building will stand upon the present site of the old one. It will be eighty feet long and thirty-five feet deep. This will make it as long as the new library. Down stairs there will be four large rooms and a small reception hall besides the parts designed for service. The second floor will contain seven bed rooms with ample closets, and four baths.

Mr. Alfred Granger, the architect, is a member of the well known firm of Hewitt, Granger and Paist of Philadelphia and is, moreover, a Kenyon man of the class of 1887. He has drawn up plans in part for a professors' house of the same type as the president's. This house will also stand upon the campus.

During the time which will be required in moving the present Peirce home and the completion of the new one, Dr. Peirce will reside in the house occupied last year by Professor Hall.

New Monitor announces that many members of Faculty are cut-up.

It has been a source of much real regret to the student body to observe the apparent carelessness with which the members of our faculty are coming to regard attendance at the chapel services. While we would not like to be accused of finding fault with "the powers that be," we publish a list of the attendance, since the Christmas vacation.

March Assembly

The regular March assembly was held on Monday, the sixth, with President Wood, in the chair. Very little business was brought before the assembly at this meeting, probably due to the special meeting of the 20th.

The lecture course committee reported that nothing more could be done until more payments were made on the tickets and asked the co-operation of the student body in the collecting of this money.

An amendment to the constitution, which had lain on the table at the last meeting, making the president of the Assembly an ex-officio member of the executive committee with no vote was passed.

Graduate Manager Walton reported that the conclusion was not yet reached in regard to the coach situation.

The meeting was then adjourned.

K. M. A. Fire Recalled

The Kenyon Military fire is recalled by the death of George Haymen, a reporter on the Cincinnati "Enquirer," in the fire which destroyed the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce early in the year.

Hayman had entered the Academy as a Freshman and was sleeping on the third floor when the blaze was discovered. He climbed down to the second floor and jumped without injury. Remembering his rifle he went back into the burning building and again came out unscathed.

He then entered the University School of Cleveland and was there when the gymnasium burned.

In his last fire he was caught by the sudden collapse of four floors. They were suspended from the roof by iron girders, but the heat softened the iron. Hayman rushed in without suspecting danger and was buried so deep in the ruins that his body was not discovered for four days. He was eighteen years of age.

Indoor Baseball

The indoor baseball teams of North Hanna and West Wing met in Rosse Hall on Wednesday, March 1st, the result being disastrous to West Wing. The North Hanna team took the lead in the first inning and were never headed.

The following was the line-up of the two teams:

West Wing—Aves, r. f., Starr, s. s., Wickham, c., Kindar, c. f., Hall, 3d b., Rockwell, p., Carr, 1st b., Nusbaum, 2b., Houston, l. f.

North Hanna—Downe, c., Paris, 1st b., Lewis, l. f., Anderson, p., Jenkins, 2d b., Shuey, s. s., Allen, s. s., Marvin, c. f., Hopwood, 3d b., Manchester, r. f.

Doctor Walton and Professor Downie umpires. Russel and Dickinson were the score keepers. Wickham and Kinder starred for the West Wing, while no particular star could be selected from the North Hanna team. A large crowd of enthusiastic rooters were on hand, including a number of college men and several visitors from Harcourt.

A committee on arrangements was appointed immediately after the game.

The following article appeared in the Wesleyan "Transcript" eighteen years ago:

"O. S. U. met her third successive defeat at Kenyon last Saturday. The score was 42 to 6. Some one, however, telegraphed the Columbus boys that the score was 22 to 16 in favor of O. S. U., and pandemonium reigned at the Dorm. The wildly enthusiastic students went en masse to the depot to welcome the conquering heroes. After the Kenyon train had brought back the O. S. U. eleven, or what the Kenyon players had left of them, the crowd, with horns blowing and colors flying, marched down High street, keeping time to Oh! Oh! O. S. U.! When the true score became known the crowd became very much disgusted, and the procession disbanded more quickly than it had formed.

A Freshman's Way Through College

Although different students employ various means to work their way through college, one of the most unusual means is that of a student at the University of Kansas, who milks his way through college. When the boy started in college he had only $250 to pay for his entire course. He invested the whole amount in three cows. He made arrangements with the lady with whom he boarded to furnish stable room in return for milk. He soon had customers enough to dispose of a daily average of ten gallon of milk. He cares for the cows himself and the three cows are paying his college expenses.

Conditional "Exams."

Those unfortunates who failed to obtain high enough grades on the first semester "exams" are having the extreme pleasure of staying in their rooms and devoting many hours of diligent labor for the conditional "exams," which are offered at this time in order that they may retrieve themselves.

They probably are considering themselves fortunate in even getting to make a try for these conditionals, but its no fun to take "exams," besides preparing for them along with the regular school work. It seems as though once would be enough to teach them to get better grades the next semester, yet some, few we hope, continue to take advantage of these as though they really enjoyed the work. Possibly they do, but again it is likely they do not.

On Thursday evening, March 2, Beta chapter of Ohio of Phi Beta Kappa held a meeting in South Ascension. Dr. Reeves read a paper on "The Natural Law of the 14th Century."

Out of the small total of 4121 graduates during the first century of the existence of the United States Military Academy from 1802 to 1902, 2731 entered civil life at some period in their career.

The number of Reveilles published this year will be limited. Only those who order before the book goes to press, will be SURE of securing a copy.

The book is going to be a success and especial care is being used in the choice of cuts. The book will be literally filled with views and pictures of scenes in and about the campus. No loyal Kenyon man can afford to be without this year's Reveille. Begin to figure now, because the manager will soon be around to see you.

In boosting the Reveille you boost Kenyon.
