J. B. NEUMANN LECTURES ON MODERN ART

The College was very fortunate in having two lecturers on modern art, on the eighth and ninth of May. The lecturers, given by J. B. Neumann, a director of the New Art Circle, accompanied an exhibition in Philo Hall.

The exhibition of paintings was the gift of Wilbur L. Cummings '02. The collection included many of the important works of most of the outstanding artists of the modern school. The paintings were on display several days before the lectures and many of the pictures of the cubistic and futuristic type aroused great interest among the students.

Mr. Neumann is intensely interested in the work of the modern painters, and his lectures showed an intimate knowledge of the subject. In dealing with a subject such as modern art, he addressed an audience which as a whole, knew little or nothing about the technique or purpose of most of the paintings.

The lecturers were conducted with the use of slides which showed the typical works of the authors which were discussed. He devoted the greater part of his lecture to a discussion of Cezanne, Van Gogh, Matisse, and Rousseau.

The idea which Mr. Neumann emphasized was that paintings can be real art without being photographic. The mere fact that we are not pleased by many of the paintings does not necessarily mean that they are not artistic. The purpose of modern movement is one which is hard to grasp. The artists paint their feelings and emotions more often than they paint things which they see.

The exhibition and the paintings were very instructive. They furnished an unusual opportunity for the students to learn something about a field which was utterly unfamiliar.

MAY DANCE A SUCCESS

The May hop this year, according to the general consensus of opinion was one of the best dances held here at Kenyon in a number of years. The Dance committee is to be congratulated on the manner in which the dance was handled. Pierce Hall lighted only by the soft rays of spot, the Agnews band, was indeed a mecca for dancers. Everyone seemed more than pleased with the entire week-end and it is sincerely hoped that future dances will prove to be as much of a social success as was this one. The attendance was the best that we have seen in some time, and a good number of Alumni and friends of the Kenyon men were present. Plans have been nearly

WEST WING LEADS IN INTRAMURAL RACE

Tennis And Baseball Still To Be Finished

Intramurals reached a new high this past year. An extraordinary interest was shown by everyone in nearly all the intramural games. Touch-football, a new sport, aroused a keen rivalry between the divisions and should take the place of speed-ball next year. Speed-ball was not too popular, and this year may be its last unless a very definite desire is shown for it by the men.

Basketball was the most popular of the intramural games. Good crowds were present at nearly all the games, and even the charging of a small admission did not keep the student body away from the semi-final and final tilts. Volley ball retained its usual popularity, and this year saw the fall of Middle Leonard after a long supremacy. They were decisively beaten in the finals by West Wing.

Another new sport was brought in to the intramural league this year and that was swimming. Using the Mt. Vernon Y. M. C. A. pool two times a full swimming meet was run off with everything

PHI BETA KAPPA HOLDS INITIATION

Dr. Arthur Cole Speaks On A Challenge To Puritanism

Three Men Initiated Into Honorary Fraternity

On Tuesday, May 29, the Phi Beta Kappa Society of Kenyon College initiated three under graduates from the Junior class. These men were, Robert W. Macdonald, Robert C. Reid and Leonard W. Swanson.

The initiation ceremony was followed by a banquet in the Commons at which several of the members of the Society gave impromptu speeches.

The initiation address was given by Dr. Arthur C. Cole of Western Reserve University. This lecture was open to the public. The subject which the speaker chose to treat was one of exceeding interest. Professor Cole has spent a great many years studying the history of the years between eighteen hundred and nineteen hundred, in this country, and he chose to treat the great challenges to Puritanism which were so important about the middle of the nineteenth century. After briefly sketching a background for his lecture, he showed some very interesting pictures which were clipped from contemporary periodicals. These pictures showed the changes in styles, customs, and amusements which, in themselves, struck at the very foundations of the strongholds of Puritanism. He went on to show how the development of a movement for physical development among the American people did much to overcome the Puritanical influence which had here-to-fore been so prevalent. His lecture showed a complete knowledge of his subject and was intensely interesting.

The initiation of three new members into Phi Beta Kappa brought the number of undergraduate members up to six. A student must have completed at least five semesters of work with an average of 1.5 or better before he is eligible for consideration by the Society.

SCIENCE CLUB HEARS PAPER BY DR. JOHNSON

The final Science Club meeting of the year was held in the Middle Leonard parlor May 31 with three guests present in addition to the regular undergraduate and faculty members. Members and officers were elected for next year, and Dr. Johnson read an excellent paper on the place of science in Liberal Arts education.

Albert Shorkey was elected President of the club for next year. The other officers are to be elected next fall. New members were chosen chiefly from the associate members of the past year. Plans were laid for the work of the club next year.

W. MUNGER WINS INTERCOLLEGIATE SINGLES TITLE

Rick And Fox Of Case Win Doubles

Bill Turner Reaches Semi-Finals

Warren Munger, Dayton tennis ace, has just completed his first season of competition in the Ohio conference net circles, and has won singles championship and a record nine successive victories in matches.

Without being extended he blazed through four matches, in the conference tournament without losing a set, finally defeating Charles Olds, of Oberlin, 5-6, 6-2, 6-2, to capture the title. He had a run of seven straight games before Olds netted his first game to make the count one-all in the second set. But after the score was deuced at two games apiece Munger chalked up the next four games and the set with his baffling change of pace, and drop shots which kept Olds racing to the net. And the same was true of the third set which ended in the same fashion.

It must be said, however, that Olds experienced the stiffest competition of the two. Munger disposed of his first opponent, Rick, of Case, 6-0, 6-0; then stopped Wiley, Wooster No. 1, 7-5, 6-0; and took Stahl, of Toledo, 6-1, 6-0 in the semi-finals. On the other hand, Olds defeated Bertollette, Wooster, 6-2, 6-4, and then faced a tough rival in Fox, of Case, who won the first set 7-9 before he was bested 7-5, 6-4. In the semi-finals Olds met Bill Turner, Kenyon's surprise man of the tournament, who came near spoiling Olds' chances then and there. Olds won out in five sets 6-4, 6-1, 2-6, 4-6, 6-3.

Olds, who plays a defensive, chopping game, found in Munger a man who out-played him in every department of the game, and who wouldn't play his volleying game. Munger took the offensive, and ran Olds all over the court chasing placements.

Right on Munger's heels came Turner who blasted opponent after opponent out of his way in three matches the opening day, in addition to playing two long doubles matches with Justice Johnson, losing out to Fox and Rick, of Case, in the second round 6-4, 6-2. Turner played 119 games of tennis the first day; yet, carried Olds through five sets the next morning.

Rick and Fox won the doubles championship taking Webb and McCroden, of Baldwin-Wallace, in a close match 13-22, 5-7, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3 decision.

In the consolation affairs, Botts, of Otterbein, defeated his teammate Robinson, 9-7, 6-3, to win the singles, while Stahl and Monto, of Toledo, defeated Wooster on default to win the doubles.

There were ten colleges represented, and 19 players participated in the singles.

A LAST WORD

Probably no editor ever adheres closely to one editorial policy. Not that he may ever contradict himself on subjects connected with his policy or policies, but simply that all the editorials he writes will not bear one way or another on the particular things that his policy concerns. Thus it is with the editorials in the Collegian for the past year. We have complained hither and yon about various things. In some of the these we are still interested, such as the singing at Kenyon. But the most serious point that we have tried to make this year has been one of fundamental importance, the purpose and "raison d'être" of a school like Kenyon.

We have already dealt at length with the place and purpose of a small liberal arts college from the standpoint of intellectual interests and activities. We tried to show that the ideal of education includes four years of liberal arts training followed by specialized training in business, medicine, law, engineering, or whatever field chosen by the individual as his profession. This liberal arts training is designed to give the student a general view of the world and its institutions, of the various fields both of professional endeavor and of scholarship. The idea is that the most important thing in life is living. Therefore everybody capable of benefiting by it should be given the opportunity to investigate the various intellectual pursuits that man has developed, such as Literature, Philosophy, and Mathematics, as well as look over the various fields, he must choose from his life's work.

However, there is much more to a college, especially to a small college, than the intellectual side. In what might be called the social side of a college we again find many reasons for the existence of a school like Kenyon. The student body is much more unified than is possible under any system in a larger school, and by virtue of the fraternities being located in the dormitories, is more unified than is possible with a larger school where there are fraternity houses. It is also better for the non-fraternity man, of which there are fewer, incidentally, that it is in most schools. The fact that the whole college eats together in the Commons also adds to this spirit of unity. Without houses, the fraternities are relieved of a serious burden without losing the good features. The location of Kenyon also adds a good deal to the general spirit and to that unity of the student body that we have mentioned before. The mere fact that the campus contains nothing but college buildings, and equally important, the fact that there is no city surrounding the campus, leaves the college with the feeling that it is a college, almost a community in itself, rather than a part of a city.

After writing these reasons why we favor so strongly a college like Kenyon, we realize that they are better felt than expressed. However, it is likely that the expression we have tried to give to them will suggest what we really mean to at least those who have seen enough of the school to appreciate the reasons.

The reason the purpose of Kenyon and its place in the educational world is important editorially, rather than merely philosophically, arises out of the fact that there have been many changes in Kenyon this year. The Collegian has publicly approved of many of these changes, but is completely opposed to any tendency to change the features of Kenyon that, to our mind, make it as desirable a school as it is. This tendency of change in the wrong places is noticeable chiefly in the curriculum, for there has been threat of adding to the liberal arts subjects some that do not belong in this kind of a school, and it is this that we have been concerned within our editorial policy during the past year. In other words, we approve of the main features of Kenyon as they are now, and are against changes in those features. Without taking any credit for it, we might add that so far there have been none.

SOPHITICATION?

The Editorship of a paper such as the Collegian presents a problem which is interesting as well as difficult. The fact that the Collegian must appeal to alumni as well as undergraduates is the chief source of the difficulty. The attitude of the undergraduates toward the Collegian during the past few years has been another source of difficulty. Whether a good thing or not, it has been very hard to capture the interest of the students because of an attitude. It seems to us that this attitude is one of self-sufficiency. This is undoubtedly a good thing to a certain extent, but we wonder if this attitude is not sometimes carried a little too far. Four years in a liberal arts college are intended to give a man a certain sophistication. Sophistication has been defined as "doing nothing and doing it gracefully." In this sense it is with doubt an undesirable quality.

It seems to us that there are certain things in connection with life at Kenyon which should be taken seriously. It is true that too great an emphasis can be put upon tradition, and that many things which once were an essential part of Kenyon life have become outmoded, but certain other traditions should still occupy the places in the life of the College which have so long been theirs. The singing in the Commons and the fraternity singing on the Middle Path are perhaps the most important.

These two customs are essentially Kenyon. As a small college, Kenyon has developed a certain distinctive atmosphere which we believe is unique. It is our opinion that some of these traditions are largely the cause of this atmosphere. The group singing is representative of the student body as a whole, while the individual groups of men, singing on the Middle Path, represent another phase of Kenyon life.

Altho these two customs are established in a firm position, due perhaps to tradition, perhaps to habit, it must not be taken for granted that they will continue to remain among us. We must do our part in helping to preserve them. We must take care that they are passed on to future classes in the form in which we receive them upon entering Kenyon. This cannot be done without an effort. It cannot be done by doing nothing gracefully. A "don't care" attitude can be fatal in that something which has been an essential part of Kenyon life may die out.

THIS YEAR IN SPORTS

The year 1933-34 has not been what one might call a successful year in the sporting annals of Kenyon. The football team hampered by major injuries experienced a rather mediocre season, and did not live up to the hoped for pre-season predictions. The basketball team met some rather disappointing defeats, but altho they finished the season with more losses than wins, flashes of great possibilities showed themselves. The squad of seven will be reduced by graduation to four, but with some very fine material coming up from the freshman class, there is no reason why Kenyon should not turn in a championship team next year. With the coming of Spring three varsity teams went aboard. Baseball fared very poorly and ended the season with nothing at all in the win column. The Tennis team was the only Kenyon team to finish the season out of the red. Led by Warren Munger and Bill Turner the team played fine tennis all season. The golf team fell far short of last year's record. With two sophomores playing on the team we can perhaps attribute the lack of victories to inexperience but this seems hardly probable.

The track team this year likewise finished up sadly in the rear. Kenyon entered in three meets and the Big Six. The best showing was made at the invitational meet at Oberlin. Kenyon failed to qualify a single man in the Big Six.

It can be readily seen that it was a poor year in sports but let us look forward and not behind. Next year is another year and with it Kenyon will rise and show her true strength on gridiron, court, diamond, green and cinder path.

completed for the June Dance to be held in the Commons on Monday evening, June 18.

The dance committee has not decided definitely on a band as yet but hopes to know definitely by the end of the week. At the present time the orchestra that seems most probable is Harold Greenameye. It will be remembered that this was the band that proved so satisfactory in the fall.

The committee has decided to levy a charge of two dollars and fifty cents per couple, to be collected at the door. This arrangement was made because there were some men who, knowing that they would not come to the dance objected to a general college assessment.

DRAMATIC CLUB MEETS

Make Plans for the Coming Year

The Dramatic club of Kenyon College after a rather feeble start at the beginning of the year has blossomed into quite a formidable organization. Under the guidance of Dr. Ashford and the work of Frank Jones, the Club gave two plays in May. Due to the lack of time and money it was impossible to carry out the plans that had been made for a June Play. Next year the club hopes to give at least three performance by Easter and to cap the year with a big play to be given in June.

There has been a distinct and definite interest shown in dramatics and it is hoped that this interest will grow with the new year. It is interesting to note that the men who were the most active were, in the majority, freshmen and sophomores. This is a good sign for the future of the society, because these men will be able to carry on, so that in a very few years the Dramatic Society will assert itself and become a very prominent member of the Kenyon family of organization.

KENYON DROPS ITS INITIAL HOME CONTEST

Loses To Ashland 14-6

The hard-hitting Ashland team slashed three Kenyon pitchers for fourteen runs, while the Purple was only gathering six, and thus ruined Kenyon's initial home contest of the current season.

"Buzz" Elder was the first Mauve flinger to adorn the hill-lock, but a murderous assault drove him to cover after he hurled one tortoise round, in which Ashland tallied four times by virtue of two tremendous triples, a long single, and a trio of walks.

"Chuck" Dhonau toed the slab and a whale of a home run, immediately greeted by a single in the second frame, and was which carried far to the railroad tracks in deepest of left field. By this time Kenyon fans had chalked up another loss, and were beginning to wonder when supper would be ready. But there was even worse to follow.

Ashland remained dormant until the fifth, when two long doubles and a muff by Price added three unearned markers to the Ashland total.

With two on base in the sixth, Garling helped his own cause with a four-ply swat, and Dhonau retired to second base, where the heat of the battle was not so intense.

Critchfield took his place and responded nicely, letting Ashland down with three hits in the last three rounds, and sending eight of them back to the bench by the whiff route.

In the interim Kenyon had scored six times. The first run crossed the platter in the first, when Swanson's single scored Mason, who had strolled and stolen second.

Three more were added in the third on hits by Price, Swanson and Dhonau, and Keener's wretched play on Harter's roller.

Price's infield hit scored another in the fourth, and the sixth tally was realized in the fifth, when Dhonau and Johnston pulled a snappy double steal, with "Hal" denting the rubber.

Then the Purple was done for the day. Price's third hit of the day, in the sixth, was Kenyon's last blow, and from then on it was just a matter of playing out the string.

KENYON NOSED OUT BY MUSKINGUM

The Kenyon-Muskingum conflict on May 22 brought the home season to a disastrous close for Kenyon, as they dropped their seventh straight game, 12-16.

All the Kenyon scoring was packed into the first three rounds, capped by a luscious third inning, in which eight tallies scampered across the plate in a desperate effort to raise the Purple out of the maiden class.

Eight hits, a walk, and two errors enabled Kenyon to bat completely around in this inning, and blast from the hill Ed McCandlish, who severely walloped them earlier in the season at New Concord. But a hurler named Scroth took the mound, and stopped them cold for the last six frames, allowing no hits and only eight men to reach first base, seven of them on walks.

As the fourth frame started Kenyon held a 10-3 lead, but the Muskies pecked away at Elder's offerings, and took the lead in the eighth by one run.

Johnny Tritsch was the batting star for Kenyon, pounding out three clean bingles.
