This example includes the central portion of what appears to be a <sup>hat,</sup> Triangular Elongated Headdress Puffy Bonnet Vandy without the flange - it is impossible to be sure. There is a thin raised band along the base of the headdress which probably flange into a flange. The prepared portion of the Puffy Bonnet is plain. The punctated sphere cap is mounted well below the <sup>margin</sup> headdress as the face has been lost and the resulting fracture patterns reveal the junction between the solid headdress & the hollow face. The lateral margins also appear to have been solid as well.

Verbal Description:

The sample is a small fragment of a thin, translucent, yellowish-brown material, possibly a piece of wood or bark, with a rough, fibrous texture. It is irregular in shape and appears to be a fragment of a larger object. The color is a pale yellowish-brown, and the surface is uneven and fibrous. It is approximately 1 cm long and 0.5 cm wide. The fragment is located in the center of the sample. The fragment is a
