Comments: This is a very large hacha, much larger than usual. Smoothing lessens with distance from the blade edge. The side edges are rounded, rather than being marked by facets. The edge of the blade is crushed. One side of the blade has a large chip, smoothed overall. The other side of the blade edge has 2 large chips, not at all smoothed out or finished. Each of the ~~blade~~ flat sides have almost completely smoothed-out chips, which left indentations in the surfaces. The butt end is concave and still shows unsmoothed peck marks. The side edges are smoothed, but still textured to the touch. Color is a pale green with only a very few, very tiny dark green flecks.
