Full Description:

Solid fragment of a hollow, anthropomorphic figurine with a rectangular flange--probably from a headdress. The flange includes a rectangular field with 4 horizontal grooves on the exterior margin and a plain, slightly convex field to its interior.

The ends of the flange are thicker, giving the impression that it is curling forward. There is a grooved field below the flange--possibly hair or part of a grooved triangular flange. The interior surface is very coarse, and there is a dark

Interior-shifted firing core. No paint or slip.
