VERBAL DESCRIPTION:

This is a whole ~~partial~~ mano. If a partial mano, it is an end-~~a midsection~~

The material is: vesicular basalt — other (describe or name) —

In cross-section, this item is: round ~~oval~~ — square — rectangular — multi-sided . If multi-sided, how many?:

How many working surfaces/areas are visible: 2

The working surfaces/areas are: smoothed only ~~show use-related polish~~ — can't tell.

The working surfaces/areas extend: completely ~~partially~~ across the item as preserved.

The working surfaces measure (do each separately): 6.5 x 7.9cm; 8.2 x 12.1cm

The end-to-end shape of this mano is: equal in width throughout — smaller on the end(s) than in the middle. If it is larger in the center, give the dimensions or diameters:

Minimum:

Maximum:

If an end is preserved, the end shows: pecking — grinding — striations — a smooth surface — a polished surface — can't tell.

The sides show (mark all that are appropriate): pecking — grinding — striations — smoothed areas — polished areas

If the item is broken, the broken end is: sharp ~~is somewhat sharp, but appears eroded — has been battered or chipped.~~

If the end seems to be battered or chipped, this seems to be the result of: accident/depositional conditions — deliberate use — cannot tell.

Item is: not drawn — drawn (where?)

Comments: very heavily used on one side, less so on the opposite face.
