Ground Stone Hatche. This small hatche is not completely preserved but there is a fair amount of it left. It is broken off toward its middle. It tapers as it goes out from the end. The narrow end is somewhat flattened and smoothed. The sides are also slightly flattened also. The entire surface is smoothed and polished to a shiny black finish. On the end where it is broken there are some small white veins or inclusions and the stone seems to have a slightly greenish tint.
