This is a fragment of a scored censer lid. The paste is medium in texture with some visible inclusions of white black + mica. It is kind of orangy tan in color. The non scored surface is smoothed but otherwise untreated. The scored surface looks to have been smoothed before being scored and is darkened (black) probably from use. The incision seems to have been done with a single pointed instrument while the clay was still a little soft but not wet. The incision is not very deep in some cases almost looking like grooving.

The incision runs both horizontally and vertically creating rectangular areas of uneven area.

There seems to be no consistency in which directions the lines were drawn first.
