A broken piece of a ladle censer handle. The paste is medium coarse and kind of sandy. There are many visible inclusions both on the surface + at the breaks. They vary in size from very small to the size of a very small pebble. They also vary in color. Most are white, some are black, beige or clear. The broken ends are very worn and there is a large dark gray to black firing core. It is a broad and narrow strap handle fragment that widens or flares out a little at one end as if it is about to join to the body of the censer. One side of it is less thick or maybe just more weathered than the other.
