Thicker covering surface towards            convex surface of fragment. Thinner covering surface on            bottom. Two edges (which are parallel to each other) are            smooth and relatively flat. These run perpendicular to            length - convex surface - Two other edges expose the            fine core and indicate means. One is fairly well worn -            the other is still rather jagged. Both breaks are rather            diagonal and are visible and when looking at the back side -            one parallel - opposite to the convex side. Separately the            two areas where means have occurred is a strip of            finished ceramic surface. fine paste -            color - 5YR 6/4 - light reddish brown.            length - 3.9, width - 3.0, thickness - 1.5 	36
