

who opposed the league. He strongly opposed an organized campaign or propaganda, should effort be made to bring the league plan into Ohio. It must be met and combated most successfully by individual argument and appeal.

The talk given by Mr. McFadden was throughout of much interest. He spoke in a conversational tone and addressed himself directly to his audience. He could easily, as he said, have occupied the entire afternoon in describing the operations and various ramifications of the league, in North Dakota.

At the close of his talk, Mr. McFadden was given a unanimous vote of thanks by the members of the chamber.
