Academic dean becomes associate provost

By Lauren Johnston
Senior Staff Reporter

The office of the Academic Dean has been changed to that of an Associate Provost, who will be a reporting position, held by a faculty member for a three-year term.

The reorganization is Provost Katherine Will’s response to a request by President Odón that she restructure the position of the academic dean so it would more closely complement the focus of the provost’s office.

The intention is to tie these offices more closely together and integrate their work with college, associate provost Robert Bennett, formerly academic dean, said, “This name change indicates that the two office functions together and that the jobs of the provost and academic dean are closely tied.”

“Fifteen years ago the position title was associate provost and was changed to academic dean. That change reflected an independence in the office,” Bennett said. This reallocation of terms is intended to present the two offices as collaborative partners. Of the changes, Bennett said “We all have a better idea of what’s going on. There is more communication now between the two offices.”

Another key facet to the reorganization is the internalization of the associate provost position. Academic deans were selected by means of a national search. Prior experience with Kenyon was not necessary.

The position of associate provost will now rotate every three years among Kenyon faculty members. Robert Bennett will serve as Academic Dean until June 30, 1998 and then another Kenyon faculty member will assume the position.

“By making the associate provost’s position a three-year, rotating one, faculty members will be even more closely involved in the administration of the college,” Will said. “The new arrangement would also provide another leadership opportunity for faculty members,” she said.

There have been some added responsibilities to the provost and associate provost as well. “It will affect the whole college in a lot of ways,” Bennett noted. The provost will maintain responsibility for academic affairs relating to faculty, curriculum, instruction and see PROVOST page 2.

By Kristen Filippic
News Editor

Claiming that “things are moving in the right direction,” Vice President Albert Gore emphasized education and the economy while speaking at Ohio State University on Friday.

Jim Lynch, press secretary for the Ohio Republican Party, responded to the speech by saying “Al Gore doesn’t tell the truth in the way of a good speech.”

“We believe that we are in a period of dramatic change in the U.S. economy and in the world economy,” Gore said. “In the future, it is obvious that what you earn will depend on what you learn and on your ability and capacity to continue learning.”

Speaking to the crowd primarily composed of college students, including more than 40 Kenyon students, according to Will Federespeci ’99, president of the Kenyon Democrats, Gore highlighted President Clinton’s proposal to offer a $10,000 tax deduction to families with a family member in college. Gore claimed that this would ensure “that no American family is taxed on any money paid for college buildings.”

“Gore stressed financial aid programs supported by the federal government, including increased funding for Pell Grants and student loans. He criticized Republicans for supporting “an economic plan that would have increased the cost of every student loan by an average of $3000 per family” Gore described the Republican approach as “a kind of ‘you’re on your own philosophy’.

“They just have a different philosophy than we do and I believe their philosophy is different from yours, too,” he said.

Gore stressed the state of the American economy. He said that 10.5 million new jobs have been created in the United States in the past four years, the inflation rate is at its lowest point in 30 years, the poverty rate has decreased and more small businesses have been created.

Lynch said “Economic growth is only 3.3 percent right now which is the slowest of any time in the past hundred years.”

Gore also focused on the Clinton administration’s efforts to reduce government waste. “We have tried to take the principles that come from the best-managed businesses in a row while investing more in education and the environment and crime prevention because we have given up the task of reinventing government,” Gore said.

AROUND KENYON

Blood Drive Oct. 24 in Gund Commons

On Thursday, Oct. 24, Greek Council will be sponsoring Blood Drive in Gund Commons from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. Registration will be at the dining halls this week. Information about who can donate blood will be available at registration. Greg McCarthy ‘93 says that the Greek Council has had a “good response” to Blood drives in the past and the goal is to encourage the project. He thinks that it is a good way for the fraternities and sororities on campus to work on something together.

Publishing schedule announced

The Collegian will not publish an issue next Thursday, Oct. 17 due to October Break. Normal publication will resume the following Thursday, Oct. 24.

ICS offering installation of SNAP+ beginning Nov. 1

By Ben Bagocius
Staff Reporter

Information and Computing Service (ICS) is offering installation of the SNAP+ service beginning Nov. 1, enabling students to have access to Netscape and other programs such as Microsoft’s Internet Explorer in their residences.

According to Scott Siddall, interim director executive of ICS, the SNAP+ connection provides many advantages including a connection which is significantly faster than regular SNAP. Furthermore, Siddall noted that SNAP+ features graphics. The LYNX program on the VAX allows users to access the World Wide Web, but only displays the text of various topics. Because SNAP+ is more complex than basic SNAP, not every computer can be connected. However, IBM compatible and Apple Macintoshes can be hooked up. Regular SNAP is easy to install, while SNAP+ needs a card called Ethernet to function. Installing various computers with the Ethernet card includes opening the computer, positioning the card, and programming software.

Siddall said “The software that makes the Ethernet connection work is not as simple to install or maintain as Kermis, and this will require students who like to experiment with their computers to know more about their computer than before.”

The Ethernet card kit costs $70 to purchase and $30 to install. Siddall said that although the ICS staff is supportive of this new connection, the students who have this program installed should be willing to experiment and try with the SNAP+ connection so that they will better understand its diverse functions.

SNAP+ was available on a trial basis last year and was available to students living on the eighth and ninth floors of Campus Resi- dence. One student who tried SNAP+ last year, Karen Downey ‘97, said, “SNAP+ caused me a lot of problems last year because I had a simultaneously a standard system with some networking capabilities built in. I’m sure [ICS] learned from the trial period and things ought to be smoother this time.

Downey said that some aspects of SNAP+ were beneficial, such as the ability to print on any campus printer from her dorm room or using the Netscape on her personal computer. Yet, Downey said, “SNAP+ is great for those students who know a lot about their computer and networking already. However, to those students who mainly use their computer for word-processing and checking their e-mail, I would say, ‘Don’t bother.’”

Applications for the SNAP+ service will be available through Oct. 31.

Al Gore at Friday speech at OSUeres in America and apply them at long last to the public sector,” he said. “And it’s working.”

“We have been able to de-crease the budget deficit four years in a row while investing more in education and the environment and crime prevention because we have given up the task of reinventing government,” Gore said.
Harcourt Parish searches for new rector, search committee appointed soon

By Matt Bremner
News Assistant

Harcourt Parish, the Episcopalian community in Gambier, has begun the search for a new rector. Within the next six weeks a search committee will be appointed.

"Right now we are looking to define who we are as a group," said William Gail, senior warden of Harcourt Parish and associate professor of English. "These next six weeks are going to be a real test. We are a small group, mostly connected with the college. We are looking for someone to be responsible to the parish. We [the parish] feel it is important to have an Episcopalian church for students."

As senior warden, Klein is responsible for the church and administrative operation of the parish.

Rector is the Anglican name for a minister. "The rector performs religious services two to three times a week, he visits those who need spiritual help and he performs counseling about marriage," Klein said.

"Over the summer I wrote a letter to both Bush and Clinton, trying to get in touch with them. Since it was so close to being completed, I thought it would be great to have it completed, and it was a good thing for the historical society to do," Richard said.

"It seemed like a relatively easy way to make a significant contribution to the college and get publicity for the society," said Richard.

Although Clinton's response came four weeks later than Bush's, Richard was more satisfied with his reply. "Bush sent a card with his signature on it. Clinton sent us an autographed photo. Both were addressed to the historical society," said Richard.

Originaly, the autograph collection was the personal hobby of William New Leon, Bishop of Ohio. He had left the signatures bound in two books: the first one of a group of 28 signatures, and the other of important figures during his lifetime.

Described on a front page of the presidential autograph book, Leonard wrote, "This is but the collection of an amateur. When I was a boy in school at Stanford, Connecticut, and Andover, Massachusetts, during Civil War vacations, I began this pleasant task. Nearly everyone of these autographs came from the camp or field where these distinguished men were fighting. The collection is therefore unique and more than merely interesting, and as such I give it gladly to the library of Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio. (signed) William A. Leonard, Bishop of Ohio." The passage is dated September 19, 1930.

This body of the collection, containing the signatures of Lincoln's autograph appears to have been cut from a money order or a draft, according to the note Leonard joined beside it. He received the cutting from a general of whom he had never heard, though the name is unpronounceable.

After Leonard's death, various Kenyon alumni, as well as Thomas Greenhalde, the college archivist for many years, contributed to it. The second volume contains the signatures of over 100 cabinet officers, politicians, and statesmen. Also included are the great generals of the Civil War: Farragut, Grant, Hooker, Johnston, Lee, Smith, Meade, Sheridan and Sherman.

Provost: Offices to integrate their work

academic records, but some re- maining details will be redistilled between the provost and associate provost.

Bennett noted that one of the objectives in hiring a new provost was to advance an evaluation of the Kenyon curriculum.

"We've systematically evaluated the curriculum in a long time. We were looking for someone to organize an evaluation addressing the question of what a liberal arts curriculum should look like," in relation to that task, Provost Will be a member of the Curricular Policy Committee, a job previously delegated to the academic dean. In addition, the provost's duties include the oversight of interdisciplinary programs, preparation and distribution of the faculty meeting agenda and supporting materials.

In addition to his duties to the oversight of academic standards, Associate Provost Bennett sits on the Faculty Affairs Committee and supervises faculty development and teaching initiative grants and the administration of external department reviews.

Will be enthusiastic about the reorganization and said, "I'm confident that these changes, taken together, will make our operations more effective as well as more efficient."

By Barbara Lile
Senior Staff Reporter

"Given that we remain in litigation, the college's attorneys reminded me with some frequency that any information from the suit is not appropriate," President Robert A. Oden Jr. said last week in regards to the lawsuit filed against Kenyon by the Kenyon

Oden, ADs remain mum concerning lawsuit over rights to East Wing

The Kenyon Collegian

Thursday, October 10, 1996

By Michelle Santangelo
Senior Staff Reporter

The Lady Rosse Historical Society acquired the autographs of Presidents George Bush and Bill Clinton, completing the presidential autograph collection in the Kenyos College Archives. The society scheduled the presentation to the archives for Common Hour today.

The planned presentation will not be a formal one, according to

LOCAL RECORD

Fire Alarms

9:12 a.m., Oct. 1, Fire alarm at Woodland Cottages due to an activated smoke detector from showing.

6:34 p.m., Oct. 1, Smoke detector sounding randomly in a room in Old Kenyon. No smoke was found.

Vandalism

10:20 p.m., Oct. 3, A fire extinguisher was partially discharged in a lab in Old Kenyon. No smoke was found.

1:01 p.m., Oct. 4, A vehicle outside of Wilson Apartments was egozed. No damage was found.

The witness to the vandalism was unable to locate the witnesses. A report was filed with the Knox County sheriff's office.

Theft

1:00 p.m., Sept. 23, Unlocked bicycle reported stolen from the New Apartments area.

9:15 a.m., Sept. 24, Bicycle reported stolen from outside of society co-founder, Andy Rich- mond '96. "All of the previous signatures are in a bound volume. We're probably going to present them to the Chapel (the special collections librarian), and then spend some time flipping through the old ones," Richard said.

"Over the summer I wrote a letter to both Bush and Clinton, trying to get in touch with them. Since it was so close to being completed, I thought it would be great to have it completed, and it was a great thing for the historical society to do," Richard said.

"It seemed like a relatively easy way to make a significant contribution to the college and get publicity for the society," said Richard.

Although Clinton's response came four weeks later than Bush's, Richard was more satisfied with his reply. "Bush sent a card with his signature on it. Clinton sent us an autographed photo. Both were addressed to the historical society," said Richard.

Originaly, the autograph collection was the personal hobby of William New Leon, Bishop of Ohio. He had left the signatures bound in two books: the first one of a group of 28 signatures, and the other of important figures during his lifetime.

Described on a front page of the presidential autograph book, Leonard wrote, "This is but the collection of an amateur. When I was a boy in school at Stanford, Connecticut, and Andover, Massachusetts, during Civil War vacations, I began this pleasant task. Nearly everyone of these autographs came from the camp or field where these distinguished men were fighting. The collection is therefore unique and more than merely interesting, and as such I give it gladly to the library of Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio. (signed) William A. Leonard, Bishop of Ohio." The passage is dated September 19, 1930.

This body of the collection, containing the signatures of Lincoln's autograph appears to have been cut from a money order or a draft, according to the note Leonard joined beside it. He received the cutting from a general of whom he had never heard, though the name is unpronounceable.

After Leonard's death, various Kenyon alumni, as well as Thomas Greenhalde, the college archivist for many years, contributed to it. The second volume contains the signatures of over 100 cabinet officers, politicians, and statesmen. Also included are the great generals of the Civil War: Farragut, Grant, Hooker, Johnston, Lee, Smith, Meade, Sheridan and Sherman.

Provost: Offices to integrate their work

academic records, but some remaining details will be redistilled between the provost and associate provost.

Bennett noted that one of the objectives in hiring a new provost was to advance an evaluation of the Kenyon curriculum.

"We've systematically evaluated the curriculum in a long time. We were looking for someone to organize an evaluation addressing the question of what a liberal arts curriculum should look like," in relation to that task, Provost Will be a member of the Curricular Policy Committee, a job previously delegated to the academic dean. In addition, the provost's duties include the oversight of interdisciplinary programs, preparation and distribution of the faculty meeting agenda and supporting materials.

In addition to his duties to the oversight of academic standards, Associate Provost Bennett sits on the Faculty Affairs Committee and supervises faculty development and teaching initiative grants and the administration of external department reviews.

Will be enthusiastic about the reorganization and said, "I'm confident that these changes, taken together, will make our operations more effective as well as more efficient."

By Barbara Lile
Senior Staff Reporter

"Given that we remain in litigation, the college's attorneys reminded me with some frequency that any information from the suit is not appropriate," President Robert A. Oden Jr. said last week in regards to the lawsuit filed against Kenyon by the Kenyon
By Michelle Santangelo
Senior Staff Reporter

The Drug and Alcohol Program Board will sponsor a variety of substance-free events in conjunction with National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week beginning Oct. 20. DAAPB will refer to the group of events as Wake Up Week.

"We (DAAPB) are the non-alcohol event board, everything we do, we do without alcohol," said Roth Schaffer, substance abuse counselor.

Saturday, from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m., there will be an open gym at the fieldhouse for DAAPB's kick-off event for the year.

DAAPB, in an effort to increase education, will have information tables at various campus locations. It will also distribute fortune cookies, which in place of a fortune, will contain a statistic about alcohol or drug use. They also plan to have a t-shirt sale promoting the event. The shirts will cost six dollars.

Schaffer said, "It's about awareness, it's the key; awareness means responsible, moderate consumption of alcohol." Schaffer defined moderate use as consumption by people of legal drinking age in a non-excessive manner.

Starting with an all-student e-mail this Sunday evening, Schaffer hopes to drop a few reality hits of reality on the campus community. Monday, there will be a social gathering at the Red Door offering balloons, coffee, and free cookies.

"We want to find out how we can increase the social scene on campus without increasing the drinking, or the high risk behavior, we want to see if our freshmen have told us," said Schaffer.

Schaffer will be coordinating an interactive talk concerning women and alcohol and other drug use in the Crozier Center from 10 to 11 p.m. on Tuesday.

A panel discussion on the topic, "Can Kenyon students be responsible?" will be held on Wednesday, followed by a day of stations on Thursday, with Kenyon statistics, national statistics, and possibly short, informative films set up around campus.

The main events will occur over the weekend, beginning with a party featuring the band Immunity being held in Lower Dempsey on Thursday. A second open gym night will follow on Saturday from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m.

"We're trying to get the high-risk that's been going on. We would like people to support our alcohol-free events," said Schaffer.

Roosevelt High Wake Up Week. DAAPB plans to host a series of events to keep the substance-free social scene moving.

"We're hoping to have monthly open gym nights," said Brian Gibney '96, a DAAPB member.

An 80s night, an all-day first, street event, movies and games have been proposed to members of the board. However, no further events have been finalized.

Colleges begin charting courses for students

ELLENBURG, Wash. (AP)—An old college tradition is dying at Central Washington University and other colleges nationwide: the mad dash by freshmen to sign up for courses, many of which have been full long. But instead, Central is offering freshmen prepackaged menus of courses. The concept in one form or another is cropping up at many schools. But CWU is unusual in that it has used the technique to register nearly all of its 1,109 entering students, said William Swann, director of admissions and academic advising services.

The university created about 65 different schedules, most based on general academic areas. Problems of similar interests take courses with the same group of 20 or so students who choose the same schedule.

School officials say the plan helps CWU anticipate course demand, and gives new students a better chance to study with their classmates. After fall quarter, however, freshmen register on their own.

Administrators hope the initial help will encourage students to stay in school and to graduate in a timely manner.

"Providing stability on entry is the key," said long-term student success, Swain said. "We'd rather frontload the university's efforts than clean up the mess at the end.

It might just work for students like Erika Kaein, fresh from Moses Lake High School.

"You're so nervous," she said of choosing classes.

"I don't know what to take." Washington colleges are also taking steps to help students graduate in the standard four years.

Washington State and Eastern Washington university- wide guarantee entering freshmen a bachelor's degree within four years, with the schools removing roadblocks such as difficult enrollment in required courses.

The Evergreen State College's curriculum is designed around "learning communities," in which groups of students and faculty spend entire quarters exploring a variety of subjects around a common theme. At the University of Washington, new students have the option of enrolling in freshman interest groups, known as FRGs. They may choose from 60 groups, most of which include English composition, math and science courses, along with courses of specific areas of interest.

This fall, about 1,300 freshmen are participating which is nearly a third of the entering class. At CWU, not all students were able to get the courses they wanted by registering in groups. But although they may add drop courses, relatively few have done so, Swain said.

"I charged to pick a schedule that was not too early in the morning and the week before it was too late in the afternoon," said freshman Pat Cochran, a graduate of Seattle's Ballard High School.

"I didn't pick my own classes. But I can't really argue with it.

Swain said Connell will track this year's freshmen to see how quickly they fulfill requirements, what kind of grades they earn and whether they graduate on time.

CORRECTION

The battle proposes new sentiment article in the Oct. 3 issue contained incorrect information. The lead paragraph should have expressed Senior Class President CoCo Battle's desire to see a multicultural coalition represented on Student Council. Battle did not say "these students feel that student government does not serve them; they feel compelled to form their own groups."
The Kenyon Collegian

Letters to the Editors

"Any precautions should be taken to keep campus safe"

This letter is in response to the article entitled, "Writers ask, "WhatMakes a Kenyonite?,"" which appeared in the October 3rd issue. For the record, I would like to say that I was not consulted in any way, shape or form before my name and that of residence were quoted in question were published in the the paper. That, however, is beside the point. If I was ashamed of this, then I would have made it in the first place.

In answer to the question about what the "strange man" did, I can only say that it is inconsequential. I suspect that if this man were to break into someone's room, or assault or harass someone, his being "short and stocky, widdershins brown in a hazzard cut" and even "brown hat, brown shoes. And brown beard. And send out ALLSTUs. And I find myself, like any person in my shoes, looking for someone to blame it on."

A shuttle into the Columbus airport costs $80 for one person and is divided by the number of people after that. There were four people on the shuttle I took in from the airport when I first got there, and I had the job, I had the money. I was the moochee, not the moocher. People asked me for rides, and here the driver wasn't too quick on his man and I had just arrived at college and didn't notice I was ripped off five bucks. Back then I didn't care. Now I've got airline reservations for October Break and was stock offering various unprofitable favors to anyone I knew with a car. And unlike many unlucky souls, I found a ride. Two in fact. But judging by the number of ALLSTUs I'm guessing many of you still haven't.

So I've come up with a plan. I've had six weeks to think about this, and not many very places to go so it's pretty well though out. First I'd like to see some kind of a system to contact e-mail and Faxes of information. If you wish to buy a ride from someone or a ride you can call a phone number and a date and time and you're able to buy a seat.

Kenyon is someone who either attends Kenyon College or is employed by the college in some capacity. Bydefinition, everyone else falls into the "non-Kenyon" category. To answer your original question, Kenyonite is someone who either attends Kenyon College or is employed by the college in some capacity. Bydefinition, everyone else falls into the "non-Kenyon" category. The divorce issue is a trap that I'm not going to fall into, with e-mail or hallmates by wrap yourself around their leg and try to have them to be taken. You can never be too cautious. And, if you're looking for someone to blame it on the front page of the paper. It shows a definite concern for such matters of public safety. When you have a campus as open as ours with unsecured and a number of students who tend to leave their doors unlocked, there are certain precautions that can be taken to warn and safe guard students should be taken. You can never be too cautious. And, if you're looking for someone to blame it on the front page of the paper. It shows a definite concern for such matters of public safety. When you have a campus as open as ours with unsecured and a number of students who tend to leave their doors unlocked, there are certain precautions that can be taken to warn and safeguard students should be taken. You can never be too cautious. And, if you're looking for someone to blame it on the front page of the paper. It shows a definite concern for such matters of public safety. When you have a campus as open as ours with unsecured and a number of students who tend to leave their doors unlocked, there are certain precautions that can be taken to warn and safeguard students should be taken.

The opinion page is a space for members of the community to discuss issues relevant to the campus and the world at large. The opinion expressed on this page belongs only to the author of the article. To submit letters to the editor, members of the community are encouraged to express opinions through a letter to the editor. The Kenyon Collegian reserves the right to edit letters for length and clarity. The Kenyon Collegian cannot accept anonymous or pseudonymous letters. Letters must be signed by individuals, not organizations, and must be 500 words or less. Letters must address a current or recent event in the Journal or prior to publication. The Kenyon Collegian reserves the right to not publish any submission.
AT KENYON

CONCERTS
Saturday: Leslie Buros, flute. 8 p.m. Rose Hall
Tuesday: Malcolm Bibson and Amner Byelma, sponsored by the Taylor Series. 8 p.m. Rose Hall

LECTURES
Oct. 23: "DNA Bending by Phantom Protein" by L. James Maher of the Mayo Foundation. 7:30 p.m. Biology Auditorium.

THEATER
Oct. 30: "Campaign '96: The Good, The Bad, The Ugly" by Ken Bode of Depauw University. 7:30 p.m. Rose Hall.

EVENTS
Friday: Homecoming '96 Bonfires, sponsored by SAA. 9:30 p.m. Old Kenyon Lawn.
Tuesday: Study Abroad Fair, sponsored by Office of International Education. 11:30 p.m. Peirce Lounge.

FILMS
Oct. 24: Red Cross Blood Drive. 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Ginn Commons Lounge.

OFF THE HILL

CONCERTS
Friday: Black Crowes. Palace Theatre, Columbus.
Melissa Etheridge. Gund Arena, Rose Hall.
Six String Concert Series featuring: The Nields and Peter Mulvey. Columbus Music Hall, Columbus. (614)464-9044
Sunday: Phat Jam. Gund Arena, Rose Hall.

LECTURES
Melissa Etheridge. Gund Arena, Rose Hall.
Six String Concert Series featuring: The Nields and Peter Mulvey. Columbus Music Hall, Columbus. (614)464-9044

EXHIBITS
Westner Center for the Arts. "Hall of Fame Mirrors: Art and Film Since 1945." Through Jan. 19 (614)292-0330
Columbus Museum of Art: "Flash: The Art of Photography." Recent work by 14 Ohio photographers. Through Jan. 19 (614)223-6801

H ave yo u WALKED DoWNN MIDDE L PATH tO D AY?

If you're a student or faculty member, you probably have. But if you're a parent, a alum, or simply a friend of Kenyon, you probably haven't. The College can take you down Middle Path and to every other place on campus with our extensive news, sports, features, and arts & entertainment coverage. For a year's subscription, fill out the form to the right and mail it - with $30 - to our business manager. Can't you hear the gravel crunching under your feet already?

The Kenyon Collegian
Musicians to take Kenyon back to Beethoven's time

By John Sherck
Staff Reporter

If you find yourself in Rossie Hall next week, you may fear you've fallen into a time warp. Although the music will sound like Beethoven and Haydn, you may have never heard them sound quite like this.

That's because you will be hearing them played on the same type of instruments that the composers heard them on when violincellist Anner Bylsma and fortepianist Malcolm Bilson perform on Tuesday at 8 p.m.

These baroque musicians, who often perform together, play period instruments, which have a sound very different from the modern cellos and pianofortes. The instruments, though fairly new, are built according to instrument specifications from the baroque period. The violincello has "a very glassy sound. Modern instruments just don't vibrate that kind of color," said Visiting Instructor of Music Dane Henschel, coordinator of the Taylor Concert Series.

Henschel added that "the repertoire of early composers... (were written) for different instruments than those of today." The fortepiano has many qualitative differences from the modern piano, more commonly known as the piano. Musical instrument manufacturers build the modern pianos for volume of sound and a balance of sound over the entire range of the instrument. In contrast, the fortepiano produces a softer sound, and has an uneven balance amongst the sections of the keyboard.

Composers of this period wrote for these instruments and their particular tendencies. "The fortepiano brings out the color of Mozart and Haydn much better," remarked Henschel.

Anner Bylsma is a Dutch cellist in a panel discussion on Friday at 4 p.m. in Olin Auditorium focusing on "The Work at Hand: Ohio Craft Traditions" from the Gambier Folk Festival which will be on display in Olin Gallery through Nov. 10.

Burrs to perform in Rosse Hall

Internationally-known flutist and composer Leslie Burrs will perform in a recital in a panel discussion on Friday at 4 p.m. in Olin Auditorium focusing on "Burrs" opera project "Vulcan," which mixes history and myths to illustrate slave life on Southern plantations. On Saturday at 8 p.m. in Rosse Hall, Burrs will perform original works with Kenyon instrumentalists and musicians.

A.L.S.O. to host coffeehouse

Allied Sexual Orientations will host their annual coffeehouse on Saturday at 8 p.m. in the KC. The event will feature live music and original poetry by Kenyon students and professors, a raffle offering prizes such as discographs at Philander's Pub and jewelry and an auction. Tickets are $1 in advance and $1 at the door.

Horn hosts weekly coffeehouses

The Horn Gallery, Kenyon's student art gallery, hosts a weekly coffeehouse on Wednesdays beginning at 8:30 p.m. Poets, musicians and observers are encouraged to attend.

Fond memories of Nirvana

By Aaron Warshaw

Nirvana's From the Muddy Banks of the Wishkah

For those who were there, the sight of Kurt Cobain and Nirvana on the stage of the Paramount in 1994 is a memory that is forever etched into the minds of those lucky enough to have been there.

"Smells Like Teen Spirit" even has a sense of freshness and urgency that betrays new life into what is probably the most overplayed song of all time.

Looking back, interesting and revolutionary music has always been made outside the mainstream, but unfortunately most of us were never exposed to anything other than what MTV and the radio fed us; that is, until 1991 when Nirvana suddenly became the mainstays.

The benign and commercialized form of pop music is stripped away through ringing guitars and stomach-wrenching screams, and for a brief instant the world had opened up and everything seemed possible.

Muddy Banks brings us back to that unique moment in time and frankly leaves me asking: What went wrong?"
IF YOU GO
What: "Graceland" and "The Dumb Waiter"
When: Friday and Saturday, 8 p.m.
Where: Hill Theater

IF YOU GO
What: "Graceland" and "The Dumb Waiter"
When: Friday and Saturday, 8 p.m.
Where: Hill Theater

In need of a laugh? Beyond Therapy to the rescue

By David Shargel
Diversions Editor

With skits, monologues, and videos involving anything from dead grandmothers to inanimate objects that walk, Beyond Therapy will grace the stage of Rose Hall with their first performance of the year on Sunday at 9 p.m.

While other major events under our belt we're very confident in what we're doing. We will be trying new things out in this show; that is, new ways and new ideas in our performing of comedy said group member Dan Fishbach '98.

In Sunday's show, the group will pursue new trends, including the addition of three previously recorded videos. During the taping of one of these, cast members died a life and dumb filming on the streets of inner city Columbus. The results, however, should be entertaining members of the cast.

"We have definitely stepped away from traditional skits and more towards freer themes. I think our group is gaining strength in its writing, which is helping us tremendously," said Beyond Therapy Coordinator Cory Claffey-Koller '98.

Planning and writing the sketches are a collaborative effort: Individual members present their written work to the group, at which point it is modified or rewritten using the advice and ideas of all members.

For this show, Claffey-Koller concluded, "As far as exciting surprises, I can tell you that at one point Dan Fishbach will not be wearing a shirt and I think that one of us is going to show up on stage."
Ambassador provides glimpse into Macedonian life

Former Ohio resident Acevska describes condition of women, business environment in Balkan state

‘Macedonia is liberal but it’s still basically a patriarchal society, so the fact that I have this position is quite an achievement for women’s rights’

— Ljubica Acevska

By Grant Schulte
Staff Reporter

Ljubica Acevska, the Republic of Macedonia’s ambassador to the United States, visited Kenyon last Thursday to talk to students about her country, its people, and her role in international affairs.

Born in Macedonia (then a part of Yugoslavia and known as the Socialist Republic of Macedonia), Acevska immigrated to America when she was nine, settled in Mansfield, Ohio, and later, attended Ohio State University where she studied international business and East-West relations.

It wasn’t until 1991, when Yugoslavia was splitting apart, that Acevska became involved in Macedonia’s affairs. She said, “I met a diplomat who was in the Yugoslav foreign service, originally from Macedonia, and I recommended to him that Macedonia open a representative office in Washington to work on establishing relations with the United States. (Macedonian) President Gregores asked me to see him, and he hired me, and he had me meet with the Prime Minister and the President of the Parliament, and in all of them I recommended an office be established in Washington. They accepted it and asked me to be the representative. I thought I would do it for a few months until they sent someone over. Well, five years later, I’m still here.”

Acevska spoke about the role of women in Macedonia from a unique viewpoint: she is one of only 10 female ambassadors to America.

She said, “Macedonia is liberal but it’s still basically a patriarchal society, so the fact that I have this position is quite an achievement for women’s rights.”

Women’s roles in Macedonia are similar to those in the United States and much of Europe, she said, because large strides have been made since independence five years ago.

“Where we were part of Yugoslavia, women had a lot of opportunities, but at that time women tended to be in more traditional roles such as in the medical field. Since we have become independent, women have become more involved in the political field.”

Acevska attributes these changes to the huge transition the country has made in the last few years.

She said, “The whole society has changed, and that’s why the role of women has changed. It is more democratic, more market-oriented. You’re more free to think what you want to think and say what you want to say.”

Acevska stressed Macedonia’s unique, peaceful existence in a region that has for centuries been devastated by ethnic conflict. As bitter fighting raged in Bosnia, Macedonia left Yugoslavia without bloodshed, allowing the Yugoslav army to take its equipment with it.

“Macedonia’s past five years of independence have proven we are a model of peace,” Acevska said. Macedonia is the only country in the world where United Nations peacekeepers have gone to keep peace rather than restore it. There are now about 1,000 United Nations Protective Forces stationed in Macedonia.

Acevska said Macedonia’s peaceful attitude will hopefully attract business investment to a country that is almost devoid of natural resources. She cited her opportunity to participate in Macedonia’s improvement when she spoke to Kenyon students, saying, “Certainly getting a good education is vital to a successful career, but the other point is to pursue your goals. Anything is possible. If you have a vision, pursue it with great vigor.”

Kenyon student to teach Wagnerian Opera workshop

Webber hopes to ‘show people why Wagner is important’ to history of art, 19th century

By Jessica Dole
Staff Reporter

Somewhere between the symphonized pop of ’80s rock and the wondrous plod of grunge today’s college is reaching out to meet opera. Aaron Webber ’97 has decided to change that at Kenyon.

Webber will instruct a four-week long workshop during October and November focusing on famous German composer Richard Wagner’s major work, “The Ring of Nibelungen.”

“The Ring” is composed of four operas. Webber said, “The Ring” is Richard Wagner’s meditation on the degeneration of Western Civilization. In his four-part cycle into the human condition, he tries to show why we pervert our political, economic, social, and religious world. It is a work of art that begins with the creation of the world and ends with the fall of heaven.”

His internship placed him in charge of educating 500 high school students about the opera.

“I’ve done this before,” Webber said.

Webber’s workshop will focus on Wagner’s place in art, but it will also touch on other significant issues surrounding his work, like anti-semitism. “Wagner felt Jewish art was detrimental to German art, but he was in no way a pro-Aryan, racial anti-semit. That’s a misconception some people have of the work we will discuss,” Webber said.

Other relevant themes are "woman as world-redeemer" and "redemption through self-sacrificing love."

According to Webber, “Wagner shows that humility as a whole chooses power over love and by doing that we lose what is most human about us.”

Webber said the seminar’s main goal is "show people why Wagner’s workshop will focus on Wagner’s place in art, but it will also touch on other significant issues surrounding his work."

Webber is interested in German opera prompted him to instruct a full-semster workshop his sophomore year and intern with the Seattle Opera Association during that summer.

Wagner is important in understanding the history of art, and, more than that, the history of 19th century philosophy and politics. Wagner began writing ‘The Ring’ as a socialist tract; slowly, as he aged, it became more of a philosophical, spiritual discussion. People find that the motifs in ‘The Ring Cycle’ can be used with whatever else they’re studying."

Wagner’s concept, Webber noted, was for music to represent ideas, and, in fact, become an actor within the drama. Wagner stressed that every part of the music was integral, even simple scene changes. And so, with such profound ideas incorporated into one work, Wagner could not compose a solo powerful enough to conclude his opera. Therefore, he ends it with an orchestral overture, enticing the viewers by inviting them to their own interpretations of the work.

However, just before the ending is Brunnhilde’s 20-minute solo performance. After 15 hours of "The Ring," her solo signifies the end of the work.

And, as Webber would remind you, "It’s not over till the fat lady sings.”

Each of the four operas within "The Ring” will be shown on a Sunday afternoon. These viewings are open to the public.

For further information regarding the workshop, Webber can be contacted by e-mail at WEBBERAB.

RANDOM MOMENTS

1. What do you think of fire safety checks?
   Photos: Megan Lewis
   1. I think they are just an excuse for security to search rooms.
   2. Allow freshmen to park closer to dorms, like in the parking lot behind Gund.

2. What do you think Kenyon should do to improve the parking situation?

   Dave Houston ’00
   1. I think they are just an excuse for security to search rooms.
   2. Allow freshmen to park closer to dorms, like in the parking lot behind Gund.

   Shaka Smart ’99
   1. They are unfair. All my illegal paraphernalia gets in the closet.
   2. Freshmen should not be allowed to have cars.

   Alex Goldstein ’98
   1. It’s a way for the school to make some extra money.
   2. Make more parking lots. Point blank.

   Amelie Escher ’97
   1. What are you thinking?
Student music groups looking for more practice space

By John Jordan
Staff Reporter

Many student music group members are expressing displeasure with Kenyon's limited practicing space. Most of these people belong to bands that use noisy electric instruments which require ample storage space. Instead of using a Kenyon-owned room for free, many student bands leave campus for privately owned places which accommodate their practice needs for a price.

Gambier Postmaster Charles Wooldson supplies forms to students who express interest in renting one of the four rooms in the post office basement. These rooms, a fallout shelter for turkeys long ago, used to be privately owned and rented out for $7 a month. But times have changed. Being a government building, the post office owns the rooms and Wooldson does not set their price or negotiate with students. Instead, John Quinn, a contracting officer in Washington D.C., sets the rent which is currently a yearly upfront fee of $7 per square foot.

Dan Fishbach '98, a Kokosinga, said, "We have been extremely satisfied with the prices and the room until recently, when the decision was made to double our rent to $150 a month." The Kokosinga's yearly room bill is $1800, Fishbach said.

Dan Lubell '97, whose band "Vals uses one of the rooms, called the price "a joke." Lubell said he tried to bargain with Quinn but he felt like Quinn was saying, "I look, kid, do you want the room or not?"

The room, Lubell said, is "outrageously grim with mildew, (has) only two outlets, no windows, and a freezing temperature." He added that during the weekends, the heat is turned down.

Quinn said, "It's a fair market deal. The post office has heating, lighting, and air conditioning costs which cannot be subsidized." He added, "I have received nothing in writing from the school for the students, and it is open for negotiation."

Catherine Levergood, the coordinator of campus events scheduling, said Kenyon can provide space for student bands.

"If there's a way we can help, then that's what we're here for...I have only one request this year for space for a student band. There is no reason why bands can't apply for funds."

Associate Dean of Students Cheryl Strode added, "We'll do our best to accommodate student needs, but my understanding is (the bands) are seeking a space...where they could leave their instruments without having to carry them back and forth. We don't have the luxury of having a space like that. Everything here has multiple uses. We'll do what we can to help in campus events. There are options, but you need to be flexible."

Associate Professor of Music Calvin Calvi said, "All the student bands make an important contribution to the college and suggest that the college as a whole address the issue of space for such student-initiated groups."

Daniel Nelson '99 and Neville Handel '99 of the band Bluefoot added, "If there were a place to play or campus, we would use it, but there's nothing so we have to pay $600 a year."

Fishbach said, "If the school could afford it, they should build a practice space for student performing organizations." Lubell added, "It's the school's obligation to intervene; the post office rooms might be technically off-campus, but they really aren't. I think the school would want to get involved with something that deals with production and creative students."

Student alumni will host 74th annual Homecoming

By Maria Mohan
Staff Reporter

In 1923, a Kenyon student reporter described Homecoming Weekend as something intended to "create and maintain more enthusiasm and to urge our graduates to come back."

While the degree of enthusiasm in recent years has been questionable, with few people attending, the Student Alumni Association (SAA) will continue the tradition Friday night at 9:30 with a bonfire on Middle Path (between Hanna, Leonard, and Old Kenyon).

The Kokosinga, Chasers, and Owl Creeks are scheduled to perform at the bonfire. The SAA will provide smores and hot chocolate and promises to maintain the fire "as long as there are people to gaze into it," Karin Boerger, student chair of the Campus Events Committee, said.

Last year's attempt to revitalize homecoming weekend - AutumnFest - was unsuccessful. By trying to encourage alumni not to focus on athletic activities, but rather educational and entertainment events. We had almost a complete lack of success," Nancy Anderson, the new director of campus events, said. Anderson added that "Homecoming has never been a very traditional time" compared to Homecoming has never been a very traditional time."

- Nancy Anderson, Director of Campus Events

Reunion Weekend, a spring event.

Jo Ann Usher, associate director of the Office of Alumni and Parent Relations, said, "The things associated with Homecoming, particularly football, aren't as important to Kenyon alumni."

Usher explained that "the costs and time for mailing brochures (to advertise AutumnFest) for a low response just doesn't justify the event."

"The only other Homecoming-related event planned for this weekend is the hospitality tent with refreshments, which will be set up across from McBride Field following the football game vs. Denison at 1:30 p.m."

According to Boerger, increased student involvement may preserve the bonfire ritual to the future.

"Regardless of the low alumni attendance, the bonfire is a worthwhile night that unites the current students at Kenyon," Boerger said. "Student optimism and alumni apathy may transform future homecomings into student-oriented affairs."

P H I L A N D E R ' S  P U B
(Formerly known as The Stopper)

Great food, Good times.

Pizzas, Subs, Salads

All available for dine in or carry out.

Hours: 7 p.m. to 12 a.m. Sun - Thurs
7 p.m. to a.m. Fri - Sat
427 - 5361

HELP WANTED

Men/Women earn $480 weekly assembling circuit boards/electronic components at home. Experience unnecessary, will train. Immediate openings your local area
Call 1-520-680-7891

EXT. C 260

HAVE YOU BEEN IN THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE TODAY?

We're always looking for new members. Stop by or call today.

The Kenyon Collegian
Braves continue to roll in October

Atlanta Braves - It’s October and the Atlanta Braves are still playing baseball, something the defending World Series champions have been doing since 1991. And, they’re getting better at it of late.

After sweeping the Los Angeles Dodgers in three games in the opening round of the National League best-of-5 playoffs, eliminating the Dodgers 3-2 in the Series, the Braves have won 14 of their last 17 games during the postseason in October, including seven in a row at home.

The Braves have now made five consecutive appearances in the National League Championship Series, a record.

That streak doesn’t come as a surprise to Braves manager Bobby Cox.

"I expect to win. I’m pretty upbeat," said Cox. "The club is good. We’re always giving ourselves a chance to win."

"Surprising? It’s hard to do. I don’t care who you are, it’s difficult, but you try to rise to the occasion," he said.

Tom Glavine, who was 15-10 during the regular season, and pitched 6 and 2/3 innings of five-hit ball, allowing only one run in Saturday’s clincher, feels a bit different than Cox about the Braves’ October success.

"Unlike Bobby, I’ll admit that I’m surprised," he said.

"It’s hard to do. I don’t care how good you are, or how good you are on paper, you have to get this to time of year and a lot of crazy things can happen," said Glavine, who pitched one hitter over eight innings in Atlanta’s 1-0 victory over Cleveland in Game 6 of last year’s World Series, giving the Braves the title.

Their success began in 1991 when the Braves came from last-to-first to own the World Series title. The 1991 World Series clinches, this time losing in six games to Toronto. In 1993, the Braves were eliminated in the NLCS in six games by the Philadelphia Phillies. There was no postseason in 1994 due to the players strike.

Last season, the Braves eliminated in the opening NL, playoff series three games to one, swept Cincinnati in four games and eliminated Cleveland four games to two for their first World Series championship since coming to Atlanta in 1966 from Milwaukee.

SPORTS

Thursday, October 10, 1996

BASEBALL BRIEFS

OF THE HILL

Alomar’s antics overshadow exciting baseball playoffs

By Bob Dolgan
Senior Staff Columnist

The Baltimore Orioles’ shocking upset of the Cleveland Indians in the American League Division Series raised a number of questions for AL President Gene Budig and the current state of Major League Baseball.

Budig’s ruling on the Roberto Alomar spitting incident lies at the center of the controversy. Baltimore’s Alomar spat in the face of umpire John Hirschbeck while protesting a called third strike in Toronto on September 27. Budig slapped Alomar with a nine-game five-game suspension, which didn’t include the playoffs. Budig didn’t even fines Alomar or plan to take away his pay when he serves next year’s suspension.

Budig’s guilty decision allowed Alomar to play in the AL playoffs and did little to prevent a demoralizing incident like this from happening again. Alomar went on to almost single-handedly defeat the AL champion Indians with a game-winning home run to win the third of Saturday’s series-clinching Game Four.

Alomar’s performance was nonstraining. Budig’s weak decision is even more ridiculous when compared to his own track record and that of baseball’s other sports when dealing with similar incidents.

In May, Budig suspended Cleveland outfielder Albert Belle for five games for a second base running foul against the Baltimore Orioles. Bell hit into a double play. The suspension was later reduced to two games after Bell appealed.

Budig’s guilty decision allowed Belle to take the same punishment for good, hard-nosed baseball as for the sub-human act of spitting on another individual.

Budig’s slap on the wrist doesn’t even compare to the 30-game suspension Pete Rose received for the same sin of spitting on Paulcino. Having a far cry from the primeval act of spitting and Budig could

OUTFITS

By Fred Biermann and MacAdam Glinn
Staff Columnists

Tiger Woods: Woods won his first professional major in Las Vegas, at places, last Sunday, selling for $257,000. In the words of Davis Love III, who Woods beat in sudden death, “This is a new sheriff in town.”

John (Mac) haters you? Frisco, Frisco, as ice, freeze, threw for 31 yards on Sunday against the Dolphins. At Joe Robbie (we refuse to use Pro Player Stadium as we are not advertising here) looked like a University of Miami ram, the Seahawks came away with a 42-12 victory orchestrated by former University of Miami head coach, now Seattle coach, Dennis Erickson.

Yankees, Cardinals, Orioles, (except for Roberto Alomar who gets no love for his antics) and Braves: Great baseball was played by all. They’ve taken the first step, now who’s next?

Juan “Just walk me” Gonzalez: He hit five (how many?) five home runs against the Yankees even though the Rangers lost the series. (Fred must have left the room.)

Ohio State and Notre Dame: Who are the better teams than you, with a team that barely made the playoffs, the tone of the series at home? For Kansas State, A.A.A., is a way down in the Graf, Nadolny, or how you can base out a team which that stay out on division and finishes around 350, could get home-field advantage for the World Series.

Bernie Williams quietly leads New York

NEW YORK (AP) - Yankees center fielder Bernie Williams has been a key part of baseball’s most complete players. Despite playing in New York, Williams’ game has remained somewhat of a secret. It may be in part because of the center fielder’s unassuming personality.

“In today’s baseball where everything is always about how much money you make, I think Bernie would be the same player if he made $100,000 or $10,000,” New York manager Joe Torre said.

Torre said he didn’t have any preconceptions about Williams before he took the Yankees’ job. Once he took the job, Torre said Williams’ personality reminded him of....

The one that he reminded me of is Arthur Ashe, just the way he carried himself all the time, his quiet dignity,” Torre said.

“Bernie is a little different than other players. Some players with his ability show up. His ability shows off and he doesn’t.”

Indians fans find it hard to let go of 1999

CLEVELAND (AP) - Indians fans could still be seen around Jacobs Field a day after Cleveland saw in 1996 World Series hopes shattered by at least October.

About 20 fans waited outside the stadium Sunday hoping to get a BRIEFS page eleven.
Men's rugby squad falls to John Carroll; women have to be to play

The Ladies improved to 3-0 with default

By Doug Snyder
Staff Writer

It was a disappointing weekend for the Kenyon rugby teams, with the women winning only by default when the opposing team failed to show, and the men losing 17-0 on the road.

With 26 returning and 24 new ruggers, the women's rugby team is continuing simply because of numbers. Coopled this with a 3-0 record, including a 14-0 drubbing of Denison several weeks ago, and the absence of their opponent, John Carroll, at this weekend's game is perfectly understandable.

Even though, according to captain Tani Tate, "97, "Most people who came out for the team had never seen a rugby match, let alone played the game before."

Saturday the unbathed Ladies fell off against Denison once again.

Tate and Katie Honey '97 promised that Kenyon and Denison are pretty equal teams... we appreciate a good game this weekend.

Since it is an alumni weekend, he team is "looking forward to having some of our graduated players around to cheer us on," according to Honey and Tate. The ladies face the Big Red at 3:15 pm on Saturday.

While Kenyon's male ruggers due the same passion and enthusiasm for their sport, their 2-2 record and their many injuries have made their season less successful.

This past weekend they encountered a tough John Carroll team, which dealt them a 17-0 loss.

This Saturday the men's team will enter the screen against some ruggers of old. The traditional alumni game will give the team time off to rest and to revamp their mailing and recruiting, according to Scott Lauren '97 was the reason that they [John [97]] were a better team than us.

If the team continues to work on their ball control and can prevent game-losing penalties, then the team might be God's gift to rugby," joked Lauren.

According to Tim Treda '99, "although we really got beat up this weekend, it wasn't a true reflection on our team. We're better than that."

Said James Pomerantz '00, "We're really good, we just have to get our stuff together."

BASEBALL BRIEFS

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 86

On last weekend's travel to Balti-

demise, while the visiting Ohio University squad wasted 39, 37, of Cleveland, did he were there as a way of "saying goodbye and thank you. It's been a good ride. I guess I just wasn't ready to let go yet."

Baltimore had added insult to the already bad day before the Bobcats won the AL playoff series with a 4-3 victory over Cleveland.

Ladies fall to 7-4-1 after back-to-back losses

The women's soccer team dropped two tough games this week, but are looking to pull it together to face Wilmington this weekend. The Ladies current overall record is 7-4-1 and their conference record is now 2-2.

On Tuesday, the Ladies lost to Ohio Northern. The Bobcats scored 2-1 to Allegheny, followed by Amy Danner and Laurie Danner. Danner '98 had the Ladies' lone goal.

On Saturday, the Ladies fell on their home turf, 4-1 to Allegheny, with Amy and Laurie Danner and Emily Donovan '97 led Kenyon's scoring, but Amy Danner scored Kenyon's only goal last Saturday with 10 minutes left to play off a corner kick.

Tom Kane, Kenyon's coach, said, "There really isn't much to say about Saturday's game, no excuses to be made. Somewhere along the line, each and every one of us forgot what it means to be part of a team and to play a team sport. Hopefully, we can learn from the loss that Allegheny gave us and play together and we just may fall apart."

The team's total numbers have finally taken a toll on us," said tri-captain Ciscelle Milito, '98. "We played tired. We didn't have the energy or intensity to win the game. We are just going to have to look at

UPCOMING HOME SPORTS CONTENDERS

Saturday 12

WOMEN'S RUGBY VS. DENISON
RUGBY FIELDS, 1:00 P.M.

FOOTBALL VS. DENISON. MCBRIDE FIELD, 1:30 P.M.

Wednesday 16

WOMEN'S SOCCER VS. OHIO WESLEYAN
MAVEC FIELD, 4 P.M.

When asked about the Ladies' 9-1 romp over Allegheny College last Saturday, assistant coach Matt Oeveren replied, "They're not much to write about this one."

The Bobcats easily handled Allegheny, improving their record to 9-1-1 overall and 5-0-1 in the conference.

Chesney clamped a 9-1-1 win in the country, ahead of current-est Ohio Wesleyan, who is ranked 10th.

Tony Mohammed '97 and Andre Kalufanya '99 each had a pair of goals. Mohamed added two assists as well; he leads the team with 12 goals and six assists.

Kelsey Olufs '99, Mark Toves '97, Adam Stone '90, Isaac Gwinn '97 and Wayne Albyrn '97 all had one goal for the Lords.

Stone's and Albyrn's goals were their first of the season.

The Ladies are at Blantyre College this Saturday. Kenyon's next home game is October 22 against Wilmington College.
Field hockey knocks off Denison in Granville for first time ever

By Kristina Racek
Staff Writer

The Kenyon field hockey squad made history this weekend, pulling out a 1-0 victory over the Denison Big Red on Saturday. The Ladies' first-ever victory on Denison's home turf. The Ladies then went on to pull out a 3-0 victory over Oberlin College on the road last night.

In Granville, the Ladies came out strong with a goal in the first half by Gretchen Muller '98 off an assist from captain Lindsay Buchman '97 during the first 10 minutes of the game. Once the Ladies got the ball up the field, they were on the defensive, taking only 12 shots on goal for the rest of the game.

In front of the many parents and friends of the Denison team, Kenyon was able to play with composure. Kenya Reich '98 said, "I have never seen the Kenyon Ladies as a team play with as much composure as I saw against Denison. Every player on the field stood their ground against Big Red. The players never let their composure down and this enabled us to come away with a win." This composite allowed the Ladies to keep the ball out of the cage even while Denison pounded away at the Kenyon defense for much of the second half. The ball barely ever passed the 50-yard line, so intensively were the Big Red trying to score. Due to the Kenyon defense's fine performance, Denison was unable to execute on the 14 penalty corner opportunities they had in the second half. Paula Pizzuti '00 had a strong game with six saves. Ellen Pizzuti '98 earned accolades for her standout defensive performance. Phoebe Walker '98 described Pizzuti's play as "the best defensive play I have seen yet." With four defensive saves in the game—stopping balls that had gotten past the keeper—Pizzuti showed why she is one of the strongest sweepers in the league. Walker added, "It's unusual to have one defensive save during a game, but Ellen had four. She had a great game—her statistics alone show what an asset she is to our team."

Since losing their previous game at the Winnetka Tigers only 3-2, the Ladies were down on themselves. "We were starting to get really down," Pizzuti said. "With all the hard work that we put into our team, it is such a boost to win a big game."

The win was only the seventh Kenyon victory over Denison since 1970. "This win is big for us," Pizzuti said. "Hopefully the intensity from this win can help to bring us through every game."

Last night, the Ladies defeated the Yeowomen for the second time this season. Buchman scored the first goal, assisted by Reich, only five minutes into play. Kenyon did not score again until the second half, when Walker scored off an assist by Muller with 22 minutes remaining to play.

Carrie Moore '96 finished the game for the Ladies, scoring unassisted in a fast-break situation. Pizzuti recorded two saves for her fourth shut-out of the season. This weekend the Ladies travel to Ann Arbor, Virginia for the Sweetwater Invitational. They will face Sweetbriar, Villa Julie, and Randolph-Macon Women's College.

Lords force OWU to turn over the ball, but not a victory

Despite forcing six turnovers, the Lords fell 27-20

By Heather Binder
Senior Staff Writer

The Kenyon Lords football team lost a heartbreaker to the heavily favored Ohio Wesleyan Bishops, 27-20. The Lords, who dropped to 3-2-1 (2 North Coast Athletic Conference), return home to McBride Field on Saturday to host the Denison Big Red. Ohio Wesleyan, consistently ranked third in the NCAQ, is the current #3 team behind Allegheny and Wittenberg, and could only beat the Bishops 27-19 in their home opener.

The Bishops dominated last Saturday's game, holding the Lords 502-176 in total yards, but lost six fumbles, keeping the game close.

Lords Head Coach Vince Archini said, "You never know what's going to happen. We had a chance. We were down late and over every statistic but one: turnovers."

"We earned a lot of respect," said linebacker Todd Kitzminski '98. Kitzminski had his second strong effort of the season with 12 tackles (two for losses), five assists, a sack, a forced fumble, and a blocked extra point.

"People expected them to blow us out," he added. "It said a lot: we really should've won."

Archini said, "Kitzminkis comes to play every week, it was a terrific effort on his part." Kitzminski was named defensive player of the week.

Kenyon scored just over five minutes into the game when quarterback Terry Parmeelee '95 scrambled three yards for his second rushing touchdown of the season. The Bishops blocked sophomore Cory Munsterman's point-after try, but Derrick Johnson '97 blocked their punt two minutes later. Munsterman capitalized on the turnover, booting a 22-yard field goal to give Kenyon a 9-0 lead.

But the Bishops battled back, scoring two touchdowns to take a 14-9 lead at the half.

"We missed some opportunities in the first half," Archini said. "We didn't capitalize quite enough on [Ohio Wesleyan] mistakes when they were made."

After a Lords field goal, the Bishops scored a touchdown to extend their lead to 20-12 less than a minute into the final quarter.

But the Lords battled back behind Anthony Togliatti '99. Togliatti, who spent most of last season at linebacker before converting to running back, switched back to his old position during the game because injuries have decimated the Lords' starting defensive unit. With 8:25 to play, he recovered a Bishop fumble and returned it 97 yards for a touchdown.

"Togs moved to linebacker with no practice, I can't stay away from his savvy and game awareness," Archini said. Johnson, who rushed for 110 yards on 26 carries, tied the game 20-20 with a two-point conversion. He was named offensive player of the week.

Archini said, "We hung in there when everything was against us. The character of this team will serve us well before the season's over."

Coach Archini

owen Tyner

THIS WEEK'S RESULTS
SAT. AT OWU, L 27-20
CURRENT RECORD: 3-2-1 (2-0-1, NCAQ)
NEXT GAME: SAT. VS. DENISON

Thursday, October 10, 1996