Kenyon Hopes to Equip Dorms with Computer Centers

By Mario Oliverio, II

With a little luck and a lot of hard work for dormitories could be equipped with computer centers by the start of the spring semester. This interesting bit of news was leaked by Director of Academic Computing Tom Moberg.

Five tentative sites have already been suggested. In the south end of campus, the areas Manning and Bushnell have been cited as almost certain places for two of the five clusters of eight terminals. According to Moberg, Manning and Bushnell are "ideal sites (for computer centers) since each contains spacious study areas with adjacent" dormitories.

The more fifty spots for computer centers are on the north end of the campus. The dorms in consideration are Mather, McBride and Gund. Moberg said there is "more concern" about these dorms since the present study carrels would no longer be study lounges but computer-purpose places."

In order to cement the choices of computer sites Moberg, Assistant Dean of Student Residence Bob Tower-Larsen and members of a sub-committee from the Student Housing committee will walk through the north end dorms this week to make the final decisions. The five "computer clusters" will each consist of eight terminals, at least one printer and any additional furniture needed to hold the equipment. Moberg said that the computers to be added will be "just ordinary terminals connected to the central system. They can do anything that the computers at the Olm computer center can do."

Moberg points to several reasons for this increase of computer use. "Freshmen are more likely and willing to use computers, instructors are giving out more computer-related assignments and an increase of staff ready to help the computer-literate student."

Moberg could not give the total cost of this project since many variables (remodeling, labor) have yet to be figured out. The total cost of 40 terminals to be purchased is estimated to be around $18,000. Funding for this project, says Moberg, was made possible due to the increase in the amount of students this year.

When asked how soon the installation of the computers would take place Moberg replies, "As soon as possible. A good time to start would be over Christmas break, but there are too many unknowns."

Moberg concludes that he is "very much interested in getting student opinion about this. If students have any comments or suggestions they should see him."

Dean Tower-Larsen was equally enthusiastic about the idea when Moberg presented it to him last July. "It's an excellent idea. It makes the residence halls more attractive and paper writing more convenient."

Two problems could arise, however, when the completion of the computer centers arrive; vandalism and an increase of traffic through the computer-equipped dorms. Both problems, though, will have to be dealt with as they arise. Moberg and Tower-Larsen agreed that the centers would not be policed or locked at night. "We're optimistic that students will take care of the computers and see the value in it," says Moberg. Tower-Larsen adds that "here's something to put in the dorms to make [the students'] lives better. Vandalism should not be a problem."

Funds Expand Social Programming

By Vince Halloran

Last spring, Student Council, in anticipation of the change in the drinking age in Ohio, requested from the Senate the sum of $10,000 for the improvements in the quality and quantity of social events at Kenyon. The Senate, seeing it as an opportunity to enhance social programming, and to bring diversity to campus, agreed to the Council's request. The request was sent to President Philip H. Jordan Jr. and the Senior staff, where it was again met with enthusiasm. The request was approved by the Board of Trustees on Oct. 24. Beginning immediately, the money is available to the student body.

Student clubs and organizations, fraternities, residence living groups, etc, wishing to apply for money to fund a dance, party or any other kind of social, cultural or educational event should go to the Student Affairs Center and pick up an application packet for the Director of Student Activities. This three-page packet contains the guidelines for requesting money, an application form and a post-event evaluation form.

Guidelines concerning the specific character of the event are fairly broad, allowing plenty of room for creativity. The key guidelines are that all events must be open to the entire campus, admission must be free and all events must be non-alcoholic. Following these guidelines, student groups can receive up to $500 to fund a single event.

Applications for money must be submitted two weeks prior to the date that the event is to take place. Applications must include estimated cost of event, expected attendance and a detailed description of the event.

After each event, the sponsors of the event must return the completed evaluation form to the SAC. This form contains the total cost of the event. Director of Student Activities Vicky Bausinger, remarks, "It is important to know exactly what the money is spent on. If we can account for every cent, it is probable that we will get the money again next year."

Bausinger also expresses that by granting the $10,000, "the College is doing more for the students than supporting them financially."

The students saw a need to improve social life on campus, and wanted the responsibility of effecting that improvement. By granting the money for the students to do so, the College has shown its confidence in the students ability to manage social life."

The form also addresses questions as to whether the event was successful and how it could be improved. These evaluations can be saved, and used in planning subsequent events so that events will get better each year. Thus, there exists a great opportunity for vast improvements in Kenyon social life over the next few years.

Workshop Initiates Minority Hiring

By Chris Barnes

On Monday Oct. 27, a Workshop on Minority Hiring was held for members of Kenyon's faculty, staff and administration. The workshop was led by Assistant to the President for Equal Opportunity, Cathy Kreamer, and Bonnie Washington-Lacey, Assistant Dean of Admissions and Minority Affairs at Earlham College. The purpose of the workshop was to help make those involved hiring at Kenyon aware of the benefits and problems involved in the hiring of minorities.

The workshop dealt with minority hiring at two different levels and specifically for Kenyon. Washington-Lacey pointed out that it is important for any school that wishes to diversify ethnically to establish its reasons for doing so. It is not enough for a school like Kenyon to simply state its need or desire for diversity, the reasons for doing so must be firmly established. Kreamer pointed out that for Kenyon, or any other liberal arts school, lacking diversity deprives students of an important part of their education. Educators of the liberal arts do a disservice to the students if they are educated by only one group. Students need to be exposed to various points of view, and an institution that fails to meet this need is depriving students, she explained.

The next step for an institution is to establish a working definition of diversity. Kenyon's working definition, as taken from the Report of the Task Force on Diversity, focuses primarily on black Americans. Kenyon is seeking to make this a starting point and expand from it.

Hiring minority faculty and staff at Kenyon poses a number of unique problems. First, there is no infrastructure of support. Second, the Knox County area, within which the faculty must live due to the ten-mile rule, is 99 percent white. Of even greater concern is the absence of minority hiring at Kenyon.

A MINORITY HIRING page eight

Matriculation as a "second welcome to newcomers (the class of 1991), faculty and administration filled Rose Hall to welcome and participate in the Founders' Day Convocation and the Rite of Matriculation. The convocation commemorates and memorializes the founders of Kenyon College and all those, including professors and students, who have contributed to the establishment of Kenyon College as an institution of higher learning.

President Philip H. Jordan, Jr., in his opening remarks, described the Rite of Matriculation as a "second welcome to newcomers (the class of 1991) and formal induction to the college" as a process to "complete Kenyonization." Chaplain Foster gave the Founders' Memorial in which he spoke of Kenyon's founders and all those who participated in making Kenyon what it is today.

The address which followed was given by drama professor Harlene Marley. She spoke of the "typical" member of the class of 1991. Her profile was a humorous one in which
Crozier Center Discriminates

Women's Week is over, and once again the Women's Network has proven what a valuable asset it is to the community. The concerts by Toshi Regen and Geoff Morgan highlighted a week of informative and entertaining events, which was again extremely effective in bringing issues of gender to the front of the community's collective consciousness. We tip our hats to the vision and energy of the women who organized the week.

In the midst of all this good work, however, we fear there is a dark cloud threatening to undermine the efforts of the Network, a cloud maintained by the policies of the Crozier Center Board of Directors. According to a letter from this board to last year's Collegian editors (Feb. 12, 1987), the Crozier Center is run by an official policy of sexual discrimination. The letter states that the Center's policy reads, in part, that "While men may be guests of friends at the Crozier Center, the building is meant for exclusive use of the women's community."

The implication (confirmed by Board and Network members) of this clause is that men may be excluded from the building at any time on the basis of their being of the wrong gender. This is the definition of sexual discrimination, and as the College owns the building, it seems to go directly against any collegiate non-discrimination policies.

It worries us that this policy has remained intact for most of a year, and that at a recent meeting the Women's Network voted not to challenge the policy. In our minds, this is a case of a social justice organization taking a stance in favor of social injustice, which helps to undermine any claims that they or others make about the evils of discrimination.

While we agree that women need this space on campus, we are appalled by the wording that implies a support of outright discrimination, whether it is actually enforced or not. Surely the building may be reserved primarily for women (i.e. a women's meeting or gathering would preclude entry by any non-members) without making the final step of accepting permanent legalized segregation.

Additionally, while we understand that some women feel a need for a place that is a haven from men, we simply cannot condone the College paying for it. If this policy is acceptable, then we must also accept a College-owned building that is a haven for whites, where blacks may not enter because of the color of their skin.

Notice, we are not advocating that the building be changed into a student center, or even that it be changed at all. We are merely objecting to the offensive wording and implied meaning of the policy statement.

Likewise, we are not calling for a Men's Center with a similar clause. As two wrongs do not make a right, two discriminations are still each supporting discrimination in general, and that we simply cannot condone.

As sororities threaten to subdivide the women's community the way fraternities have divided the men's; as we fight for a more open campus where diversity is welcomed and our differences celebrated together, we fear that the Crozier Board has scored a crushing blow to justice, and against the Network's best efforts. We plead with both organizations to reconsider this policy before the Center's opponents use it to destroy all the progress they (and we) have made.

Written by members of the Collegian Editorial Board

Kenyon Collegian

Editor-in-Chief: Paul Singer
Managing Editor: Andrea D. Bovey
News Editor: Jenny Neiderhouser
Perspective Editor: Alexandra Walker
Forum Editors: Jocelyn Alexander, Garth Van' Hul
Features Editor: Sonya Dudgren
Sports Editor: Selden Longley
Production Assistant: Suzie Grant
Photography Coordinator: Chris Klein
Business Managers: Peyton Chapman, Tom Gallicchio
Circulation Manager: Michael Sering
Editorial Board: Elizabeth Bower, Saksia Hamilton, Ann Mammoser, David Paradise, Paul Singer, Garth Van' Hul, Alexandra Walker and Tony Zisberg

The Kenyon Collegian is published every Thursday while the College is in session, except during examination and vacation periods. The views expressed in the paper do not necessarily reflect the views of Kenyon College. Yearly subscriptions are $22.00; checks should be made payable to: The Kenyon Collegian. Our mailing address is Kenyon Collegian, Student Affairs Center, Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio 43022.

Diversity Getting Bad Press

To the Editor:

While I respect the fact that a newspaper's editorial column is largely a forum to vent opinions and not unbiased facts, I find it hard to accept opinions which show little reflection of the facts. I refer to the editorial of last week's Collegian, entitled "Why the Meeting Failed," having to do with the outcome of the forum on the issue of Diversity, sponsored by Kenyon's Board of Trustees, Gamblers Organization for Cultural Awareness, and Student Council.

That there was no follow-up article on the meeting surprised me. The turnout was thin but I noticed that many if not all of the editorial staff were there. Surely one of them could have thought to submit or assign someone to an article, and help with the cause of diversity by bringing the issue home to those who did not attend due to the World Series, the folk festival, the "relaxed" public, or the scourage of midterms, instead of airing the cause with unbridled cynicism.

The editorial in no way substituted for an article. It never mentioned anything public about the forum, and was written mainly by someone who had left hallway through forum. The assumption that the meeting was fallacious. Mr. Davis of the first acknowledged the problem of diversity in the campus, but said that "money was no problem," subsequently encouraging a school on its quest for qualified minority students and faculty. The Chairman of the Board of Trustees reacted favorably to a suggestion of instituting exchange program with universities in Third World countries, mainly for promoting cultural awareness, but only there were other favorable liaisons.

See MCCABE page eight

Sororities Need Equal Opportunity

To the Editor:

As one of the women organizing a national sorority at Kenyon, I have paid close attention to the letters and articles printed in the Collegian during the past few weeks. I feel that many important issues have been raised, but that the most important issue has only been briefly mentioned. This is not an issue of "are sororities right for Kenyon," but rather a question of the role of Greek life at Kenyon. Out of the nine organizations recognized as fraternities by the Administration, only two offer membership to women, and one allows women to become social members, but most important is there is not one that is exclusively for women.

According to the National Pan-Hellenic Council, the first "sororities" were called, and some still are, "women's fraternities." Sorority was a word coined to make the distinction between men's fraternities and women's fraternities. In the Student Handbook, it states that the IFC believes the fraternities offer opportunities that are unavailable to the independent student. I should be clear to everyone that these opportunities should be offered not only to only or coed fraternities, but also to a total only organization.

If one feels it necessary to question the role of these women's fraternities at Kenyon, I should do so by questioning the role of the entire fraternity system. A group of women wishing to organize a fraternity should in and can not be denied their equal opportunity by those who feel that "sorority" is fundamentally different from "fraternity." The only difference is that of content and in time is the fact that we wish to serve.

Sincerely,
Amy Currier '89
Sorority Purpose Statement

The two sororities which embody the objectives and goals of our group are Kappa Delta Rho and Kappa Alpha Theta. These are two of the oldest and strongest sororities in the country. Both place an emphasis on good scholarship, community service, and high personal standards of conduct.

Once a national sorority has been chosen, and women have had a chance to learn about the group, interested women would then be invited to a more formal event for a pledge service. A chapter consultant would remain with the group so that the colony would have someone from the national to consult with and advise them.

After the installation of the colony, the chapter consultant would live in the community for one to three years until they became an active chapter of the national sorority. There is also a provincial director of the chapter who would work directly to ensure that the requirements of the national sorority are maintained. Specific national policies for new members have not yet been decided as we must be in accordance with thePan-Hellenic Council, Kappa Alpha Theta, and the College's administration, and other parties involved. However, we would like our rush to be separate from the fraternities and would prefer a spring rush.

Selection of new members must also be in accordance with the regulations established by the Pan-Hellenic, which requires it to be a mutual selection process. It is in no way an exchange of race or religious affiliation. It will be in accordance with the College's admission policies. Membership selection is based upon several factors including a minimum grade point average, high personal standards; general congeniality; a demonstrated interest in group work such as leadership, responsibility, and honors; and recommendations and references from alumnae of the SORORITY page eight.

Oliverio and McGuire Rebut Hyde

To the Editor:

Well, here we are again, taking up another highly controversial issue in the form of an unsolicited letter to the editor section, but this time with another purpose in mind.

This misive is in response to Mr. Hyde's misguided rebuttal to our own, spotty, proceptive letter published many, many moons ago.

Mr. Hyde freely admits "not having actual read" the original article that this whole argument was founded on. What then can we pass judgment on us without knowing the whole truth? Oh, we see, he "assumed" what the intent of the original letter was. He must be a mind-reader. Well, Mr. Hyde, guess what we're thinking now?

At least the other response to our faction-mobilizing letter was clear, factually, and fair. Mr. Hyde's criticisms were based on "appearances" and "assumptions", and neither did he point out an unmet goal. He also contradicted himself by accusing our personal attacks when he too took part in mudslinging.

By his own admission, the Kenyon community is tired of this ongoing editorial conflict; so we wish to express a trueful heartfelt apology to ourSolidarity opponents, and our celebrity status, for this is our last letter.

A Dissenting Opinion

In dissenting from this week's editorial, we would like to start by saying that although the editorial is bound to upset many people, we do believe it calls to attention an important issue, one that needs to be addressed.

Our concern is that our society, like many others, does not seem to believe that no cause, no matter how noble and legitimate, benefits in the long run, from uncritical acceptance. This is to say that we agree that the "exclusive-clause" in the Crozier Center's policy is one which begs for explanation and/or justification.

Moreover, our reason for dissenting from the editorial is that we believe that this policy can be justified. It seems to us that the major point of contention may be the very concept of social justice invoked in the editorial. We wish that social justice was as simple and straightforward as the writers of the editorial seem to think. They seem to believe that the simple application of general rules (like that of non-discrimination) across the social spectrum is the way to attain and maintain social justice. This is not an unusual view. It is, in fact, rather typical of liberal thought.

In our opinion, such a set of rules is very effective in maintaining justice in a setting in which all participants start with equal footing and equal access to the various power structures. But this is not the setting in which our society and any theory of social justice; it is to be worthy of its name, must take into account the existing power structures and relationships of the society to which it applies.

Clearly, one of the most pervasive and unjust power relationships in our society is the relationship between the sexes. By and large, women in our society do not have an equal economic, political and social footing to that of men. The ultimate goal is to attain equality there. We believe that this kind of power structure, which general rules of fairness can be applied across the board (and it would seem, ostensibly at least, that this is our aim), may be the case that certain groups of people need to be granted certain temporary privilege. Just what these privileges can and should be must, of course, be the topic of careful and continual scrutiny.

It would be presumptuous of us to try to provide the Crozier Center with a justification for its policies, and this is not our aim. Rather, our aim has been two-fold; to point out that questions of fairness and social justice are rarely, in reality, so simple as to be subject to (simple and general rules, and to agree that the policy of the Crozier Center does demand discussion and justification. Such justification, we are confident can be provided by the Crozier Center itself.

Written by members of the Collegian Editorial Board

Reader Objects to Duck Imprinting

To the Editor,

In the past you have been bombarded with letters defending sororities, fraternities, or oh yes, cheerleading. The matter at hand here is of a lighter subject but I believe just as important as the pleas of the sorority girls and oh yes, the cheerleaders. I am speaking of the new biology experiment that is going on this fall. No longer are Kenyon students earning their extra credit points by rating the looks of random people but now we see our little fine feathered friends are gaining the extra points.

It is not uncommon when walking to class to see a duckling waddling down middle path — and it is not because a dog is chasing him but it is because with his two inch legs he is trying to keep up with his/her "mother". We think that if it is difficult to walk down middle path at any pace faster than a stroll, can you imagine being a duckling (I bet though, a duckling would enjoy middle path after a rain storm more than the student wearing his favorite holey loafers)?

Sincerely, Jennifer Toper

Red Cross Thanks Kenyon Donors

To the Editor:

The Chase Society of Kenyon College, sponsored the thirty-three golf tournament on Wednesday October 7. Those students who gave assistance from this organization were: Diana Oliger and Sharon Willson. The total of one hundred and twenty-eight units. Of those, one hundred and twelve units were productive. There were twenty-eight first class. Those reaching gallon levels were: Raymond J. Grill — 2 gallon, Douglas L. Kazuczek — 1 gallon and David A. Schwarz — 1 gallon.

The Knox County Chapter of the American Red Cross wishes to thank all those who participated in this bloodmobile.

Sincerely, Susan Moreland

Quo Vadis

"Any sin that's enabled us to survive centuries of war, death, pestilence and famine can't be called deadly.

LUST
Where would be without it?"

—Ad campaign for seven deadly sins. Harper's, 11/87
Morgan’s Music Attempts to Include Men in Feminism

By Tara Jones

Geoff Morgan, an urban folk musician, gave a concert at Sund Community last Thursday. His performance, and the brown bag discussion he facilitated on Friday, were two of the several events which were organized and sponsored by the Women’s Network for Kenyon’s third annual Women’s Week.

Thursday night was the third time Mr. Morgan has sung at Kenyon in the past three years. It was, therefore, not surprising that many in his audience of students, faculty, and other non-college members of the Gambier community, were familiar with his music. In fact one young boy made his appreciation of Morgan’s talents known by making a request: “The Penis Song.” Mr. Morgan played his young fan’s favorite tune after encouraging his audience to risk embarrassment and join him on the chorus which went like this:

It’s my penis, my penis
You see how much has truly come between us
My penis, my penis
Let’s start again, and this time be friends.

Most of the audience took the challenge although some female participants took the liberty of changing “my” to “your” and open to the public.

Although most of Geoff Morgan’s songs are about sex roles, sexual politics, and many societal problems these under-specific cultural standards create, not all of them were as lighthearted in the telling as was “The Penis Song.”

Expressing his refusal to live according to the sex roles he had been taught to revere, Morgan sang “Not In My Name” a powerful statement of strength and desire for change with the following chorus:

Not in my name, the lie is shown.
Not in my name.

Insufficient Involvement Affects Women’s Week

By Joy Eckstine

Women’s Week is a week of education and celebration; education in women’s history, literature, music, and accomplishments; celebration of the experience of being a woman. For those who attend the events offered, this can be a time of reaffirmation. In general, Women’s Week was successful, although not all of the events were well-attended.

Among the best-attended events were the two folk-singers: Toshi Reagon and Geoff Morgan. This was Morgan’s third visit to Kenyon and he drew a faithful audience back, accepting requests for some of his better-known songs. As a singer of men’s music it may not be clear to all why he was a performer sponsored by Women’s Week, but he tried, through his personal example and through his songs, to help men understand themselves better and also to help women and men understand each other better. This sort of understanding seems integral to what Women’s Week would like to promote, men and women working together to create a society in which accomplishments are equally valued and gender-specific qualities are respected.

Toshi Reagon also was a charismatic singer who has managed to change her painful experiences into songs celebrating her own strength, and women’s strength in general. She seemed an extremely valuable person to have as a performer as a part of this week; with her strong and beautiful voice she inspired the audience to sing along, and celebrate its own strength.

Julian of Norwich was another performance which was both well-attended and well-received. This play told the story of the daily life of a 14th century mystic who lived in seclusion, and also conveyed the theological message of her revelations, which included the concept of God the Mother, and concentrated of Jesus’ love for us as opposed to the judgmental God the Father. The dramatic ability and concentration of the actresses was remarkable as she held the audience’s attention for an hour.

As an event that was less well-attended was the rape prevention workshop put on by Columbus Women Against Rape. A possible reason for this may be that Kenyon women feel that this is a very safe place to live. However, rapes do occur here, and the self-defense skills offered in this kind of workshop could become very useful for life in more urban areas.

Alcohol Awareness Week Reviewed

By Dan Parr

Alcohol Awareness Week at Kenyon is now over. Technically speaking, The Drug and Alcohol Program Board (DAPB) sponsored the week of October 19-25, in an attempt to draw attention to issues related to consumption of alcoholic beverages. Even though this was the first such effort at Kenyon, many people worked together to make the week reasonably successful.

There were a number of people who participated in various events during the week who are not Kenyon students or faculty, the owners and staff of the Pirates Cove, the Village Inn, and other local businesses helped. The Cove and the Village Inn cooperated by providing free soft drinks to people who had designated themselves the non-drinking “drivers” Saturday night. The Coca-Cola Company donated several hundred dollars worth of plastic drinking cups, and the use of the campus was well-attended.

The anger is growing, and a chance for the community to openly express its feelings. The poetry of Keri Allen and Allison Joseph, offered at the end of the event will be on November 1 at 6:30 in Weaver Cottage. The semifinal reading (cost: $15 a plate) will be at 6:00, with a reading following at 8:00 (which will be open to the public).

Keri Allen, although she may be known to some through her bartending at the Pirates Cove, is an accomplished writer who is currently publishing a book on Land of Plenty. She has degrees in English and philosophy, having studied at a Western College for Women in Ohio, and Oxford University, and is currently working on a Ph.D. at Columbia University, and some of her poems are published in the Spoon River Anthology. Not in my name.

Alcohol Awareness Week

By Dan Parr

T-Shirt Express in Mount Vernon worked overtime to imprint the cups that were distributed at no cost for the week. The Sheriff’s Department in Mount Vernon helped by providing Bob Darbin, the Gambier Deputy, and other assistance to stage a mock arrest of a drunk driver in front of the Peirce at noon Friday. And many people on campus were involved as well.

We saw the Volkswagen with its beer cans, banners, posters, free hangover helpers (distributed by members of the Kenyon Alcohol Awareness Group—KAAAC), and other such things all week long. President Jordan started the week with the letter proclaiming Kenyon’s commitment to the goal of the week, and literally hundreds of people helped meet that commitment.

The week’s over, and a lot of people have given some thought that they perhaps would not NCAAW page eight

Kenyon

I’m SO TIRED. I’ve got SO MUCH WORK LEFT AND I KEEP FALLING ASLEEP. WHY CAN’T I STAY AWAKE?

IT’S THOSE CHAIRS. THESE DAMN LIBRARY SOFT, GREEN, PLUS CHAIRS. THEY’RE SO COMFORTABLE, THEY SUCK THE ENERGY RIGHT OUT OF YOU.

NO... I’M SLIPPING AWAY... I MUST FIGHT IT... HELP... OH GOD...

We got another one, $600.

BEING BOY

AMAH...

**

The Women’s Network will be sponsoring a poetry reading/dinner; both as a fund raiser to support the Women’s Network and an opportunity to read the poetry of Keri Allen and Allison Joseph. The event will be on November 19 at 6:30 in Weaver Cottage. The semifinal reading (cost: $15 a plate) will be at 6:00, with a reading following at 8:00 (which will be open to the public).

Keri Allen, although she may be known to some through her bartending at the Pirate’s Cove, is an accomplished writer who is currently publishing a book on Land of Plenty. She has degrees in English and philosophy, having studied at Western College for Women in Ohio, and Oxford University, and is currently working on a Ph.D. at Columbia University, and some of her poems are published in the Spoon River Anthology. Not in my name.

Alison and Keri have both edited literary magazines; Keri at one time edited a magazine called Alford, and Allison is currently the editor of Hake. Allison is a senior at Kenyon now. She has won the Propper Prize for poetry in the Academy of American Poets prize, and the Robert Frost Prize, in addition to which she was published in the Kenyon Review. She also draws richly from her experiences growing up in the Bronx.

If you wish to attend the dinner, you can contact Joy Eckstine at PBX 5427 or email her by November 12, so that food preparation can be accurately estimated.
Dizzy Gillespie, That Phronemos Highlight Weekend

By David H. Seed

Are you looking for something to do this weekend? How about seeing the famous Dizzy Gillespie and his band, or some comedy and music? Well, tonight the Phronemos will perform in the Gundi Commons at 8 p.m. The performances are called "Dizzy and the Gundi Gang." The band is led by a vocalist who has a voice like a "Yuppie." They feature off-the-wall and original music which is very humorous. Their two songs, "What about the Music of Dizzy?" and "A Unique Music Tonight," have been a WACKO in recent weeks.

Jungberg and Cooper will appear on Fri., Nov. 6, at 8:30 p.m. in Gundi Commons. The duo will perform what they call "centennial rock," in that, through "comedy, Knox County Symphony to Perform" By Sonya Dudgeon

In its twenty-second year, the Knox County Symphony will present its premiere concert in Saturday, Nov. 7 at 8:15 p.m. in the Hermitage in Mount Vernon. The 140-member orchestra will perform under the baton of Dr. Benjamin Locke, head of Knox County's Music Department.

The concert will consist of a variety of selections. The concert opens with Verica the Beautiful and Sousa's "Washington Post March" to honor the 200th anniversary of the United States Constitution.

The Spy Who Loved Me

By Pam Neckers

This past weekend, Kenyon College Drama Club presented Larry Stults' "The Foreigner," which lived up to its billing as a "hilarious comedy." The play focuses on the adventures of Charlie Baker (Paul Schmetz), a shy Englishman who self-dubbed himself, who finds himself vacationing at Betty Meeks' fishing Lodge Resort, Georgia. Since Charlie finds conversation to be immensely stressful, his wife (played by Le Seur [Charles Desmond]) is "telling" others that Charlie cannot speak English. What follows because the other characters believe Charlie cannot understand them leads Charlie to find out more than he probably should. However, Charlie also begins to become more confident and even (as he says) acquires some personality.

Heartbreak Ridge

"The marines are looking for a few good men; unfortunately you ain't one." This line is only one of the virtual tankful of sarcastically funny quips delivered with such bubbling speed from the raspy, but occasionally scarred throat of Gunny-Sergeant Highway (Eastwood) in the military flick Heartbreak Ridge.

In this adventureogue set around 1983, Eastwood portrays a weary two-war veteran who comes to grips with his advancing age and a possible retirement. Called a dinosaur by his younger, book-trained, battle-virgin "superiors," Eastwood decides to partake one last hurrah: drilling a group of youthful, lackluster marines who are determined to sleep and party their way through basic training. Led by an irreverent recruit (Van Peebles) who spends his nights rapping at the local saloon, the marines are at first hostile to the Gunny-Sergeant. But soon an enduring bond of friendship and respect is sealed between young and old. This happens not a moment too soon for the squad must face its baptism of rock-fire during the invasion of Grenada.

For a man of fifty-six years, Eastwood displays a surprising amount of energy and spark in a film that presents character interaction as well as characters in action. Directed by the cinematic demi-god himself, Mayor Eastwood is just as relaxed shooting behind the scenes as he is shooting during the scenes. Make my day and see Heartbreak Ridge. - Mario Oliverio, II

Village Market

427-2801
Open 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday - Saturday

The Woolson Co.

Potpourri, cards, gifts, wicker, soapers Crabtree & Evelyn, incense, etc.

115 S. Main St., Mount Vernon 392-0936

The Fox Who Loved Me

By Lewis Grade.

The Spy Who Loved Me is surely one of the most impressive and extravagant James Bond films ever. This movie is photographed beautifully and the special effects are fantastic. James Bond (Roger Moore) is visited by Russian major Anya Amasova (Barbara Bach) in a joint effort to stop theся Sologumb (Cur Jurgens) from launching nuclear missiles from two stolen submarines. Sologumb attempts to destroy the whole world in order to promote his warped aiming, to live exclusively underwater.

The movie is full of action from England (Cairo, from twenty-thousand feet to thousand feet below the sea. The budget was only spent as it is demonstrated by the actors to the impressive submarine/spaceship and Bond and Amasova work beautifully together throughout their impressive ordnance combining their meeting with the brutal "sub." This second installment of the Bond film series is much better than the previous one, in my opinion. This James Bond film even comes close to this spectacular, suspenseful movie. - Brian M. Lintern

Real Life

As what could be termed "The Albert Brooks Show," "Real Life" is an attempt by Mr. Brooks, to put it, "depict day-to-day living in contemporary America and at the same time hold a motion-picture audience spellbound." Written and directed by, and starring Albert Brooks, this movie is a hilarious effort to do just that. Brooks, as himself, leads a team of scientists and filmmakers to gather data on every move he makes. The filmmakers follow every move of his everyday activities in their effort to depict day-to-day living. This totally, comically, disrupts the lives of the Yeagars, providing for several outrageously funny situations. Such instances include Brooks and his crew visiting Mrs. Yeager's visit to the gynecologist, or catching Mr. Yeager, a veterinarian, accidentally killing a horse on his operating table.

Mrs. Brooks makes her directional debut with "Real Life," and judging from the comic success of this film, he will be around for a long time to come. Do he and her crew discover "real life?" Come down to Rosse and find out. - Dan C. McGuire

My Fair Lady

By George Cukor, Directed by George Cukor, Starring Audrey Hepburn, Rex Harrison, and Stanley Holoway. 170 minutes. 1964.

My Fair Lady is the shining gem of the Golden age of Warner Brothers musicals (Breath-taking! Cinematography and Sonorous sound!). This film is from an era when musicals were incredibly popular, both with audiences and at the box office. In fact, My Fair Lady won eight Oscars, including Best Picture. It tells the story of Eliza Doolittle (Hepburn), a poor Londoner who is brought to mix and mingle with the nobility of Europe by Henry Higgins (Harrison), a famous linguist and voice teacher. The plot hinges on Higgins' insistence that he can train even a Cockney girl to speak like a nobswoman, and the romance that blossoms between the established bachelor and the flower-monger.

The main reason to go to a musical is the music. The music of My Fair Lady is top notch, with such songs as "I Could Have Danced All Night" and "I've Grown Accus- tamed to Her Face." As is the cast with almost all musicals, the level of comedy adds significantly to the film. But most of all, this is a film from when Hollywood was HOLLYWOD and more attention was paid to big production numbers than to special effects. This is highly recommended: Golden cinema at its best. - Michael J. Mullen
Sports

November 5, 1987

Men's Soccer Ends Year With Back-To-Back Shutouts

By Mark Carpenter

The final week of the soccer season was dominated by senior John Lyssaker. The Lord's goalkeeper posted 10 shutouts of Mt. Union and Allegheny, giving him twelve for his career, and breaking the school record of eleven held by Jeff Hymen, who played from 1971-73. Lyssaker collected five shutouts his freshman year and two in his sophomore season. He spent his junior year studying in Belgium, and returned this year to notch five consecutive shutouts in just ten games.

Kenyon finishes at 2-3-1 in the North Coast Athletic Conference and 8-7-2 overall, its first winning season since 1982. The Lords lost just two of their last nine games, an appropriate sendoff for Coach Jeff Vennell, who departed Tuesday to take over the reigns of the University of Rochester (NY) program as Director of Athletics. He completed his nine-year coaching tenure with a mark of 56-66-14.

Lyssaker tied the record against Mt. Union on Wednesday, as the Lords took a 1-0 decision from the Raiders. Senior forward David Bowser had the day's only goal, his fourth of the year, and an assist was provided by sophomore Jeff Kallet. The Lords dominated the first half, outfring Mt. Union eleven shots to four, but couldn't just the goal.

Lords Fall, Allegheny 6-0 in NCAC

By Lawrence Paolucci

The Kenyon Lords football team had to make a long trip to Meadville, PA, last Saturday to face a formidable Allegheny Gator team. This was not just what the doctor ordered for the Lords who played minus injured starting quarterback Eric Dahlquist. They were also trying to break a two-game losing streak against a 6-0-1 Gator team who happened to be ranked 11th in Division III. The Lords despite a valiant effort in the first half, came up empty-handed. With the loss, the Lords’ record slips to 2-6 overall. Additionally, this defeat gave them a 1-5 North Coast Athletic Conference record.

The Lords started strong in the game marking the 18-yard yards for a touchdown on their first possession. This drive was copped off by a five-yard touchdown pass from freshman quarterback Chris Creighton to junior wide receiver Ed Beemiller. With the reception, Beemiller added number eight to his touchdown reception total this season. He also pulled in two more receptions for a 24-yard game total. The Lords lead was short-lived, however, as the Gators came back right to tie the score on their next possession. They went 70 yards in 12 plays, ending with a 13 yard run by Gator running back David Brown. The Gators took the lead for keeps when Gator quarterback John Logue connected on a 26-yard touchdown pass to Ron Pio, with 5:02 remaining in the half. This gave the Gators a 14-7 lead. They never looked back from that point on as in the second half they ran all over the Lords’ defense gaining 410 total yards, 170 by Bowlie.

The Gators in the second half averaged 5.3 yards per play. The Towers on the other hand gained 490 total yards off the way to their 28-7 victory.

Coach Larry Koxbohm says, “Early in the game we were able to keep them off guard. We had a nice blend of running and throwing and therefore could control the ballgame. As the game went on, we didn’t execute as well as we needed to. When you play a team like Allegheny, you’ve got to control the action and execute.”

The bright spots on the Lords were Brian Conkle, Kent Wellington, and Chris Creighton. Conkle was awarded offensive player of the game for his efforts blocking on the offensive line. Wellington was awarded defensive player of the week as he accumulated many open field tackles against a potent Gator offense. The final nail for the Lords was freshman quarterback Chris Creighton. He started his first college game and while lacking experience, completed a respectable 14 of 30 passes for 131 yards and one touchdown.

The Lords hope to improve next week when they face the Centre College Colonels this Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in Gambier. Centre has won the last two meetings of the teams, although the Lords lead the series, 12-7. The outlook is good, despite the fact that three starters, Dahlquist, Pete Murphy, and Will Wilson may still be out with injuries. Everyone should come see the last home game of the season.

Ladies Shutout

By Rebecca Glaser

The Kenyon women’s soccer team came through with two important wins against Wittenberg and conference rival Ohio Wesleyan University that pushed the team to a third place finish in the NCAC.

Kenyon played a slow first half Saturday at OWU, but pumped up in the 2nd half and scored two goals for the 2-0 victory.

The game was crucial for the Ladies high finish in the division as a loss would have kept them at 5th place. Kenyon’s defense and goalkeeper Karen Riley did an excellent job at shutting down OWU’s fast offense.

The Ladies’ scored their first goal ten minutes into the 2nd half when junior Clara Carpenter tapped in a pass from senior David Bowser. Her goal would be the game’s only score, as the team proceeded to shutout the Storm for the next 80 minutes.

Kenyon would add a 2nd goal on a pass from senior Alpaugh, as the team moved up to 2nd place in the conference.

Ohio Wesleyan Univ.

By Ed Schwartz

The Ladies finished a very up-and-down week going in to the NCAC tournament. On Tuesday, they shutdown Defiance, 15-8, 15-11, then proceeded to fall to Mount Vernon Nazarene College, 15-12, 13-15, 15-12. In Meadville this weekend, the Ladies extended their 17-match conference win record as they beat Ohio Wesleyan, 15-4, 15-6. They then lost to the nationally ranked Allegheny Gators, 15-9, 15-5, which killed their streak at 18.

All NCAC volleyball followers will have their eyes on Gambier this weekend for the conference championship tournament. The defending champions Kenyon Ladies will try to become the first volleyball team in conference history to repeat as champions in the seven-team conference.

The Ladies’ main competition for the crown will come from the Allegheny Gators. The Gators (6-0) are seated number one in the tournament. The Ladies (5-1) are number two, with their only conference coming at the hands of the Gators. If Kenyon can push past Allegheny, they can call themselves the conference champs.

The Ladies’ main concern for Saturday will be the All-American, senior bananas, Elmer Wittenberg, who has accumulated 1,342 minutes on the court this year.

Elmer is a very strong threat but also has a weakness. She never steps up 9...Mifielder Gifford is in with six assists...The Ladies scored 25-20 on the year...They made nine total shutouts. In addition to Edma, five, freshmen goalees Scott, Keane, and Lentz chipped in with three and one, respectively.

One big factor for the Ladies this weekend is their home-court advantage. Coach Bretz believes that “There’s become home-court factor in volleyball more.” Welltrecht further adds about Allegheny team, which Kenyon hopes to beat in the championship, barring as it “Player for player I think we are the better skilled team. Allegheny simply played a team last weekend.”

If the Ladies play up to their potential weekend in the championship tournament, there is no reason Kenyon can’t repeat champions and add another flag to the walls of Tomashic Arena.
Cross Country Finish Their Best Seasons
By Selden Longley

Once again, Gambier gets set for the "ultimate" in Kenyon sporting events: the swimming season. From now until March, the Lords and Ladies will be winning meets, setting records and qualifying for another visit to NCAA Division III finals.

Saturday's varsity/ frosh meet got off to an unusual start. The 'schmen came out of the locker room wearing traditional Hawaiian-creature mask and capes, and cheering to the REM song "Superman." The varsity, however, followed a more sedate, morbid path. They wore hooded sweats, sunglasses, and carried 'tombstones' for the freshmen and the three Amigos, Dennis Mulvihill '88, Phil Murphy '88, and Jim Born '86.

The first event was the 400-yard medley relay, which is 100 each of backstroke, breaststroke, butterfly and freestyle. The varsity for the winning of Alan Schmidt, Scott Peters, Tom Schinabeck and David Greenlee, won the event with a time of 3:55.98. They were a full five seconds ahead of the freshman team's entry of Eric Chambers, Matt Brokaw, Aaron Glasser and Mike Chambers, who finished at 3:55.98.

The next two events were both freestyle heats for the 1,600-yard freestyle relay in which amago Dennis Mulvihill won with a time of 10:12.83. He broke a meet record previously held by Craig Hummer (10.12.29). Varsity participants were Nate Llerandi and Scott Spote who finished at 10:23.21 and 10:50.16, respectively. Second was the 200-yard freestyle, won by junior Alan Schmidt with a time of 1:52.43.

Mulvihill narrowly beat out junior Jeff Perkins to win the 200-yard individual medley. Mulvihill came in at 2:06.24, while Perkins was right behind him with a 2.08.99 time. After the 200-M, the score stood at 24 to 19 in favor of the varsity. Then the swimmers sat out while the lode diver, Charles Beneke, performed. In the dives from the 1-meter board, Beneke totaled 174.3 diving points for the freshman team. The score translate to five event points leaving the teams tied, 24-24.

When the swimming resumed, sophomore Tom Schinabeck won the 200-yard butterfly in 2:08.62. The freshmen team's best finisher was senior Phil Murphy timed at 2:11.95.

The 100-yard freestyle got Born his second record of the day. Born won with a time of 50.14, second fastest freestyle behind Mulvihill's record of 50.28. John Howell just missed the record with a 51.62 time.

The 200-yard backstroke was another Schmidt victory. Schmidt, clocked at 2:11.48, was challenged mainly by freshman Eric Chambers who finished at 2:13.56.

Next event was the 500-yard freestyle won by Nate Llerandi, just ahead of freshman John Burnsed. Llerandi came in with a 5:02.55 time. This event left the standings at 47-37 in favor of the varsity.

Finally, the meet concluded with the last event, 400-yard freestyle relay. The team of Born, Murphy, Burnsed and Mulvihill set a meet record with a time of 3:21.83. This bettered the 1983 relay record, 3:23.64, set by freshmen Jim Born and Jeff Moritz, and senior Captains Jack Emmes and Chris Shedd. The closest finisher for the varsity was the team of Howell, Scott Michael, David Wenz and Greenlee. The freshman team's victory was enough as the varsity won the meet, 55-45.

Field Hockey Nets Hiram Win 1-0
By Ed Benyon

The 1987 Kenyon Ladies field hockey season ended this past weekend with the MFLCA regional tournament at Oberlin. The Ladies entered the tournament seeded seventh and compiled a 1-2-2 record for the weekend, defeating Hiram and falling to Wittenberg and Wooster. The Ladies' final record is 3-16-1, 9-8 in NCAC play.

On Friday, Kenyon started the tournament in a contest against Wittenburg University. The Ladies saw this game as a chance to redeem themselves against a team which had beaten them earlier in the year on an illegal goal which bounced off the body of one of Wittenburg's forwards. Despite this desire to win, Kenyon came out slow and played below their normally high standards. The Ladies' passing game was not going well as they lost the ball in important times and missed their opportunity. Wittenburg scored twice while sophomore Dann Davis put in the only Kenyon goal, off an assist from sophomore Bobbi Johnson. As the Ladies fell 2-1, as one Kenyon player sums up the loss, "it just wasn't our game."

In the second game of the afternoon, the Ladies righted the morning's wrong by defeating Hiram 1-0 in a game they had to cant improvement over last year. When only two runners finished higher than 37th. As an example of improvement, McKeisic placed 56th last year in the conference meet, nearly halving his time this year. A fine finish to a fine career for McKeisic.

The Lords look forward to continued improvement in years to come, being a relatively young team. This season marks a blossoming into true competitiveness within the conference, and only time will tell how much stronger they can get.

Varsity Swimmers Ease Past Frosh Team, 55-45

The Ladies finish the regular season with a 44-3 record against Division III teams, their best record ever, and qualify for regionals as a team for the fifth straight season, a first for any team in Ohio. This dominance shows in the signs of fatigue, either, with a strong base of young runners to carry on the tradition next year. Regionals take place next Saturday (the 14th) at Wooster.

The Lords ran their strongest, most consistent race of the season, placing more runners higher up than ever before. Despite not qualifying any runners for regionals, the men finished a respectable fifth in the conference, and, like the Ladies, finished with their best record ever against Division III. Running with the attitude of "nothing to lose," the Lords decided to forget pacing and "go for broke" in this race. The consequence was a high finishing pack, Paul Worland finishing 21st, Ken Abney 22nd, Alex Heathiering 26th, Jeff Hillberg 28th, and Scott McKeisic 32nd. The lack of pacing put its toll in the ladies, however, as the pack lost about five places per person. Still, it was a significant improvement over last year, when only two runners finished higher than 37th. As an example of improvement, McKeisic placed 56th last year in the conference meet, nearly halving his time this year. A fine finish to a fine career for McKeisic.

The Lords look forward to continued improvement in years to come, being a relatively young team. This season marks a blossoming into true competitiveness within the conference, and only time will tell how much stronger they can get.
Minority Hiring

continued from page one is that family members of minority faculty have in the past had problems within the local school system.

What then can be done to attract and retain minority faculty at Kenyon? First, the recruiting phase of hiring must be given additional support. Washington-Lacey identified four areas of recruiting that can be strengthened by contacting potential Ph.D. candidates early. Possibly at some point in

NCAAW

continued from page four

not otherwise give to the subject of alcohol.
The DAPB hopes that such consideration will not stop just because AAW has ended; it hopes we can all continue to learn about alcohol. All of us need to know more about this drug, about what it does to the human body, about laws that exist to regulate its use, about what happens to us when we abuse it.

If we had to condense all events of the week into one short statement, we might say that we hope it is beginning to become clear; there is no institutional policy at Kenyon that sets out to teach anyone how to drink—responsibly or irresponsibly; but we all need to know enough about alcohol to be able to make responsible choices concerning its use. A student member of the DAPB says it best with his slogan we used for the week: “Just Say When.”

the future Kenyon could offer financial help in return for a commitment after graduating. Networking—using state banks and established systems—can help identify candidates. Interviewing and advertising are also critical in attracting candidates. Kenyon, through its advertising, must seek to project its committment to hire qualified minority candidates, she clarified.

For Kenyon to successfully attract and retain minority faculty, the consensus was, it must make a firm commitment and understand the reasons diversity is needed. Steps that Kenyon can take include being sensitive to the needs of minorities and making them feel comfortable within the community. Further, many feel that Kenyon should relax or abolish the ten-mile rule so that minority faculty are not forced to place themselves and their children in the position of being discriminated against in Knox County.

Women’s Week

continued from page four

Other events during Women’s Week included a Vespers service, an economics lecture, a reading of women’s literature, and a party. This week might have had more widespread appeal if there were more people involved in its organization. It is difficult otherwise to gauge what might be interesting to everyone. Only personal standards can be used. With more participation, Women’s Week can more completely be a celebration for all Kenyon women, and all of Kenyon.

Sorority Statement

continued from page four

the particular sorority. Before initiation, pledges must complete a series of awareness programs on current social issues, such as alcohol abuse and AIDS...

We have not addressed as yet the question of housing. We are not looking for group-housing at this time, but we do feel it should remain as an open topic for later members...

What we are asking for, at this time, is the use of a meeting room in which we could hold our chapter meetings and our social activities...

Subscribe to the Collegian

Have Kenyon’s own weekly newspaper delivered to your home. 25 issues for only $22.00. Send checks to:

The Kenyon Collegian
Kenyon College
Gambier, OH 43022

IT’S A GOOD TIME FOR THE GREAT TASTE

Tuesday night is KENYONITE
at McDonalds
30¢ hamburgers (limit 10), 4-8 p.m. at 1059 Coshocton Rd. Restaurant, ONLY.

Help support the Kenyon athletic program; but your soft drinks in our new Kenyon College cups!

Owned and operated by Joe and Kitty Mortellaro

McCabe

continued from page two

twenty concerned students and members of the Board. Did the Editorial Board know about these successes? Obviously not. Did they ask? No.

It is true that the meeting had major problems—attendance was the largest. The turnout unfortunately sent a negative signal to the Board; it told them that the issue is not that important to the student body.

Advertising was a problem; it came to life too late. The Board had nobody to represent its position to direct questions; their idea of the meeting was probably different than ours. It was also never really clear until too late who the chief organizer was. The

Field Hockey

continued from page seven

Thus the Ladies ended the 1987 season, still confused as to why a team with so much raw talent and ability could not pull it all together and post a few more wins in its stats. Captain Jessica Brown leaves the team disappointed, but pleased with the overall level of play the Ladies demonstrated at the end of the season. “We just had a bad season,” explains Brown, “nothing went our way.” She further explains that their team’s method of “hit-and-run” hockey may have thrown off the Ladies game of “pass-and-dodge” hockey, as they were forced to constantly fall back after a long hit and restart

THE WEATHER VANE in Gambier invites you to shop this week’s Special

LOCA TED D OWN T HE A L LEY, B E HIN D T HE G AMBIER P O ST OF FICE
HOURS 11:00 AM – 5:30 PM Monday – Saturday Phone 427-3636

All blouses
and skirts
$8.00 OFF
Rich fall colors in solids, plaids and stripes

All blouses
and skirts
$8.00 OFF
Rich fall colors in solids, plaids and stripes

Matrioculation Oath after President Key-non chose to sign the Oath of Allegiance to the United States. Kenyon students were allowed to make their own version. The oath is:

I, (student’s name), do solemnly swear that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States and this State against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that I will bear true allegiance to the same; and that I will lay down my life for the defense of my country when the call comes. Amen.

Happy Birthday to the Collegian.

Next week: More sorority related stories, as well as columns from the Board and this week’s sports wrap-up.

ANDREW McCabe

Give a hoot. Don’t pollute.