 Participation in OCS Highs Since 1975

By Michael Cusimano

The 1975-76 school year marks a significant increase in the number of students participating in the On-Campus Rotation Program, which involves several student groups that are part of the campus-wide OCS enrollment. According to Doer, there are "many projections" that the OCS program will continue to grow and "condemn the value of the entire program," as described by Student Council President Mike Bassett.

The five year Decline which preceded beginning a college, a decision made by Michael Doer, was once again looking into the OCS program. "I believe this is the time," said Doer, "that the OCS program is better". Elinor said, "we are trying to make it work better, but it is not making as much of a difference as it should.

According to Doer, there are "many projections" that the OCS program will continue to grow and "condemn the value of the entire program," as described by Student Council President Mike Bassett.

Student Council President's Pet Boys Constrictor Lose in Watson; Thorpe Says Reptile is Harmless

During this week's meeting, several student groups on campus have expressed concerns about the recent changes in the housing department. The Housing Council, Subcommittee for Housing and Facilities, has been addressing complaints from students regarding the new housing policies. However, it seems that the housing department has made significant progress in addressing these concerns, as several student groups have expressed their support for the new policies.
Beware of the Gambler Demons

Today is November 12—a perfectly innocuous truth. Tomorrow is November 13—a fact which in and of itself is enough to make a Collegian feel its duty, as the most fair-rendering literary organization on campus to this day, to issue some suggestions for its early in-terest.

Do not get to class.

You may learn something you really didn't want to know. The lecture will always make you wish you had taken crutches.

Do not get to class on a day like any other.

You can't, because you have to worry about the lecture. You're the best at it in that you haven't got to worry about getting to class on a day like any other. You'll have to go to class on a day like any other, but you're the best at it. You're the best at it because you're the best at it.

Beaumont is a city and the county seat of Jefferson County, Texas, United States. It is the principal city of the Beaumont-Port Arthur Metropolitan Statistical Area and part of the Beaumont-Port Arthur Combined Statistical Area. Beaumont is located on the upper Gulf Coast of Texas, on what was once the shores of an ancient bay, the mouth of the Neches River, which empties into the Gulf of Mexico. Beaumont, an industrial city, was once known as the "Cotton Capital of the World." From the late 19th century through World War II, the city's economy was based on oil and cotton production. With the decline of the oil industry in the 1960s, Beaumont has transitioned into an industrial and manufacturing hub. Today, the city is home to several large petrochemical plants and refineries, and its workforce is heavily concentrated in the energy sector. Beaumont is also known for its history as a center for the oil and gas industry, and it has developed a strong local culture centered around this heritage. The city is also home to several educational institutions, including Lamar University, which is located just north of downtown. Beaumont is known for its warm climate, with mild winters and hot summers. The city is located on the coast, with easy access to beaches and other coastal areas. Beaumont is also home to several parks and recreational areas, including the Beaumont Civic Center and the Beaumont Municipal Park, which offers a variety of outdoor activities. Beaumont is a vibrant community with a rich history and a strong sense of local pride. music's strange Bob for play. not Four 'Gently' for this at his wife, Nancy played the organ, which has been been in two frequent ways at Kenyon. A 'Gently Reflective' Seascape Also Reflects Some 'Comedic Spightliness'

By William M. I saw the Friday night performance of Alice Allen's Scotch and what a treat it was. My old favorite of Hamlet and George M. of the current series of verbal lexicology making of the well-set couple. Nancy usually takes a big bite of the apple and then goes to bed. Much for her big moment. Something was going to happen. But Charlie resists. If Nancy wants to expect him as Eden and Eve, she will have to deal with old Adam. He has been there. No will play a gallant Lancelot to her Guinevere or a treacherous Tristan to her Isolde. Even she had to admit these very earthy lack of connection. Not all is pleasant and vacuous, Andrew Sommer's Charlie made it possible for me to see a character I had not been able to imagine in this play. With a wonderful comic touch for his shuffling and the shuffling of the very modern of a guy who knows how to handle himself. Sommer displayed a comic worthy of his impressive presence.

But, for all the comic weaknesses, Nancy has run through her resources when the music of ethereal beauty marks the apex. The shock of Leslie and Sam's premature made the audience catch its breath. But the play evokes no profounder experience or spiritual uplift; it is too sane and gently reflective for that. If Leslie and Sam are from a strange place, it is really only Corduroy beneath the skin. Christopher Hardy was delightful as the slightly dazed Leslie with an impressive range. Maria Athlesiou was charming as the apparently simple and whose desire for life has brought them out of the

The Block Stallion

Put a boy and a beautiful horse together and give them a chance to shine. This is the concept for this musical opportunity for the cameraman and the cinematographer. This is a high-keyed, fast-moving, lush setting, a veritable parade of camera techniques, for the directors of photography. The music of Phil Freston and Marc Rosenblum is a delight. The performers are to be admired for their accurate, sophisticated, understated work. The musical comedy has a rich heritage, and the film has managed to capture the spirit of the genre.

Soccer Overcome in OAC Finals, Draws Sensational Season to a Close

By Bob Warthurn

The Kent State University women's soccer team can take pride in overcoming some of its greatest obstacles this season, and as a result, the team took home the OAC championship on Sunday afternoon.

"This team has been very consistent," Coach Van Wert said. "We've had some ups and downs, but overall, we've been very strong."

The Lady Golden Bears, who started the season at 4-3-2, finished with a 9-5-2 record, which included a 6-2-0 record in the OAC. The team's lone losses were to Ohio University and Miami University, both top-10 teams in the country.

"We've had some tough losses, but we've also had some great wins," Van Wert said. "This team has been very resilient, and we're very proud of them."

The team's final game of the season was against Miami University, which was ranked 10th in the country. The Golden Bears were ahead 1-0 with just over 10 minutes left in the game when Miami scored to tie it, sending the game into overtime.

"We were very disappointed with the result," Van Wert said. "But we're very proud of our team, and we're looking forward to next year."

The Lady Golden Bears will now prepare for the NCAA tournament, which begins on November 15. The team will find out its opponent and location on November 13.

Doherty's Kick Helps Lords Pull an Upset

After two straight defeats, the Kent State women's basketball team was looking to snap its losing streak. The team had lost its previous two games, including a 69-59 loss to Ohio State on February 28.

"We had a rough stretch there," Coach Van Wert said. "But we're very confident now, and we're looking forward to the rest of the season."

The team's next game is on March 4 against Bowling Green. The game is at 7 p.m. at the Memorial Athletic Complex.

Transition Year Begins for Basketballers

By Jonathan Hahn

The Kent State University women's basketball team has a new head coach, and the new coach is bringing a new approach to the team.

Jennifer Costanza, who has been an assistant coach at Kent State for the past three years, is now in charge of the program.

"I'm very excited to be the head coach," Costanza said. "I've been here for a long time, and I know the team and the program very well."

The team's first game of the season is on November 13 against Western Kentucky. The game is at 2 p.m. at the Memorial Athletic Complex.

Arc Symposia Scheduled

By Bob Warthurn

The Kent State University Arc Symposia will be held on the campus on March 1 and 2. The symposia will feature guest speakers from around the world.

The first day of the symposium will feature a keynote address by Dr. John B. Taylor, who is a professor of philosophy at the University of California, Los Angeles. The second day will feature a panel discussion on the topic of the symposium.

"We're very excited about the symposia," Van Wert said. "We have some great speakers lined up, and we're looking forward to the discussions."

The symposia are open to the public, and admission is free. The symposia will be held in the Memorial Athletic Complex. More information can be found on the Arc Symposia website.
Volleyball Team Finishes Disappointing Season That ‘Just Didn’t Click’

By Martha Lorenzo

Kenyon’s volleyball team concluded a disappointing season with a 3-2 defeat to Denison in the SCAC tournament. The Lady Lords finished with a 14-14 record.

Truitt and Lords: A Winning Combination

By Bob Warbuton

Jeff Truitt described the season as a "good team, just not quite in the right place at the right time." The team lost eight of its final 11 matches, including a three-match skid.

Sarayn also hopes that Kentucky—an oasis, one of the largest portions of the region's population, will develop into a large urban complex.

"The area around downtown London is very green, so you get a lot of trees," she said. "It’s a very nice place to live."

If they can put this district behind them, the 782 may be the start of something big. Many people have long expected that the Millwood would get a lot of new people. Maybe new growth will put it together.

Polo Club to Defend Title

By Dave Garberini

On Friday, the Kenyon Women’s Polo Team will defend its national championship in the senior-level Ohio State University tournament at the Whippoorwill Polo Club in Columbus, Ohio.

Education: Serving Traditional Needs in an Untraditional Manner

Sarayn also hopes that Kentucky—an oasis, one of the largest portions of the region's population, will develop into a large urban complex. She also discusses how the town has changed over the years and how it compares to other areas in the region.
