Faculty Committee Names
Four Watson Nominees

By Lisa Measor

The Faculty Committee on Student Affairs (FCSA) has announced its approval of the fourth wave of approved student nominations for the Watson Fellowship. The Committee reviewed the nominations, which comprised 135 students, specializing in areas as diverse as engineering, mathematics, and management science, and selected four students. The four students are:

1. Nicholas J. H. Gordon, a senior majoring in history and economics, who has demonstrated exceptional academic and leadership skills.
2. Sarah E. Lee, a senior majoring in psychology and philosophy, who has shown a strong commitment to community service.
3. Samuel J. Miller, a senior majoring in mathematics and computer science, who has demonstrated exceptional research ability.
4. Emily A. Smith, a senior majoring in English and history, who has demonstrated exceptional writing and analytical skills.

The FCSA will submit these nominations to the Watson Foundation, which will make the final selection.

False Alarms Slow Squad Response

By Lynne Tovar

The Kenyon College Police Department’s response to false fire alarms has been slowed down by the high number of false alarms that occurred during the past month. The police department received 130 false alarm calls in the past month, with 90 occurring in the past week. This has led to a significant increase in the response time to actual fires, with the average response time increasing from 2 minutes to 5 minutes. The police department is seeking to reduce the number of false alarms by increasing awareness among students and staff.

Jordan Wins ACE Election

By Brian Kramer

Jordan Gund, a senior majoring in political science, has won the ACE (Assistance Center for Education) election, receiving 67% of the vote. Gund faced three competitors for the position, including two students from the ACE executive board and one student from the Kenyon College Student Government. Gund’s victory is seen as a significant win for the ACE, which has been working to improve student services and support.

GLCA Conference Studies Women’s Issues

By Karen Rockwell

The GLCA (Great Lakes Colleges Athletic Conference) hosted a conference on gender equality and women’s issues. The conference was attended by faculty, staff, and students from 12 GLCA member institutions. The conference included workshops, panel discussions, and keynote speeches. The conference was organized by the GLCA Women’s Caucus, which works to promote gender equity and women’s issues within the conference.

Gund Remodeling: Reality?

By Brian Kramer

The Gund Remodeling project is facing significant challenges. The project was originally scheduled to be completed by the end of the academic year, but due to budget constraints and construction delays, the project is now facing a delay of at least one year. The Kenyon College administration is working to address these challenges and ensure that the project is completed in a timely manner.
Student Irresponsibility Alarming

Yesterday's Senate discussion revealed a fact that should alarm Kenyon students due to the frequency of false alarms, the local fire departments are no longer responding immediately to College Decree. If students are unwilling to take the time and trouble to prevent false alarms, the System may eventually force us to take action. How can we possibly expect the fire departments VOLUNTEERS to continue to put forth the time, work, and effort to deal with a tragedy that if handled right, don't even exist?

Some students choose to remain irresponsible and just plain stupid as to tamper with fire alarms, we in the community must rely on our collective responsibility and intelligence to prevent these people from hurting us. While keeping an eye on the alarms when one is conducting a large party is not convenient, it is far preferable to the alternative: pay for false alarm and service. Students must take this matter of community safety seriously.

For now, though, the message is clear. If we want to protect the prevention of speedy fire and rescue units, the false alarms must stop.

Cinema's Are About Fighter Protection

We are accustomed to thinking of cinema's as places where we can go to escape the stresses of our daily lives. However, the cinema in our community is about more than just entertainment. It is about fighter protection.

This semester we have seen a number of programs that have been presented in the cinema. These programs have ranged from films about the war in Iraq to documentaries about the effects of industrial farming on the environment. Each program has been designed to educate and inform the community about important issues.

In the Thanksgiving Holiday

By Jeff Elharr

Come, ye thankful people, raise the song of harps and home. All is safely gathered in. Eric the winer suests begin.

The phone rang. I reached over to answer it. "Good morning. Cleveland Cigarettes Inc.", my brother asked. "There was a serious fire at the other end. "Yes, it's the place where you go to get your hair back on!" A woman's voice. "We have a problem in an area that is not intended for an area that is not intended for, or as we were always calling about whether I could. I couldn't remember the man called with the same results.

"Well, ma'am, we do have a referral service for people."

She cut off. "Do you have any money to put in the back fund, or need money?"

"No, ma'am, our organization doesn't operate that way. What we try to do is get you to contact with someone who might be able to help you."

"I'm on old high."

"Our quality control is not in tight now but if you have your name and number I'll have for you back soon."

The woman seemed in distress. "Yes, right."

"Wait a second, please, " I felt bad. The woman had been put on hold the whole day. I knew basically what I needed to do when I saw. I was sick and I could have always have her call back."

"I'm old high, we're out of control. If you told you problem maybe I could help you to some way."

The woman's voice turned from frustration to anger. "I have this same thing for days end and she did that. They don't care! They don't care, they're cold out side. We have her."

I couldn't help. We had children in some torment diet in high, shouting. Victims of someone's by negligence and indifference.

All the world is God's own field. Peace unto his praise in it. Where you and yours together grow. One joy or sorrow grown.

"Was that his reason for turning it off?"

"They said it had to be fixed."

"I assumed she was on welfare. "You have talked with your spouse?"

"She said I probably spent the money I should've spent. I never believed her anyway. I can run two people in our house?"

"So what did she tell you to do?"

"I can run two people in our house, she couldn't do it."

"Did you try the state's energy assistance program?"

"Yes. They said they didn't have anymore money. "I questioned whether this was true, or if she had violated the program's requirements and didn't want to admit it. Later from Joyce I learned that she had run out of food.

Back to the blade, there. The man has crossed the great line. When I converse with them through their connections with the great company. "To be honest, with you, as I can't tell you anything else. To do. If you know your name and number I'll have the counselor call you as soon as she gains."

A long pause. She had heard this story before, and probably not just from you. "All right."

She left her name and number and hung up.

A short time later before Joyce reached the called back. I realized that Joyce would call her the moment she came back. Later when Joyce returned I told her the situation and the she talked to both the woman and the gas company. The company refused to lend us to her current debt and poor parking permits. Only after the paid her rent full her gall got back on.

"The word master, draft pilot. In our office we were the Cleveland Come in this, save. Raisin the gang."

"A little later on I went home for my. I stood in the dust in the smoke and watched the man fall in to pavement. The wind lacked a pedantic and seat, making reality of man's attempt to appear digressible by nature. Wrapped in my pants, I was thinking of the woman and the children.

In about half an hour I would be home. My mom would already be there and dinner would probably begin to the实时. Later that night I would go out and then go out with some friends in a couple of days I would be back home."

I never knew how fast it was... For the Lord our God that we and take his Name home. From him to that day. All his forever perfect."

Thanksgiving, everyone.

Wilkins Visits, Provides Views on Worlds of Law, Government, Journalism

Jeremy Wilkins came to Kent on last week as part of the 1984 Woodrow Wilson Fellows Program. His stay included: a lecture, a series of one-on-one talks, participation in classes, and some with students. He was both a whirlwind of information and a thoughtful soul.

Wilkins received his master’s degree from a liberal arts college and has a doctorate in Philosophy from the University of Wisconsin. He is currently a professor at Temple University, teaching courses in political philosophy and public policy.

The professor’s talk touched on diverse topics, ranging from the nature of law and political institutions to the role of the government in society. He discussed the importance of understanding the principles that underlie these systems, emphasizing the idea that knowledge is power.

Wilkins also spoke about the relationship between law and morality, arguing that laws are created to reflect the moral values of a society. He discussed the challenges of creating laws that are both fair and effective, and the importance of understanding the historical context in which these laws were created.

The professor also touched on the role of government in society, discussing the importance of balancing individual rights and collective interests. He emphasized the need for government to be transparent and accountable, and the importance of engaging citizens in the political process.

Overall, Wilkins’ talk was informative and engaging, offering insights into the complex world of law and government. His emphasis on understanding the underlying principles of these systems, and the importance of engaging with them as active citizens, was particularly relevant to the current political climate.

Eminem’s ‘Barefoot’ Opens New Bolton

By Paul Weiden

“The College is not a mere extension of the classroom. It is a place where the individual can find a sense of identity within the vast culture of society. Whereas this sense is a natural part of the individual, it is also a long-standing cultural habit, a habit that is becoming increasingly difficult to break free from, and are often seen as the scourge of the modern world. For the new wave, meaning a cultural identity formed on the fringes of the American mainstream, there is quite a bit of it abroad in the postmodern world.”

the tone of Eminem’s ‘Barefoot’ is one of rebellion and fighting for one’s own identity. The album is a collection of songs about the challenges of growing up in a world that is often hostile and unfair, and the struggle to find one’s own voice in a society that often suppresses individuality.

The lyrics of the album are filled with imagery of being “barefoot,” a metaphor for being without the protection and support of traditional institutions like the government or the church. The songs explore the idea of being “out there” on one’s own, and the difficulties of finding one’s place in the world.

Overall, ‘Barefoot’ is a powerful work that explores the themes of identity, rebellion, and individuality in a world that often seeks to suppress these ideas. The album is a testament to Eminem’s talent as a wordsmith, and a reminder of the importance of standing up for one’s own beliefs and fighting for the freedom to be oneself.

Water Polo Squad Cops Second Consecutive Eastern Championship

By David Gunther

Last weekend, the Kenyon Water Polo Club returned to Eastern Pennsylvania for the NCAA Division II Eastern Championships. The 10-time champions from the New England, Southern, Mid-America, and Eastern Conferences are invited to this championship tournament.

In the past, the Kenyon club performed exceptionally well, winning 37 of the last 38 and the last 28 titles. Kenyon won their first title in 1972. Since then, the Kenyon varsity has been placed no lower than third in the conference.

The 2019 team was no exception, as the Kenyon varsity men's swimming team also won the conference title. This year, Kenyon went on to win the NCAA Division II Eastern Championships for the second consecutive year.

The Kenyon team consisted of 16 players, with 9 starting each game. The team was led by freshmen Carter Kimoto, Andrew Chalmers, and junior Tyler Smith. The team's success can be attributed to their strong team spirit and dedication to the sport.
