Will the Beat Go On?

Like all other campus organizations, our radio station, WKCO, faces the never ending battle of funding from the Student Finance Committee. WKCO has a unique problem, however. Its location, license, and licensing requirements make it hard to make clear why the radio station exists as it is. WKCO is not a pop station, because it is not commercial. Its purpose is educational. In fact, by law, it is required to have 12% of its programming made up of some informative nature. Therefore, when students turn to 91.9 and don’t find their favorite song playing, they complain, instead of staying tuned and discovering what alternative radio is all about.

It’s easy not to think of all the work and effort that goes behind something you don’t see, and that can be totally forgotten by a flick of the dial. But, this weekend, why don’t you look a bit harder. WKCO will be on the air for 48 hours straight, soliciting your contributions for particular albums you want to see in their library. WKCO is making a strong statement by undertaking such a venture. They are not content to cut services or give up on their dream of going 100% aires. They are challenging you as well as themselves, to see just what the radio station means to this campus.

We commend the initiative and creativity of the WKCO staff and wish them every success this weekend. Tune in at 91.9 any hour this weekend and enjoy the special shows and people brought in for this great musical entertainment.

Collegian’s Focus Expands

This semester we will be stressing community interests in the paper, expanding Kenyon’s “magic mountain” mentality. The column “Perspective” will explain our part as well as living hints and “Phenomena,” a column dealing with the natural and the supernatural, will research recent medical breakthroughs and the newsworthy. None of these will affect our lifestyles. Emphasis will also be on the “unexplained” and the “unusual.”

The Political Forum editors plan to run polls, asking the local population questions on current issues and world problems. Questions concerning abortion, capital punishment, the Arab-Israeli conflict, world hunger, unites language, and Reaganomics affect us all, but here’s the real world, it affects us all.

We are all of you, students, faculty, faculty families, the administration and their families, and all community members, to contribute your opinions in our polls. But more importantly, we are trying to put on a particular local historical event or psychic development that you are interested in for “Perspective” and “Phenomena.”

Please respond to your responses.

GEC Brings You Surf and Spice

If ice, snow, and the mid-winter blues are not for you, the Gambier Experimental College once again offers the chance to temper the drizzly month of February with the sun and sea spray of windsurfing, the spice of international cuisine, the art of wine tasting, or the chill of Dracula. The GEC is the unique opportunity to learn something as basic as car maintenance, and to meet different members of the community. We commend the volunteer instructors for generously offering to share their time and talents. As we have two student coordinators who make it all possible, Liz McCutcheon and Allison Shpley. We hope the Kenyon community will take full advantage of the OEC program.

In Remembrance

To the Editors:

We wish to make a few words as memory of my good friend Steve Altman (‘79) who died this summer at the age of 34. After years of studying treatment, Steve was very famous by his early age. In fact those who never knew Steve never knew his strength and joy. Steve Altman was a man I have ever known. He was generous, kind, sensitive and intelligent. In the years that I knew him I never once heard him complain about his condition. Never once did I detect a note of self-pity or melancholy. He was even more mentioned his illnesses unless I brought it up. I will never forget the strength and courage he displayed in the face of imminent death. Mostly, I remember what kind of friend he was to me. He accepted me as a total person—never regarding certain characteristics which are embarrasses as unappealing. In fact, he would even see my constructors qualities as positive aspects to any personality. I’ll never forget the day he called me “wonderfully indiscriminate.” The greatest friend of friendship is to respect the person he is truly.

I see Steve Altman as a great deal. He is a model of courage and selflessness. Without my help I can say that I love Steve Altman and that I’ll miss him for the rest of my life. He showed me that I must not let my own problems become the center of the universe. He showed me that I can no more get out of self and care for others even if I suffer. It was through him that I learned my most valuable lesson at Kenyon College.

A memorial fund has been established in his memory. Funds will be used to plan a beach house. Perhaps we can think of Steve Altman when we get wrapped up in a summer’s vacation or on a wild and free at the sea world is coming on an end. The greatest constructor is how to be a generous effort to emulate his strength and courage to comfort others in the midst of hardship. In that way we can fully fulfill the promise of a liberal education by becoming better human beings.

Sincerely,
David J. Gwillim (‘79)

ARA Employment Mishaps Questioned

To the Editors:

Kenyon students and the administrations of the ARA for the problems that occurred at Garbe with those employees following Christmas break (President Donald E. Warburton, Kenyon College, Director Robert Felice in last week’s Collegian article 75770 in ARA Employment: Unexplained”) cited two reasons for the difficulties. We, however, believe these reasons are excuses rather than a fair explanation for the problems.

Mr. Felice said some of the confusion developed because it was not clear as to how positions would be filled second semester. Yet the student employees at Garbe were informed through a newsletter on December that they would continue working the same hours unless they otherwise told the head student manager. No students were otherwise notified.

Also, the managerial switch that Mr. Felice used to explain was not in fact that in fact Dorothy Shultz had been working in Dining Services since Thanksgiving. Further, even though she was. Food Service Manager, Mr. Wealth had been managing the manager in charge at some meals since last year, and they been familiar with, active in, and responsible for major aspects of operations—especially student dining and serving lines at least.

Mr. Felice characterized the problem as an "unforeseen" and as not something that was a terrible surprise to cover ARA’s mistake. ARA is employed by the school and is responsible to the school for its actions. Thus far, ARA has not adequately explained the reasons for this occurrence. It is ARA’s duty to either submit an explanation or apologize. For the future.

Respectfully,
Claire Jones (‘84)
Paul W. McCarthy (‘84)

Jeff Bell Elected New President

The student body elected sophomore Jeff Bell, son of the former Kenyon Corporation chair, as the next president of the College. The election took place on Wednesday night, in the Student Commons, and was an overwhelming victory for Bell. The turnout was high, with over 1,000 students casting their votes.

The election was a close race, with Bell narrowly defeating his opponent, junior Chris Thompson. Bell received 54% of the vote, while Thompson received 46%. The vote was counted by the College’s election board, which is made up of students from various classes.

Books Appreciated

To the Editors:

We are sorry for the delay after the books are returned and let you know that we at the Kenyon Country Welfare Department want to express appreciation to the Kenyon students who generously donated books at Christmas time. We were delighted to be able to use the books for the Christmas packages we prepared for 32 families. The Christian Project Committee and the chaplains, thank you again for your thoughtfulness.

JEFF BELL ELECTED NEW PRESIDENT

SIGNED, JOHN DOE

What do they mean?

What do they say?

What are their real names?

Who will teach every rule of their names?

One says he learns from and early begins to break his words.

Another teareth, and the stomach, as if it was for God.

But when we say what they think, Do not know.

We can no longer fear to read, after development is slow.

Put some girls in a fraternity and boys in Buddhism.

And if you can, convince him, Dean in B-2.

Now, on the level, I make a single case.

When we write, we don't just take up space.

Don't do any and don't be silly and always sign your name.

Your writings might affect us all, though we may not the like.

Air Traffic Safety

To Shift To Pilots

by Peter McFadden

Most people do not consider questions of air traffic safety to be of great urgency. The air traffic controllers' strike and two recent accidents have focused public attention on air safety. The apparent lack of urgency, however, is not really a fair assessment of the situation. As an Air Florida flight crashed on January 15, it was revealed that Washington, D.C., killing four people and leaving one survivor clinging to life in the water. Seven-four of the seventy-six passengers and crew on board the flight were killed. Two of the two hundred and eighty passengers are unaccounted for and presumed drowned. In doing so, they ignore the fact that an increasing number of teenagers are at risk and must be defended. They also fail to recognize that the problem deserves as much attention in the summer and fall as in the winter.

There are, of course, other reasons why the problem should be recognized. For example, the summer months have historically led to an increased traffic to and from vacation destinations. It is also true that the summer is the busiest time of the year for air travel. Washington alone has seen an increase in the number of passengers flying in and out of the city.

The recent accident on January 15 has raised questions about the safety of air travel. The cause of the crash is under investigation, but it is believed to have been caused by a mechanical failure of the plane. This highlights the need for increased safety measures and the importance of regular maintenance checks.

The government has already taken steps to address this issue. The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) has ordered all airlines to conduct additional inspections of their aircraft. The FAA has also increased its oversight of air traffic control centers.

These measures are necessary to ensure the safety of air travel. The government must continue to take action to address this issue, and the public must remain vigilant in ensuring that safety standards are met.

The recent accident is a reminder of the importance of safety in air travel. It is crucial that the government and airlines work together to address this issue and ensure that all flights are safe for passengers and crew.

Unwed Mothers Need Help

by Anne Barton

Despite the ever-increasing political and social awareness of the problems associated with unwed pregnancy, both "pro-life" and "pro-choice" advocates have managed to gain a certain amount of support. This is largely due to the fact that the issue of unwed pregnancy is complex and has no easy solution.

The "pro-life" movement argues that pregnancy should not be allowed, as it is a violation of a woman's right to make her own decisions. They also argue that providing abortion services is a form of "baby-killing," and that it is an act of violence against women.

On the other hand, the "pro-choice" movement argues that women have the right to choose whether or not to have a child. They believe that providing abortion services is a way for women to exercise their reproductive rights.

It is clear that there is no easy solution to this issue. Both sides have valid arguments, and it is up to the government to find a way to balance the needs of both women and society.

The government should ensure that women have access to information about their reproductive options, and that they are able to make informed decisions about whether or not to have a child. This can be achieved through comprehensive sex education and marriage education programs.

The government should also ensure that women have access to affordable and legal abortion services, and that they are able to exercise their reproductive rights without fear of discrimination.

Finally, the government should ensure that women have access to support services, such as counseling and prenatal care, to help them make informed decisions about their reproductive health.

It is crucial that the government take action to address the issue of unwed pregnancy, and that it does so in a way that is fair and just to all women.

War Economy

Economy

Fuels

by William Rogers

The current debate over energy policies has focused on the appropriate balance between the need to ensure a secure and stable energy supply and the need to reduce our dependence on foreign oil.

The United States is currently consuming about 50% of the world's energy, and it is clear that we need to find a way to reduce our reliance on foreign oil.

One potential solution is to increase our domestic energy production. This could be achieved through the development of new sources of energy, such as nuclear power, wind power, and solar power.

Another potential solution is to increase the efficiency of our energy use. This could be achieved through improved building codes, the use of more energy-efficient appliances, and the adoption of energy-efficient practices in industry.

It is clear that we need to take action to address the issue of energy policy, and that we need to do so in a way that is fair and just to all Americans.

The government should ensure that energy policies are developed in a way that is fair and just to all Americans, and that they are able to exercise their right to access affordable and quality health care.

Healthcare

Unemployment

by Nichole Kain and Michael Cartezano

The recent increase in unemployment has been a significant concern for many Americans. The government has taken steps to address this issue, but more needs to be done.

The government should ensure that job training programs are accessible to all workers, and that they are able to receive the training they need to find new employment.

The government should also ensure that workers have access to unemployment benefits, and that they are able to receive these benefits in a timely manner.

Finally, the government should ensure that workers have access to job placement services, and that they are able to receive these services in a timely manner.

It is clear that we need to take action to address the issue of unemployment, and that we need to do so in a way that is fair and just to all Americans.

The government should ensure that unemployment policies are developed in a way that is fair and just to all Americans, and that they are able to exercise their right to access affordable and quality health care.
Poet Dunn Visits Kenyon

What's Reeling at Rosse

Lonely Place

In a Lonely Place. Directed by Nicholas Ray. Starring Humphrey Bogart, Gloria Grahame. 1950.

Humphrey Bogart is in top form as a short-tempered Hollywood novelist who, in a good role, actually narrates his own story. In an unexpected part, he brings to the screen the character that he used to run so well in the低位小说. The cause of this? An ambitious, young and inexperienced detective who wants to expose the novelist's secrets to the public. The novel that Bogart wrote is about a man who is discovered to be murdering his wife. The novel is a huge success, but the real-life events behind it are far more tragic than the story itself.

Marilyn

Marilyn. Directed by George Cukor. Starring Marilyn Monroe, Donald O'Connor. 1959.

A biography of Marilyn Monroe, who has been an inspiration to many women. The film shows her life from her early years in the workshop of her father, through her years in Hollywood, and finally to her untimely death. The film captures the essence of Monroe's struggles and her intense desire to be truly loved. The film also explores the relationship between Monroe and her mother, which is one of the most important aspects of her life. A powerful and moving film that has resonated with audiences for decades.

Parisee

Double Cheese, Pepperoni... By Molly Donnelly

Mounds of meaty crust, sausage, onion rings, and old-fashioned arcade games at a local pizza parlor. A favorite for both the kids and adults, it has been a fixture in the area for many years. It's the perfect place to grab a quick meal after a long day at work or school.

Finzi-Continis

A touching story of a family's struggle to keep their small town alive during the Great Depression. The family owns a small restaurant, but when the Depression hits, they must find new ways to earn a living. The film is a moving portrayal of the resilience and determination of the human spirit.

Ladies Vanishes

Ladies Vanishes. Directed by Alfred Hitchcock. With Margaret Lockwood, Michael Redgrave, Charles Winninger, Paul Lukas, and Cecil Parker. 1941.

The story of a woman who vanishes on the way to see her fiancé. The film is a classic example of Hitchcock's style, with its clever plot twists and suspenseful atmosphere. The film is also a commentary on the roles of men and women in society.

Starting Friday

TAPS

• George C. Scott • Timothy Hutton

TAPS. Directed by Steven Spielberg. Starring Tom Berenger, Jeff Goldblum, Richard Chaves. 1981.

A story about a group of soldiers who are forced to defend their army post from a mysterious creature. The film is a thrilling and suspenseful tale that keeps audiences on the edge of their seats. A classic alien invasion film that has become a cult favorite.
Aesthetics Conference: What Makes a Joke?

By Hunter Eiris

On January 30, the Faculty Events Committee and Kennesaw College invited Hunter Eris to discuss his research on humor and specifically the concept of what makes a joke, a topic he is currently exploring. Eris argued that jokes are not simply a matter of what makes a person laugh but are deeply connected to cultural and social norms. He presented evidence from various cultural contexts, including the work of philosopher Donald Davidson, to support his arguments. Eris concluded that jokes are not just a matter of individual preference but are influenced by broader cultural and social factors.
Meet Top Competition

Swimmin’ Women Prepare for Nationals
By Susan Smith

Although half the season has already passed, the women’s swimming team has barely time to reflect over its outstanding accomplishments.

The squad will swing against two more power houses this weekend: Clarion State University, which captured the Division III national title last year, and Ohio University, which also boasts an acceding supply of outstanding swimmers.

Who does a small college likeKenyon seem to being herself under such tryphetic competitors? According to Coach Jim Steen, the better the competition is during the season, the better his squad will perform at the Division III National Championships. “These team have provided us with a good opportunity to swim against tougher competition than the teams we tend to swim against during the season. As a result, by the end of the season when we swim against other Division III teams we’re in a better situation.”

Carrying a virtual eye ball record on their shoulders, the Ladies are rated as one of the top ten squads, which, according to Coach Steen, has to “tell the story two: look over the underdogs going into the end of the season. This year we are not the favorites. It has both its advantages and disadvantages, and we’re hoping to play off those advantages.”

Like Friday the Ladies swim against Case Western Reserve and Wooster in what turned out to be a competitive but victorious meet for the Ladies. In the dual meet Kenyon swam Case-Wesley 94-27, and in the same time defeated By Wooster 89-93. Although, the Ladies outscored Wooster by nearly 100 points, fun place as the GLCA meet two weeks ago. Winner proved to be a thrilling competition at Friday’s meet.

On Saturday, Kenyon swam against even more tough competition at Wittenberg University, a top Division II contender. Although the Ladies were outscored 105-87, the experience is what counts. Kenyon pulled in some impressive times in the wake of its opponents, however, Beth Davis took first place in the 100 yd. backstroke with a time of 1:07.02, while teammate Maria Ferreri recorded 2:04.07 in the 200 yd. freestyle, and 2:38.20 in the 100 yd. freestyle.

At the GLCA meet two weeks ago, the Ladies played host and victim, accumulating a score of 446 points. A total of seven teams participated in the seasonal event.

Ladies Skid to 0-9 With Losses to Denison, Marietta
By Martha Lorentz

Still searching for a winning formula, the Ladies’ basketball team dropped to 0-9 with losses to Denison and Marietta.

In the 55-51 loss to the Big Red, the Owls battled hard, but were no match for their conference opponents. The Owls played tough defense, keeping the Big Red to a 5-10 first half...but their attack was too: look over the underdogs going into the end of the season. This year we are not the favorites. It has both its advantages and disadvantages, and we’re hoping to play off those advantages.

Ash and Barends Shine in Early Season Track Meets
By Steve Reinhart

The men’s and women’s indoor track and field season opened two weeks ago with a triangular meet at the Ohio Wesleyan University campus.

The men’s team finished second at OWU, scoring 95 points to best Kenyon (40) and Ohio Northern (31). Fred Barends led the Bowdies by running the 600 yard dash in 1:34.6, a personal best. He finished a good meet by placing second in the 40 yard dash and in the 100 yard dash. Muller, running for the first time in two years, finished second in the 265 intermediate hurdles, checking in at 3:48. In the field events, we won the Triples Jump at 20-20 and was second in the long jump at 19-5.6.

Another personal best was accomplished by sophomore Ted Ash, who ran a 4:27.1 mile, good enough for third place.

The women’s team placed third behind OWU and Wooster at the meet. Freshman Elizabeth Lai was Kenyon’s only individual winner that day, as she ran the 265 hurdles in 41.1. She also finished third in the 400 and hurdles.

Both Ed and freshman James Ash were the only athletes to achieve second place finishes. Ed was named to the 1,000 with a 3:06.9 mark and Ash ran the mile in 4:54.3. Another freshman who placed in her first collegiate meet was Lisa Smith. She took third in the Long Jump and fourth place in the 265 yard hurdles.

Last weekend, both squads hosted Ohio University and ONU. The Owls topped the Owls 68-53 while the men placed second between ONU and Ohio. The women were paced by Ash as she won both distance events: The mile run (5:36) and the 3000 meter (11:39). The men were again led by senior Barends, who demonstrated his versatility by winning the 500 meter run with a time of 1:22, anchoring the victorious 3200 Meter Relay.

Kenyon attempted only 9 days in the field half, a major factor in the Ladies’ 24-25 halftime defeat. The usual major Denison in the second half, 26-25, was simply not enough. Denison’s Mary Chairman, the game’s high scorer with 23, was far and away the dominant offensive force throughout the contest. Ms. Salser led the Ladies with 16, while Anne Hummert and Alice Mole tied for 16 and 10, respectively.

Against the Pioneers, the Ladies lost their first conference game, falling to the battle of the books by 29 at Salina haunted 117 and Marietta scores.

Trailing by only two at the half, 24-22, Kenyon literally succumbed to Marietta’s relentless half-court press. The press and the raucous student cheering combined to rattle the Ladies into making many turnovers, which ultimately led to the 46-30, Karns-average margin of 15 for the loss, while Salmaon gained 35 and Muller had 16. In the men’s game, Salser has found her shooting touch, and鲜夏光, the unsung hero, learned how to turn out to be a big plus for this Ladies.

Kensington traveled to Cedar on Friday night and defeated the Fighting Scots of Marietta 87-72. Coach Sattler said a 2-18 record for the Lady Owls. The Owls were held to 2-16 points in the first half, but amassed 27 and 26 in the second half. The Owls lost by 16 and 19 respectively.

The Owls lost by 2 points on Tuesday, February 4. After equaling the first scoring of Kenyon during the first game, the Owls turned to a big plus for this Ladies.
