VI Faces Stiff Charges

BY JEREMY BROMBBERG
A representative of the Ohio Liquor Control Commission came to Gambier and cited the Village for violations of state and local commission regulations last Thursday, October 11.

According to Mr. Robert Collier, representing the commission, the charges are: 1) sale and/or furnishing of alcoholic beverages to a person under 18 years of age, 2) allowing a person under the age of 21 to handle or control alcoholic beverages, 3) the employment of a person under the age of 21, and 4) allowing improper conduct—conduct condoning or encouraging the use of alcoholic beverages.

The first two are violations of state regulations, the last two of the liquor commission. Collier came to Gambier on the recommendation of the investigative witnesses and to establish the agent (the witnesses who served the alcohol of the permit holder) and that an interview notice against him (Mr. Leo Rapaport) ordering him before the commission to face a hearing on civil charges.

Collier stated, "The investigation is now over. We are in the process of filing a report. He continued that due to certain natural factors such as processing time, as well as legal constraints, the hearing will not take place for at least another two or three months.

When asked what part the school has played in the investigation, Mr. Collier replied, "They brought the matter to our attention. We received a statement from Mr. Arnold Hamilton, director of security. Since then they have cooperated with the investigation."

Collier dismissed the triviality of the charges. "Under these circumstances it's more serious. The age of the person served is a factor—she's a juvenile. Also, she consumed so much in such a short period. Thirdly, the age of the person who did the actual serving is important. "It is fortunate that manslaughter charges weren't filed against the waited," said Collier, speculating on what might have happened had the girl who drank the alcohol died. "There have been cases in the past when death has resulted from this type of action. In this case, the death was avoidable, and that the girl almost arrived too late."

Dean Edwards and Reading were unable to comment on the investigation. They declined, citing the up-and-coming budget. But when it was pointed out that the state has a law against furnishing minors with alcohol at private parties, Dean Edwards explained Kentucky's policy by stating that someone is allowed to drink that the college must report such violations. He added, "that students as citizens in this state have an obligation to the courts and laws of the state. One thing the college has to do is educate the student in regard to alcohol."

Leo Rapaport and the girl who drank the alcohol also declined comment, so as not to affect the hearing. Also, the witnesses who served the drinks said that she had not been informed of her responsibilities in regard to requesting proof of age.

Students Wary, Observes Mary

BY SALLY McGILL
Since joining the staff of the Kentucky Health Service as the Administrative Assistant last May, Mary Austin has been familiarizing herself with her duties.

Even at a glance, that the has been here, Enow has noticed that many students are coming in from the Health Service when they need it. Consequently, her immediate goal is to remedy that situation. She stresses the fact that all records at the Health Service are completely confidential. She also urges any student who is not satisfied with the original diagnosis receives not to be afraid to return for a follow-up visit, especially if his symptoms persist or change. Finally, she reminds students that they do have a mechanism for grievances, namely, the Student Health Committee.

Another change at the Kentucky Health Service deals with prescription refills. A student can no longer change prescription costs to his or her accepted account. Each student will now receive a bill by mail directly for each prescription.

There exist no other real changes in the Kentucky Health Service staff, but it does plan to promote a few new health-oriented programs. For example, it has sponsored a lecture on human sexuality for the freshmen this fall, and beginning today, it is running a group discussion session on alcoholism.

Also, there are plans in the making right now for a health care talk show on WKCO this fall, and future hopes to join with the Women's Center in sponsoring a lecture dealing with the necessity of self-breast examinations, Pap tests, and pelvic exams. Finally, the Health Service hopes to run a series of short health-care hints in The Collegian this year.

Enow originally comes from Ridgeline, Connecticut. She attended Denison University as an undergraduate, where she earned a Bachelor of Science Degree in Biology. Continuing her studies, she entered the Physician's Assistant Program at Yasar University. She completed the two-year program in August 1978, and then joined the staff of the community hospital in Ridgeline the following month, where she stayed until coming to Kentucky.

Haywood Interview, Part Two

BY ROGER FILLION
This is the second part of an interview with Provost Bruce Haywood. The topic is the Collegian calendar.

Q: There has been some experimentation with the college calendar within the past three to four years. What do you think of the results?
A: We should have experimented more. I still remain fond of the proposal I offered or the same some years ago for a 3-1-3 calendar: a calendar under which students would take three courses between September and Thanksgiving, and then take one course between Thanksgiving and Christmas vacation, and four second semester. I think that would have been a very exciting calendar. It would have solved many of the problems that we have in overload and in the pressure of the calendar. And it would have provided an extraordinary opportunity, to think to do only one thing for a period of about 3 1/2 weeks.

Bruce Haywood
Q: Would the courses being taught during this one course period be in any way different from those offered each semester?
A: Yes. There would be bound to be. When you design a course and think of the subject matter, the organizing principle, inevitably you think of a time frame. The way the time frame changes changes your other assumptions as well. ... There are certain things I think you could do to advantage separately. For example, in the study of a language you could have a marvelous concentration there, and make wonderful headway to learn a language in that way. It would also provide an extremely interesting way of doing off-campus study. A student would be gone for a shorter period of time and and accomplish a considerable amount if that student's focus was upon our object of study. Consider, for example, what Art History might be able to do by taking a group of students to Europe where they could study paintings at first hand instead of via a projector or something of that sort. It would have, I think, a very light effect on our work here.

Q: What do you think the chances are that your college calendar are at Kentucky?
A: It's a plan that we will consider when I offered it. And I had more reason to do it at the time. The fact is that the college is a very conservative institution. There are many people with very powerful investments in the two semester system that we have.

Q: What is in your interest in the two semester system, basically?
A: It's there. It's familiar. It's the known world. For many people, it's the system they went through, and therefore prefer. That is also one in which it is easier to take the course in this semester and do it in that semester without having to make any changes in it. My scheme wouldn't allow that. It would demand some changes in pace. So I don't see any objection of that there will be change until other factors might again intervene. If there are enough people that are fed up with the problem that the system now brings, if there are enough people that are uncertain as to what the October break really represents, and if there are enough people who complain about the pace, that the last Christmas early enough etc., etc., then there are enough people who are unhappy enough with different aspects of the existing system to coax them to vote for something new. That's usually what takes.

Q: Aside from offering many benefits, what present problems would the 3-1-3 calendar solve?
A: The biggest problem, I think, from the point of view of the faculty, is the fragmentation of the academic year, so terribly hard for good teaching and good learning to have to stock up on prescriptions, where you get into the rhythm of your teaching and you get spent for a period of time. And the way you plan is an appropriately long time. Now I want to add, of course, that if that time frame is too extended, peoples' prescription will still and their energy will lag. And then we begin to drop off. And that's why all institutions of higher education in this country and abroad have a very definite limit to what we can sustain. Our second semester in a way is a bridge in which we would really like the academic year as a whole to look like. There is a beginning. There is an extended period of time. There is an appropriate spring break. There is a sufficient length of time after that vacation for the momentum to be built up again, and to charge into the final examination period.
MIND YOUR BODY

It is now a well-known secret that the Faculty Committee on Academic Affairs has been contemplating certain curriculum changes. We can only summate what their specific intentions are, but whatever changes do occur at the Colleges should in no way exceed those at Carleton.

Changes in athletics at Kenyon were dropped in 1968. That same year chapels and reading requirements dropped, all in accordance with college literature. As early as seven years have elapsed since “the period of liberation has been renounced and nullified.” So it is now time to reconvene that body which seeks a mandatory requirement, or to reconvene a policy which may be of partial credit for Physical Education classes.

Therefore, the Athletic Department offers a limited range of athletic instruction, but these programs are held back by minimal publicity. The only information disseminated about these classes comes from the small blue pamphlets passed out one night at dinner. Additionally, most classes are held either very early in the morning or at night, rather odd times in which to engage in rigorous exercise. “Tennis anyone anymore at 10:30 p.m.?” The facts are that classes are not taken seriously and that they are not part of the registration system.

There may be a tendency to bring things alive until the new athletic classes are held. The only operational facilities are provided during recess. We disagree. Such programs can be implemented now. Ultimately, all athletics will come to pass, but the key lies with proper instruction. With seventeen intercollegiate sports and only seven fulltime coaches, the viability of several sports should be provided in the coaches. We feel granting credit for physical education classes would further encourage student involvement in athletics. In a literal sense, the role of a liberal arts college is to help in the development of the total student. As of now, it is clearly not worth the student’s time to participate in any of the education courses. Physical Education credit would create an instructional program of high quality, for the well-being of the valuable athlete, in the opinion of most of us, the “Motor Munitions.”

Prisoner of Zenda

The Prisoner of Zenda. Directed by John Cromwell. With Ronald Colman, Madeleine Carroll Black and White, 1921, 101 mins., Tuesday, October 24, 10:00 in Ross.

In this film, Colman stars as a reality, his royal cousin, the King of Ruma, who, is kidnapped, lyned supporters co-operate in his escape while the King is in order to keep from snapping your head.

This classic is the epitome of escape, swashbuckling entertainments which are exciting and realistic. All people of all ages can appreciate Zenda. The New York Times called it the "most pleasing film that has come to this city in a long time. The identity should not be confused with the empty Peter Sellers remake.

Lawrence of Arabia

Lawrence of Arabia, directed by David Lean, written by Robert Bolt, starring Peter O'Toole, Omar Sharif, Anthony Quinn, running time: 180 minutes, 1962 Color, Thursday, October 17, 8:30 and Sunday, October 21, 8:00, Ross.

Lawrence of Arabia, a gripping desert epic, is one of a series of expensive, impressive, and successful prestige films directed by Sir David Lean (including Bridge on the River Kwai, Dr. Zhivago, and Ryan's Daughter). Film moved over a four year period mainly on location in the Middle East at a cost of over four million dollars. The film was the recipient of two Academy Awards, Director for 1962 and Best Director for 1962.

Many critics have been in conflict with the Theatricals in convincing the role of the egotistical T.E. Lawrence, the noted archaeologist, military adventurer, dreamer. O'Toole is supported by an impressive and talented cast. Omar Sharif makes his western debut as Lawrence's Arab colleague. A number of distinguished actors pop up as Arab roles:其中包括Sir Alec Guinness, Anthony Quinn, and Peter O'Toole.

All give interesting performances.

Ben Hur

This is, as they say in Times Town, a spectacular film, which means you’re supposed to judge it in terms of statistics. Statistically, it cost $15,000,000 to make (to put it even in these post-Apocalypse days), had a cast of 10,400, and used a million pounds of plaster for the various sets. It’s also what is known as a Biblical Spectacle, which means that it’s set in early AD and has Jesus Christ. Directed by a bunch of Romans in it.

Charlton Heston stars as the title figure and Leon Wallace wrote the script. It’s an unsuccessful marriage, and not a film of merit. It has a high death rate, and of course the legendary chariot race. Directed by veteran William Wyler, this is truly a spectacular spectacle.

Saga Plea

To the Editor:

Mr. Norman Walker’s letter, which appeared in the September 27 Collegian seems to indicate that the food service at the campus dining halls is unsafe to students. However, if Mr. Walker’s reasoning were best, he would be forced to conclude that the food service at the college is unsafe to all students. It is not at all clear how Mr. Walker would come to such an absurd conclusion.

Food quality is easily blamed on the management and cutlery, but many feel that disorganization and a bad attitude spell poor food quality. Mr. Walker, however, failed to mention the physical surroundings, namely the facilities in Pierce. As anyone who works in the Pierce kitchen knows, the facilities existing in Pierce make proper food preparation impossible.

This is not to say that Mr. Walker’s view is wrong, it is to say, however, that all food should be handled in such a way as to provide a solution for this problem, workable suggestions must be made. That is to say, suggestions which can be implemented within the limits of the budget of the Food Services Department.

To this end, the college employs a food service director, Kent Banger, and Student Council has a food committee, headed by Bill Cook. Both of these people are willing to hear suggestions and ideas, and are willing to cooperate in making such a committee worthwhile. If you have a suggestion to make, you might try writing to someone who can do something about it.

THE VI Service Berated;

Bureaucracy Rapped

Food for Thought

by John Palfy

Economics must deplete the market situation in Gambier. Students must abhor its consequences.

In a country based on the competitive market system, the Gambier community is just as susceptible to market changes as any other community. Physical Education credit would create an instructional program of high quality, for the well-being of the valuable athlete, in the opinion of most of us, the “Motor Munitions.”

Finally there is the general consensus that the VI service members seldom make any normal effort to make the face socially or culturally acceptable.

Thus, having the VIOLC take the liquor license would have obvious unfortunate repercussions for those who drink alcohol, many people wonder if the long run, it is not about time some with authority walked over the VI. The consumer found it difficult to do so. If the pleasant consequences of the VI beastliest liquor license

Assuming the establishment would remain open, he would have to revitalize the once popular and quality food service that could be found there. Without the VI can approach the outstanding quality food service in the years back. Hopefully it can at least stand in the picture of the society.

Educated Guess?

by ROBIN SALOMON

"Jimmy Carter is dedicated in every way to being one of the many hyperbolic echoes from Plains, Georgia during the President’s birth in 1976. With this in mind, why is President Carter creating a new cabinet level Department of Energy?"

Part of the answer lies in the President’s personal character.

Late Score Leaves Gridders 0-5

Surprising Oberlin Edges Kenyon

BY TODD HOLZMAN

And the beat goes on. Kenyon's conquering football team shocked fans and alumni Saturday by falling 7-3 to an elegant five-hour Oberlin rally in front of a large Homecoming crowd at McBride Field. None present were as surprised as the Lords themselves when Oberlin's Kolee Schick gave the Yeomen their first victory of the season with a 24-yard touchdown reception from quarterback Greg Hasch, only 56 seconds were left to play in the game. The loss was Kenyon's fifth straight, and the second heart-breaker in a row. The previous week a late Marietta comeback had stung another near-victory.

Saturday's game was scoreless until the first play of the fourth quarter, when Kenyon's Tom Gibson kicked a 22-yard field goal to give the Lords a 3-0 advantage. The score came at the end of a 7-yard Kenyon drive that was stalled at the Oberlin four-yard line by a fumble. Kenyon managed to keep the Yeomen bottled up for most of the quarter until a costly personal foul penalty on the Lords defense launched the 80-yard Oberlin drive that ended in victory.

Freshman tailback Pat Hankler went out early in the contest with a leg injury. He managed to return late in the second half, but in the interim the rushing chores fell to John Mackessy and Jim Mazella. Mackessy, a tranplanted defensive back, carried 14 times for 48 yards out of the backfield slot, while fullback Mazella ground out 57 yards in 15 carries. Freshman quarterback Mike Handel completed 12 of 24 passes for 93 yards.

The team statistics were fairly even, as fitted the game itself. Kenyon had 11 first downs to Oberlin's 10, but the Yeomen outgained the Lords 231-172.

Perhaps the key to the game was Kenyon's failure to capitalize on any of Oberlin's 3 turnovers, most notably a Pete White interception that gave the Lords the ball at the visitors' 45 midway through the final period.

The loss called to mind the strange relationship between Kenyon and Oberlin in the gridiron.In a way the set has come full cycle. In 1975 a 15-point Oberlin team leaped into Gambler and embarrassed the Lords 144. The Yeomen were aided by a bizarre form of football "hand-dipping" that included, among other equalizing measures, the shortening of quarters. As legend would have it, the Yeomen had the football program at Oberlin, where gridiron had been an endangered species. For three consecutive years venerable Kenyon teams made the Yeomen wish they had not miscalled, by posting scores such as 55-0, but on Saturday Oberlin's good fortune returned. The Lords will try to make their own breaks as they travel to Pennsylvania this week for a Saturday afternoon contest against Grove City College.

Of interest to Kenyon football fans may be the resurrection of Division III's team out of the ashes of an 0-9 season in 1971. The Big Red, driven by a sensational junior named Clay Sampson, have compiled a 5-0 record and are ranked 5th in the Division III National ratings. Perhaps most astonishing is their style of play. They have taken the old single-wing offense out of mothballs, and with Sampson at its backfield position, have made it into a devastating attack. Sampson leads the OAC in scoring, rushing, passing, and total offense, and recently scored all five Division touchdowns in a 35-20 victory over Heidelberg. Most importantly, the Big Red need not face the claim, "You haven't played anybody yet." Two weeks ago they dropped the 2-1 game winning streak of defending NCAA Division III champion Baldwin-Wallace 24-23, giving hope to all of the OAC's current underdogs.

SWIMMERS SPLIT; O.W.U. IS NEXT

By JOE WILSON

After a satisfying victory over Denison last Wednesday, the Kenyon women's swimming team suffered a disappointing loss to Wooster Saturday.

Winning 11 out of 18 events the ladies over-whelmed the Big Red by a score of 88 to 42. The victory was particularly satisfying as Kenyon had finished fourth, 16 points behind second place Denison, at the Oberlin relays several weeks before.

Despite having an hour long practice the afternoon of the meet outstanding performances were put in by the lady swimmers. Junior Laura Chase led the team with individual wins in the 100 and 200 yard freestyle, and the 50 yard breaststroke. Also putting in multiple wins were sophomore Barb Stephenson in the 50 and 100 yard butterfly, and freshman Suzie Striet in the 100 and 200 yard individual medley.

Despite the success against Denison, it is very apparent that the lady swimmers are hardly assured number 4. It remains to be seen if the famous Kenyon taper will work its magic and add yet another conference title to the Kenyon swimmers tradition.

The ladies have another tough meet against Ohio Wesleyan at Shaffer pool on Friday evening. The Wesleyan team is considered to be the top team in the conference.

Mt. Union Snaps Win Streak

STATE REPORTS

It was a classic "almost.'" The Kenyon Lords trampled the soccer team of Ohio Athletic Conference rival Mt. Union by two goals at the end of the first period Monday. A penalty kick by John Hallerston, the conference's leading scorer, made it 1-0 already in the second period.

But in the remaining minutes, Kenyon's Chris Morley took a pass from forward Marvin Magad to break the score line. Then center halfback Gerry Stone made a corner kick conversion off a pass by Guy Keifer, and suddenly it was 3-2. The almost turned the score.

A last second shot by the Lords was no good. The loss meant several things:

- Kenyon is no longer undefeated in its division of OAC, and sports a 3-1 divisional record.
- A three-game winning streak that included impressive triumphs over Denison and Baldwin-Wallace was quelled.

The next week's game with Wooster is all the more important since the Scots beat Mt. Union 1-0 in an overtime game the week before.

"Wooster is a very good team," said coach Jeffrey Vennell. "Their offense is very potent. Their defense is very good. They do a lot of interleaving up front. It can be confusing. Wooster brings the ball down one side of the field, then crosses. It is a lateral game.

Home Fields Help Harriers

By ANDREW R. HUGGINS

Finally running on their home course, Kenyon's Cross Country team ran five broad miles around the hockey fields, by the sewage plant, and up the side of the community garbage dump to easily beat Marietta 20-4 and raise its record to 10-1.

Top finishing honors for Kenyon went to freshman Jim Palese who held on to a second place finish to Marietta's Joe Quinn in a time of 27:37. Five Kenyon runners followed in rapid succession: Mike Helms, Co-captain Bob Calin, and Andrew Huggins came in separated by a near fifteen seconds and right behind were co-captain Jim Reeler and fellow senior Steve Knowles.

Reeler, who had spent the previous night washing the rain soaked World Series in Pittsburg, pulled in Gambier at 10:00 a.m., an hour before the race, and on 2½ hours sleep the night before, went on to run 28:14.

The fourth freshman finisher was Alec McAllister. Ed Corcoran was caught by teammate Dan DeWitt in the closing stretch and the two tied for 10th place in a time of 28:48. Eight seconds later, co-captain Tim Hayes crossed the line for 12th place. Fritz Goodman ran his best time of the year in breaking the 30 minute barrier with a 29:48, good for 143rd place, while Herb Karpunin and Mike Van Der Linden rounded out the Kenyon in 16th and 23rd places respectively.

Perhaps the outstanding race of the day was run by Merrill Robinson. Kenyon's sole woman competitor of the day, Robinson, who has consistently worked out with the men's team all season, braved the elements and the added impediment of running alone in the final stages of the race, recorded a 3:59, her best time of the year, and one that ranks competitively with the best in the nation.

With one week to go before tomorrow's All Ohio Invitational at Ohio Wesleyan, left before the O.A.C. Championships, Coach Nick Houston's Lords are gearing themselves for a season-end finish to match the rest of a superlative fall.

Ladies Crush Yeomen For Third Straight

By LARRY O'CONNEL

While one Kenyon team suffered a heartbreaker against Oberlin Saturday, another walked through a laughter. The field hockey team devastated the women from Oberlin by a score of 9-0 therefore extending their winning streak to three games.

The winning streak started October 3rd at Kent State. The Kenyon women, with a 1 and 3 record, went in against a division 1 school that finished second in Ohio last year and came out with a hard 1-0 victory. Coach Karen Brice stated happily, "It sounded good for us. We had never beaten Kent State and it gave us new confidence!"

Nine days later the somewhat questionable offense of the ladies exploded at Muskingum. Co-captain Co-Captain Ann Hemmings had three goals and didn't even play the second half. The other six scores were split evenly among the rest of the team.

Muskingum and Oberlin weren't upset strong," commented Coach Brucke, "but we played very well. Against Muskingum we couldn't do anything wrong. Our girls didn't even have to touch the ball." In fact in the back to back shutting out the team only allowed four shots. "Our defense is playing excellently in midfield," she continued.

The toughest challenge for the Kenyon team, now 4-0, was hosting the Ohio State squad yesterday. The Buckeyes, ranked 16th in the nation, have one of their strongest teams in years led by All-American and Olympian Sue Marsella.

The team's hope for a 500 season looks good. The Ladies face Marietta next Thursday. Action begins at 4:30 at the Airport Field.
