McBride Alarm System proves faulty in fire

By Tom Ford

A 2 a.m. trash fire caused the evacuation of 157 freshmen and Resident Advisors from the McBride dorm on Monday.

The residents were alerted by the third floor after efforts to ring the fire alarm failed. The alarm, according to Donald J. Omahan, Director of Student Housing, had been "somehow" turned off.

Mr. Omahan said that the master control in the Main Lobby of McBride had been left open and somebody had turned off both switches controlling the alarm.

The alarm was kept off during the summer," said Mr. Omahan, "but, as of the beginning of the term, all alarms on campus were on. Somebody, or other entity, was putting around the key, shut off the alarm in this (McBride) building.

George J. Fisher and James A. Harrell, both freshmen, were working late in the third floor study area when they discovered the fire.

"We noticed the room had a funny smell and we opened the door to get it out," said George. "There was too much smoke that we couldn't see, we couldn't breath.

George then looked for a fire alarm, which he said "was not the most conspicuous thing to find." When he found and pulled the alarm, nothing happened.

"We didn't hear a damned thing," said James, "not a damned thing.

"The way this fire alarm thing is setup, we would have been 'bitten' if in one way awake. I mean we would have been all over," George said.

The freshman got to pull a fire alarm in his life, without getting in trouble for it said George, and "it doesn't even work!"

No Knock" Room Surveys Announced by Omahan

By Tom Ford

All student living quarters will be subject to unannounced periodic and announced "maintenance, health and safety" surveys this year. They will be conducted by a member of the Maintenance Department, "acting as a representative of the Health Department.

Charles Jacobs of the maintenance department will conduct the search for need for repairs to college property resulting from damage through normal use or student neglect. Violations of regulations pertaining to the use of college furnishings and equipment will also be reported.

A program outline, given to all Resident Advisors and Residence Managers, and Division Presidents, states that Mr. Jacobs will also be looking for "consistently poorly kept bathrooms" including "excessive slippiness."

The Student Council discussed the program with Mr. Omahan earlier this month and questioned the latter.

Larson's Suit Staters Round 2

By Peter Meyer

Joe Larson charges that the two discriminations against him by the policy entered into in Wednesday at the Judicial Board of representatives self-appointed and the State Civil Rights Commission, with whom Mr. Larson他自己 has a complaint, although he said he has no legal bearing in federal suit whatsoever, were made on the Commission is working to put out a construction site open to both the public and Mr. Larson.

Joe Larson can be summarized as follows: Larson was hired in the Student Trustee Instructor in 1971. Best money were hired for less qualified men. As a part of a Masters degree, was a part of a salary of $1,000.

The committee is made up of only a Bachelor's and hired at $1,000. Mr. Larson's Masters degree, was a part of a salary of $1,000.

COUNCIL IMPOUNDS

HOUSE SYSTEM FUNDS

By Tom Ford

Susan T. Groves, Dean of the Residential College, reported action on the House System is progressing, under her direction.

Last night Dean Groves met with the members of Manning House to discuss a report on the committee that is assigned for Manning. She reported to the Senate that the student council will be able to manage $2,750 from the program. Kevin Martin, Council President, was unable to answer the questions about about the sources of House System funding, otherwise, been answered.

Dean Groves said she now has $7,745 to work with and with the additional $1,250, Manning House would have just under $10,000 to allocate to the various houses.

Role of Faculty Advisors

The role of the Faculty Advisor in Kenyon organizations was discussed at the Senate meeting.

Particular attention was paid to the roles of advisors on the film and journalism boards. Dean of Students Thomas J. Edwards said, "The Film Society and Journalism Board-they need direction. If we want to work off the others, let's take them separately.

Bruce Raymond, Provost, said he felt faculty members should be removed from the boards. He voiced a concern over faculty members being held responsible for the morality of the students.

Peter Reins, director of the Film Board, said last spring it was held that the faculty members were placed on the board to generalize him and make sure he doesn't abuse his powers. He also said that he has been asked to pick the faculty members to serve on the Film Board.

Mr. Reins voiced his concerns that censurship from the Faculty Advisor may become an issue later this year. It seemed a consensus of the Senate that faculty advisors are meant to serve in some unification position or be involved by the students to help on some particular point.

Presidential Search Committee

The Presidential Search Committee has finished its field of nearly 100 candidates for the position, to make four to 12 names.

Jim Kindratz, Search-At-Large and member of the Search Committee, reported that they have interviewed five candidates and plans to interview three to four more next month. Within two months the Committee plans to bring two to four candidates to campus.

Mr. Groves would only say that there were two minorities on the committee and that one of them were considered but refused to accept final candidates, mostly because they are "happy where they are."

Question Raised

On Editorial Policy

To the Editor:

The editorial concerning the "Rape of Justice" was an interesting analysis of the pardon granted to the former President. The issue has, however, been discussed sufficiently in the popular news media, and it did not enter after reading the article, that it was more an elucidation of the accounts in Newsweek and Time or any of the papers that have contained accounts of the action. It would seem logical that the Kenyon community has formed an opinion concerning the matter, and I question whether another editorial dealing with Mr. Ford's action was necessary.

Whether or not the students, faculty, and other readers of this newspaper agree or disagree with the move, I doubt that this editorial skewed any opinions or introduced a startling new perspective upon the subject. This does not mean that the editor should be held responsible for stating an opinion; he must certainly have that right. I do query, however, the necessity of including the students with an opinion in a college newspaper, since there are no papers to have no place in a college newspaper. The Collegen does not attempt to report national and international news; it deals more specifically with Kenyon and the community. Thus, it seems rather incongruous that an editorial dealing with a national matter should appear, when there are enough sources for editorial comment in the college newspaper that might be re-examined.

H. Craig McCarter

Editor's reply: The Kenyon COLLEGIAN believes that it is important for the College community to be stimulated by student opinions which treat issues of great significance.

Disturbed By “The Rape of Justice”

To the Editor:

In spite of the role the news media played in reporting the tragic events, I am discouraged to note that you could permit yourself the irresponsible piece of journalism recently published under the heading "The Rape of Justice." I realize that the said piece was an editorial, and that it was an opinionated statement, it is essential to remember that an editorial amounts to a policy statement, rather than responsibility of presenting a viewpoint based on fact, not on passion over reaction and blind conviction.

I vehemently disagree with several propositions put forth in your editorial, and I would argue them in all space permitted. In the interest of brevity, however, I will dwell on the two which most upset me. The first of these may be found in the following statement:

"Moreover, Ford has concluded for the whole country that Nixon will never receive a fair trial—thereby minimizing the President's guilt in determining the scope of Watergate and shading the mild-pain question."

Your implication that President Ford, in effect, summarily made a cover-up a hold statement, but the hold and the national are not a necessary package. The very fact that Mr. Ford is keeping his tapes available to Mr. Watergate in order to expose the ridiculous position that you have taken.

"Actually there is very little difference between Ford and his predecessor. Nixon considered himself the embodiment of the President Ford takes refuge behind his conscience which conflicts with both his office to see that justice is served."

Aside from the fact that the President does not swear to serve justice in such an office, I can only answer this statement with the question "Is President Ford's conscience actually little different from Nixon's"? I do not choose here to prejudice Mr. Ford's actions; I look to the decisions I then, neither condemn nor commend Mr. Nixon. Instead, I would hope that this letter will be kept in mind when next the editor presents a policy statement and not a free press in democracy's great need, whether it be for a free press or for a stronger democracy requiring her even greater set up. I am appalled.

Violated of Trust

The "maintenance, health and safety" surveys that will be conducted on a "no notice" system this year, conflict with Article II, Section A, of the Rules and Regulations in the Student Handbook. It is stated quite clearly that only under "emergency circumstances" are premises, occupied by students, searched. It is further stated that "it is expected that student quarters will be kept in good condition and in a safe and proper manner, and that student will abide by the College's Rules and Regulations." To enter into student residences without due notice, indicates a lack of trust on the part of the Housing Office.

If the Student Housing Office is so concerned about the "potential health, fire and or safety hazards," I wonder why they can't easily conduct monthly surveys on a prior notice basis, without barging into someone's room at any hour of the day. Is it all reasonable for Maintenance Officers to make last minute student cooperation while sudden entries into student residences are advocated by Housing Officials? If students are made aware of the potential safety hazards of such things as frayed wires, pets, hot-plates, etc., then it is not unreasonable to assume that they will make some attempt to correct such hazards.

By instituting unannounced surveys this year, the Housing Office will incur the resentment of students and embroil themselves in an issue that will be abhorrent to all.

Sagas Service

During the past few weeks we have observed what appears to be a significant drop in the quality of Saga's service compared with previous years. The provisions never seem quite up to par, and the counter service is, to say the least, what inefficient.

For some strange reason, Saga has not kept abreast of the times. Meal hours, this year, are coordinated inappropriately with class schedules—making for inordinately long lines amounting to ten to twenty minute waits. This is an unfortunate mistake. Some students cannot afford to fritter away their time in between classes.

On Monday, Wednesday and Friday, at 1:00 p.m., Peirce Hall is unnecessarily congested. By closing Departmental hours, this time, Saga further accentuates the problem: too many people in one area at a given time. Obviously it would make more sense to have both dining halls open while there are so many students waiting for lunch.

In the past Saga has frequently acted promptly on serious matters. They have often enough responded to criticism with grace and immediate resolution. We call attention to these problems with the conviction that they can be resolved with all good speed.
Congress: The Pot Calling The Kettle Black
By Mark Haverland

Hurrah! Nixon's gone. New onto smaller, nastier, and potentially more manageable Executive Branch has been cleansed, let's move to the Augean Stables of Congress! The president is dead, the legislators now face the storm of public rage and protest that they have aroused. The Republican Party has faced its crime, and now the Progressive Party is on the march.

Congressional Democrats are talking about legislation, instead of how much Richard Nixon was properly charged. Senator Joe Biden, Robert Humphrey, and yet, Peter Rodino received amounts totaling merely about $10,000 from a road-building firm which would or could feature large contracts from New York City. The task was also endowed a press release, Frederick Varick points out in the press release that now schools are open, "motorists must be alert to the increased number of children walking to and from school.

I've discovered that this could be awarded $100.00 for first prize in recognition of a group of students who had to deal with the welfare of their children who had to wear or go without something new.

Be also added, "To help motorists pediatricians, parents should avoid sending their children to school or other places in cars without their cars or children or both.

That's all I wish to point out. The American child's health is not protected if he or she is not protected by a car or a bus.

That mothers should put some brightening, new clothes or other things that protect their children's clothing for better visual and emotional support.

I'll not have a broad level, what about Larson's? One question unsolved, "Middle Path crossing Wavig Ave, the car lurks up, Waging of incredible speeds, on reaching the crest, hurdle through the air, passing Camp Middle Path, and grasing the heads of the taller group that winter, it's just shake one's head and say 'Why the hell aren't they. kids', wearing these Mustang tape, on their heads'.

Just justice is served because when the child is hit by a car with wheels, comes up through the car, through the head with bent windows in the dashboard just a few feet away, and a few inches in a Nuclear war, other European fears that detente is a dangerous illusion.

The question and answer period, Werner Schoenhals, a specialist in Russian history, viewed detente as a prelude to a period of retreat between the two super-powers and, hence a potential disaster. He said that the possible motives for the Soviet drive for peace with the U.S. were a fear of war with China coupled with a desire to raise the Russian people' standard of living. The planned American space link-up is an indication of a changed relationship between the two countries. Professor Baum regretted by reason of the outcome of the Soviet threat in last year's Cuban crisis, the U.S. must respond with a nuclear alert. Professor Baum mentioned the difficulties in reaching a common philosophy of foreign policy with the rest of the world. He said that the United States has an important role to play in shaping the free world, but that we are interwoven into the world economy through technology, trade, and stability of the rest of the world.

Larson Dispute Raises Faculty Salary Questions
By Peter Meyer

The point upon which Mr. Larson's complaint and suit focus is the way in which faculty salaries are determined and in which way

As nearly all private colleges and universities, except establishing its own salary policy. This is to say that professors in the U.S. must be rated by the Board of Trustees. The President makes his decision after consulting various groups and individuals, including students, other faculty members, the head of the particular department, and the Provost. The main criterion for granting raises (beyond considerations of need) is performance. One cannot help but notice that the particular professor has contributed. In Larson's case, he taught in the College through his or her teaching, then be or she might be granted a raise. A salary increase is thus a reward for having performed exceptionally well. There is, however, nothing automatic about salary change. A professor may be outstanding and not receive a raise, while a mediocre one may have his salary increased $1000. Raises are also very dependent upon availability of funds and the College's financial situation. Larson was to begin with. In general, as an increase in salary means an increase in productivity, the professor's performance must be in line with the expectations of the College for the past year and in being rewarded and encouraged.

How much a professor is paid when he or she leaves a job is not determined by anyone at least as many factors as in the question of a professor in the College. The following criteria are:

- Instruction
- Assistant Professor
- Associate Professor
- Professor

Instructor $ 0,000-10,000
Assistant Professor $ 10,000-14,000
Associate Professor $ 12,000-17,000
Professor $ 15,000-20,000

Gambier Folklore Society Plans October Festival
By Beth Snyder

Gambier has everything except a peanuts milk shake and Apple juice tree--even a Folklore Society which organized the festival during the last week in October. The purpose of the organization is to collect and preserve as much of the community's (mostly bluegrass and folk music), crafts, lectures, and workshops.

The concerts will be held every night during the weekend, and there will be workshops the morning of the days. Those who want to participate can discuss their techniques or have jam sessions. The festival is open to all Gambier students. Local craftsmen are encouraged to display their work, which may include quilts, pottery, weaving, basket weaving, and jewelry.

Although the Gambier Folklore Society is a main function to sponsor the festival, the Society also organizes square dances. Two evenings, the weekends of November 10 and December 10. For more information, contact Professor Compher and Kostik and Kenon student Karen Berti. Pear is one of the more active members of the Society. Among those who have helped in the planning and organizing of the festival are Peter Sieger's brother, the folk artist. Although this is only the third year of the Society's existence, the organization is another factor adding to the cultural life of the College.
Faculty Lectureships To Present Ambassador Shen

By Joan Schaffer

Professor Richard B. Hoppe, chairman of the Faculty Lectureships Committee, has recently organized the tentative schedule of lectures for the fall semester. The third speaker of the series, Ambassador James C. H. Shen from the Taiwan Government, will lecture on "The Foreign Policy of the Republic of China," the first of October.

Ambassador Shen has held a number of high positions in the Chinese government, beginning in 1959 when he was Secretary to the President. From 1959 until 1967 Shen was Minister of Foreign Affairs for the Republic of China. In the following years Ambassador Shen held the posts of Director of Information, 1967-1968, Ambassador of the Republic of China to Australia, 1968-69, and Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs, 1968-71. Since 1971, Shen has served as Taiwan's Senior Diplomat in Washington.

Other speakers scheduled to lecture this fall include Dr. Estelle Ramey, President of American Women in Science, dealing with the topic "Why Educate Women?" in October; Dr. Raymond Sawyer, formerly with the National Science Foundation, will speak on "The Humanism of Science" in October. Also lecturing during the month of October is Mr. Terry Ewans speaking on "Oriental Carpets: Traditions and Techniques," Dr. Warren K. Enos lecturing on "How Soviet Citizens Live and Work," and the Honorable Collin Jackson, member of Parliament, addressing the topic of "British-American Relations." On the twenty-first of October the Dinner Quartet is scheduled to play in Petrie Hall.

For the month of November, the Committee will be sponsoring Richard M. Benack, M.D. author and practicing physician, to speak on the subject of "Bioethics." On the eighth of November Professor Donald W. Treadwell, a Phi Beta Kappa Vinton Scholar will lecture on a topic underdetermined as of now. Dr. Reuben McVickar of the University of Texas will speak on the subject of "Liberal Arts in American Higher Education," the fourteenth of November. The pianist, Walter Klein, is scheduled to appear in House Hall the fourteenth of December.

one. Some commented on long-standing traditions, while others stated that the members of certain fraternities at Kenyon would like girls as active members, that they do not feel they are affiliated does not matter.

Now, in the past, the Peeps and the Pals U.S. are the only frats on campus admitting girls as active members. Most of the other fraternities, although social fraternities, yet the sentiments were mixed concerning girls (seem to lean away from accepting them if allowed).

Spokesmen stated emphatically that girls could join as social members, paying a considerably less than full members for access to parties. They also stated that girls supposedly could attend almost any frat party, on campus anyway, a variety of responses ensued. If "some girl is worried about moshing off us, she can pay and not feel guilty about drinking off the liquor she wants," said one.

Another said, "Girls can come to our parties anyway. It is just that they feel like paying for food, that's okay with us." Perhaps this attitude is not wholly typical, because there are advantages for social members—feasting more of the意料之中的。

As happened last year, fraternities raised over 20 percent of their pledges during the year. Approximately $2000 will have been spent in vain. In any case, the proposed housing system threatens to undermine frats as centers of social activity at Kenyon. In the meantime, Kenyon students can look forward to almost an entire season of running, first parties, bands and beer.

Saga Raises Rates But Won't Comment

By Elizabeth Polish

With food costs rising at an annual increase of twelve percent, Saga has raised housing costs another $2.00 to $720.00. Saga coordinator, Steve Montanye, declined to release information on Saga's budget. "Saga is a private foundation," he said, "and we do not have to release figures." He did state that he anticipated a rise in board cost for next year.

Changes in Saga facilities include the transition of the "Dine" into a pub, where pizza and beer will be served. A new facility will open in Good Commons in two or three weeks and it will have a coffee shop atmosphere. The salad bar in Good has been moved from the position it occupied last year, to provide for thirty-five additional seats. It allows, according to Saga officials, for a more compact and better seating situation.

A shabbily-faculty buffet-brunch is one of Saga's innovations for this year. The branch will take place the first Sunday of each month, beginning October 6th, in Petrie Hall and is by reservation only. Saga hopes it will provide a place where students and faculty can talk.

Steve Montanye also plans to begin a breakfast program. Its purpose is to inform students about the food they waste. He hopes that by making them aware of the problem, they will only take the amount of food they can eat. Montanye feels that "food wasted is a moral thing."

The Sunday night buffet will continue with carved roast beef every other Friday night. Saturday night meals will alternate between platter roast beef or "deluxe" hamburgers. There are also plans for special meals and holiday meals. Saga is holding an all-campus picnic at Petrie Hall lawns on September 26th.

passage. Kevin Martin, Student Council President, asked how a student "fails to make his bed every morning" constitutes a safety hazard. The survey, to be conducted under a "no-notice" system, will be taken without the knowledge of the student. To relieve Mr. Jacobs of legal difficulties, the RA, House Manager or Provision President will accompany him on all the room visits. Original the plan called for Mr. Jacobs to be employed by the RA, "students officials only when possible," The Student Council decided that the RA should not accompany him on the survey to make it mandatory that a Student Council official attend the survey. A McBride RA assured freshmen on the hall that Mr. Jacobs will not be entering through drawers, Closet, or under beds. Mr. Martin also presented the point that "there will continue to be NO SEARCHING OF ROOMS IN THE HALL.

If violations are found the surveyor will issue a notification to the student, the RA, and the student, in the event of a violation.

Pare Fratiele League will appear at Wertheimer Fieldhouse on September 28th at 8:00 p.m. The admission is $2.00 in advance, $2.50 at the gate.

The world acclaimed Royal Shakespeare Company of England brings its activity to Mount Vernon’s Memorial Theater at 8:00 p.m. on November 1, 1974, in their production of The Hollow Crown. The Mount Vernon performance will be the only Central Ohio stop on the current American tour. Audiences will know him from such films as For Them That Trespass, The Hardy Heart, Algiers, The Curse of theombies, and Derida Gray, among others. His most recent stage appearance in America was in The Marquise with Glenn John.

The Hollow Crown is an entertainment by and about the Kings and Queens of England—monumental poetry, speeches, letters and other writings from the chronicles in the monarch’s own words as well as music representing them and by them. Victoria tells of her coronation; Horace Walpole of the death of George III; James speaks on the barrenness of tobacco; and Jane Austen gives her own prejudiced view of the history of England.

Classic Match-Up With Denison Yields 2-2 Tie

By David L. Bacon

Saturday, Sept. 21—There were Bloody Mary's in the morning beer, buns, a happy stumble down the hill to Falstaff Field—and somewhere through a ubiquitous haze, Kenyon and Denison played out a rather boringly important soccer game.

Classic match-ups usually take two forms: the two teams are either closely matched top contenders, or they are better anemic rivals with a lopsided composition of a Patton and a ramshackle reserve of kamikazes. This soccer match-up was a classic in both ways. Denison and Kenyon were in the Watson field essentially a four team race—the other two teams being Wooster and Ohio Wesleyan—and their mutual antagonism is indisputable.

The Game

The game itself was—what can you say but "frenzied." The Lords, stimulated by the irritating cries of the fans, unleashed their four-man line with a kick and run offense, but failed to score.

The Kenyon defense came for another 20 minutes or so, but the game-clinching shot was atrys. The score remained fenceless.

The Rise of the Denison Defense

Rallied, by the group of All-Conference wing Jim Sissel who blacked an outstanding show in the first half, and, with some control in the midfield, the Lords made the first effort of the game. With less than 20 minutes remaining in the first half, the Lords were off in front, but the Otters' defense, with the help of Kenyon's tendency to be easy to��, held firm. The key play of the drive was a pass from one of the midfielders to the other, and that pass was rebounded. This rebound, however, was instead of Kenyon's 14-15 bash at the goal.

The third quarter was dominated by the Kenyon offense as quarterback Rich Seville cleverly optioned off his wishbone formation, culminating in scoring drives of 61 and 69 yards. Kenyon's only effective punch was supplied by tight end Bob Jennings's brilliant 61-yard run on a quick slant pass from Clements, which set up the last touchdown.

The Otters' defense was solid all game, with only one pass interference penalty at the goal line late in the second half.

The Kenyon defense was solid throughout, but the Otters' defense was solid all game, with only one pass interference penalty at the goal line late in the second half.
