The Constitution of the Assembly is reprinted in this number. It was last printed in the Collegian of January, 1897, but for some time only one copy of that number has been in the possession of the student body, and in consequence there has been a great ignorance of its provisions among most of the students. This is no doubt partly responsible for some of the mistakes that have been made in the past. We earnestly hope that the present Constitution will be carefully studied and preserved by the students, particularly the underclassmen. The Assembly has been in existence some six years and has proven its efficiency. Never before have the departments been better administered than under its rule. We would not imply that the Assembly is perfect; far from it. The necessity for the important changes made this fall shows that the Constitution has not been considered flawless. The laxity exhibited in its administration last year further demonstrates the fact. But the Assembly has shown itself to be a vast improvement over the methods of administration in use previous to its organization in 1895, and has contributed largely to the success of Kenyon athletics since that time.

With regard to the important changes which were made in the Constitution this fall, some comment may be fitting. It is to be regretted that any necessity for such provisions for the just distribution of offices ever existed, since it shows an absence of harmony and equity in the student body concerning questions of vital importance to all. The proper administration and, since it is ultimately necessary to their proper administration, the just distribution of all the offices of the Assembly ought to be the first concern of everyone who has the interests of the College at heart; but it will be admitted by everyone, we believe, that such a necessity has arisen of late, and our duty is to meet it squarely. Granted that this need exists, and ought to be provided for, the recent amendments to the Constitution are highly commendable. They are an experiment, to be sure, but one that has only been made with care and deliberation, and which seems likely to prove a success. One thing is certain—that the amendments were made in the right spirit, with the intention of eliminating, as far as possible, the petty discords and prejudices so liable to creep into college politics. This of itself is a good sign. If the new rules are carried out in the spirit in which they were made, there is little doubt of their success. And this spirit, the spirit of Kenyon, the spirit of loyalty and justice to Alma Mater, is the first requisite of success in any student organization, at Kenyon or elsewhere. The new rules will be severely tested and criticised. They may not do all that is expected of them; but they will certainly do much toward correcting some of the troubles of administration which have been encountered in the past, and in doing that they deserve the support of every true Kenyon man.
Sophomore Sundays.

Tuesday, the Seventeenth.

The train drew into Mount Vernon shortly after one o'clock, and things began to look familiar. Many of the fellows and several of the professors got on the train there.

A few more minutes and we stopped at old Gambier. How very different everything is this year—how lonely it was last—and how such a jolly time of handshakings, such boisterous, laughing recollections of old times,—such imperious ordering about of the few unhappy Freshmen at the station. Poor home-sick Freshmen! All of last year's misery!

Right on until chapel-time it was one chorus from the President down to the humblest Sophomore, "How do you do?" "Glad to see you!" Whether they meant it or not makes no difference.

And then the chapel service,—how fierce our class has become,—how meek and miserable the Freshmen!

After even-song the very first person that I saw was G,—looking as pretty and as fresh as ever she was. And she, too, said the same, "Glad to see you!" Whether she meant it or not makes a great difference!

Sunday, the Twenty-Ninth.

It was a fine, bright morning, and I was up early.

In the afternoon I went for my first Sunday walk of the year.

How beautiful and green the trees are, and the sky so blue! It is a warm day, but not so warm as to make walking uncomfortable. King, the foot-ball dog, who came down to bask in my window after lunch, accompanied me. He was very bright and lively, and perhaps just the least little bit too affectionate, but I felt sure that he meant it all,—every word of it. And then as he cannot talk he is one of the brightest conversationalists that I know. When we reached the quarry chapel, which looked much as it did last year,—only more pretty because more familiar,—we turned down to the right and walked up along the river bank. The river looked very pretty through the branches of the trees, and I had to laugh when I reached the spot where some of us Freshmen were beguiled into trying to swim last March, and had to shriek and come out because it was not as warm as we had been led to believe. King looked up with such a funny, questioning expression that I had to pat him on the head to show that I was still in my right mind. He is not used to seeing me laugh. Yet there is something luxuriously melancholy in reminiscence—

"Eheu fugaces, Postume, Postume, Labuntur annis, * * * *"

We came back along the railway. I have always thought, and think still, that this is one of the prettiest walks about Gambier.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER THE SIXTH.

* * * * This evening I was starting for my usual walk. Although I had had such a sleepless night my morning nap had set me quite to rights except that I was still a little sleepy,—but one's thoughts glide so easily and in such beautiful channels when one is half asleep that I felt quite in the humor for a long, quiet walk.

This time Q— went with me, but he is not very talkative, and I did not feel very much inclined for conversation. I was dreaming half the time. The sun was so warm and the air so fragrant that I was walking along with my eyes half shut.

Clouds were all about me, every once in awhile a knight would ride past. His face was so pure, so fragile, and so beautiful, and his eyes so intent that I knew him at once to be Sir Galahad,—and yonder rosy light, and the old man, ever receding, that must be his guest, St. Joseph and the 'Sangreal.' There were other knights and damsels, too, but each of the damsels, as she approached, had the same face and the same dear figure, and, alas! the same unattainableness that I had gazed on so many times before.

Away off to one side came the strains of barbarous but inspiring music. Then a steady throb, throb, throb—and I was aware of the invincible Kahn, and his hosts marching always onward to the strains of the Kiot Bordjiguen.

A glorious light in the northern sky; towering portals of eternal snow, and over all, with outstretched arms and winged helmet, a Valkyrie, but, as I approached, so she receded, and ever the same face, the same dear figure, the same unattainableness.

And as we neared the end of our stroll always those knights and damsels, and the Valkyrie, and sweet little children of the golden age kept beckoning and calling, "Come back to us." But I could not go back to the glories of that glorious past which is forever gone.

I was just leaving Q—when I met G—coming down the path. She asked me if I would like to come in. Like to? I spent three-quarters of an hour there,—and stayed wide awake the whole time.

Sunday, the Twentieth.

"And the night shall be filled with music,
And the cares that infest the day
Shall fold up their tents like Arabs,
And silently steal away."

This quotation because our victory over Case yesterday was being celebrated during the small hours of this morning.

* * * * After lunch I went to take G—out walking. She was not there when I arrived, but came in presently and we set out about three o'clock. How hazy and balmy the air was, and the sunlight—rich, glorious and refulgent sunlight! What need of visions to transport me today? Who could help being a true knight, a chivalrous and a brave, in such company? To be sure I did not have much jousting to do. Every once in awhile we would come to a tree laden with apples, which G—would first point at in delight and then implore me not to climb them on account of the watch-dogs. Evidently she did not have much faith in her knight's courage, or perhaps did not think it meet for so noble (?) a knight to challenge a dog! At any rate I had to forego the role of Robber Baron. The sun was streaming beautifully through the chapel windows when we reached the quarry, and, turning to the right, the lane drew exclamations of delight from us both, for it stretched far away over the hill,— two tangled hedges of every rainbow hue that autumn gives.

We sat at the side of the road and rested, and always it was no twentieth century, but long, long ago in the days of knight and damsel. We came back slowly as the sun was casting its longest shadows with never a sound but the chapel chimes stealing over the fields far away.

And the glorious glow in the West, the still cool air, the gentle haze, cast over everything a quiet glory—the peace that passeth all understanding.

Hanna Hall.

Hanna Hall, the erection of which is soon to be commenced, will be a building of the Oxford Collegiate type, which bears more resemblance to that of Bexley Hall than of any other of the college buildings.

The new building will stand one hundred and forty feet north of old Kenyon, and its front will be in a line at right angles to and twenty-five feet west of old Kenyon.

It will be two stories in height and will have three-story gables.

It will be one hundred and forty feet long and forty-eight feet deep, and will be divided into three divisions. Running back from the middle division will be a wing forty feet deep and twenty-four feet across. This will contain a large common room with a great wood fire-place, mantle piece, and settles, which will be on a level with the first floor and will be a story and a half in height. Underneath the common room will be a billiard room.

Most of the rooms will be for two students, but there will be some suites and also some single rooms. The windows will be of the type now to be seen in Bexley.

Each of the double rooms will have two closets, and each of the closets will have a small window. The rooms will be provided with fixed wash-stands with water running into them. There will be accommodations for forty-eight men, twenty on each floor and eight in the gables.

The basement will contain a bicycle room and a trunk room, and, of course, bath rooms and furnaces.

There will be one central entrance to the building with an ornate archway and the words “Hanna Hall” on it. The wall on one side of the vestibule will bear a medallion stamped with the seal of the College, and on the other wall an inscription regarding the erection and purpose of the gift. The other entrances will be in the ends of the building.

The exterior will be marked by the picturesque windows with their heavy cappings, the prominent string courses, and very shortly, we hope, by the Ivy which covers it so profusely in the plans. The stone will somewhat resemble that of Hubbard Hall.

Alumni Notes.

Messrs. Charles E. Burr, '65 and D. B. Kirk, '69, who are members of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees, were in Gambier on October 17th. The committee formally accepted the plans for Hanna Hall, and selected the definite site of the building.

Mr. William P. Elliott, '70, spent November 1st and 2nd in Gambier.

Dr. Francis W. Blake, '80, was in Gambier for several days in the latter part of October.

Mr. Henry W. Buttolph, '92, attended the annual meeting of the American Actuarial Society in New York, on October 29.

Captain Harry C. Benson, '77, of the United States Army, spent a few days in the early part of November with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Benson.
On Saturday, November 2nd, after the Reserve game, a very enjoyable dinner was held by the Cleveland alumni at the University Club, in honor of the football team.

The table was profusely decorated with flowers and the ball which had been used in the game occupied the center of the table. An elaborate menu was served, President Peirce acting as toastmaster. Toasts were responded to by several of those present.

The outcome of the game was the occasion of many compliments to the team and a general feeling of jubilance was manifested over the victory. After the dinner the party was taken to the theatre by Mr. Frank H. Ginn, '90.

Among those present, in addition to the members of the team, were: Messrs. James Lawrence, '71; William Raynolds, '74; James H. Dempsey, '82; F. H. Ginn, '90; President W. F. Pierce, Dr. Reeves and the Rev. O. J. Davies.

College News.

The Kenyon Alumni Association in the East will hold their annual reunion and banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria in the second week in December.

Cameron S. Morrison was elected leader of the College Glee Club on the fourteenth of October. New music has been ordered, and with the valuable acquisitions from the Freshman class, we may look forward to several enjoyable concerts during the winter. It has also been rumored that the Glee Club will try to give a series of concerts in several of the important cities of the state. This surely would be a good move.

A very successful affair was held in the Bexley Library on the afternoon of Thursday, October 17. The Senior class of Bexley had a reception for the Junior and Senior classes of Harcourt and the Senior class of Kenyon. The library was decorated beautifully with autumn leaves. Light refreshments were served.
The Brotherhood of St. Andrew have organized for the year. They plan to have a series of lectures on the Bible, the Prayerbook and the Sacraments of the Church.

The dates of the Bedell lectures had to be changed. They were delivered by Bishop Potter, of New York, on the 12th and 13th of November. The subjects were "Man," "Men," and "The Master."

The Bedell branch of the Church Students' Missionary Association has made as yet no definite plans for the new year.

James G. Stewart attended, as representative of the Benson Republican Club, the convention of College Republican Clubs, held at Columbus on the twenty-sixth of October.

President Peirce has been absent frequently conducting services in Columbus, Cincinnati and Youngstown.

The Philomathesian Society has been organized and expects a very prosperous year. Unfortunately, Nu Pi Kappa has fallen into a state of inactivity, and several of its members have decided to change to the Philomathesian Society.

Joe M. Weaver has returned to Columbus where he has resumed his position in the treasurer's office of the Hocking Valley R. R.

The golf course is to receive a thorough oversight, and several improvements are to be made soon.

On the twenty-third of October a successful recital was given at Harcourt Hall. Half of the program consisted of selections. The other half was "In a Persian Garden." Miss R. B. Freese, soprano; Miss Winifred Rehard, contralto; Julia T. Parks, accompanist; Samuel T. Bedloe, tenor; David T. Moore, baritone.

L. T. P. Cromley was re-elected captain of the baseball team. Mr. Cromley has been captain of the baseball team for the past two years with unusual success, and the college is to be congratulated upon his re-election.

On November 1st the annual matriculation service was held in the Church of the Holy Spirit. Twenty-six men matriculated in the collegiate department and seven in the theological department. For the first time in a number of years, the Bishops of Ohio and Southern Ohio were both unable to attend.

Obituary.

The funeral of Mrs. Alfred Blake, who died on Wednesday, October 23, was held in the Church of the Holy Spirit on the following Saturday. The services were conducted by the College chaplain, the Rev. Owen J. Davies, and the Rev. Royal B. Balcom. The chants and hymns were sung by the college choir.

Mrs. Blake was the widow of the late Rev. Alfred Blake, D. D., of the class of 1829, who was intimately associated with the early history of the college, and who established as a school for boys what is now Harcourt Place Seminary. This school was established largely to meet the needs of Cincinnati boys, in which city Dr. Blake had worked as a missionary for some time. In his work for the institutions at Gambier he was associated with the Rev. Francis Wharton, Dr. Benson and many others whose names are linked with the history of Kenyon, and who always had her best interests at heart.

He died in 1877.

The death of Mrs. Blake was very sudden, and the organ of the College which owes them so much, desires to express its sympathy and that of the whole college with those to whom this has been so great a bereavement.

The Rev. Percy Brown, D. D., Kenyon '64, Rector of St. James' Church, Roxbury, Boston, Mass., died at his home October 1st, 1901, aged sixty-two years. He was born in Dublin and came to this country when a boy. After graduating from Kenyon he entered the Philadelphia Divinity school and was ordained in 1866. He had charge of St. Philip's church, Philadelphia, for some time. In 1871 he succeeded the Rev. George S. Converse in the rectorship of St. James' church and held the same for thirty years.

Football.

KENYON 25—DENISON 0

The opening game of the season was played at Granville, October 8th, with Denison. Kenyon was easily victorious and devoted the second half to a kicking game, trying several new men, all of whom showed up well. The play was fast and spirited and Kenyon was able to score without much trouble on bucks through the line and end runs. Both offense and defense were very effective against the Denison men, who were heavy, but slow in starting. Kenyon could have run up a much larger score by keeping possession of the ball instead of punting. Aubrey failed to kick any goals, a weakness which was remedied before the Oberlin game. The general work of the team was fair, considering the amount of coaching it had had, but the team work was somewhat ragged and it was noticeable that there was much room for improvement in a number of ways.

OBERLIN 27—KENYON 6.

Four days after the Denison game, the team went to Oberlin and were badly defeated. Oberlin was heavy and fast, and plainly outplayed Kenyon. The score, however, should have been about twelve to nothing, as Kenyon's only touchdown and three of Oberlin's, were of the "fluke" variety. Oberlin's large score was mainly due to the inability of the Kenyon back-field to handle punts properly. This was the weakest feature of Kenyon's playing. Kenyon was unable to run the ends but bucked Oberlin's line for steady gains in the second half.

Oberlin kicked off to Kenyon and regained the ball near Kenyon's forty-yard line on a fumble. After advancing the ball fifteen-yards by steady bucks, Oberlin circled Kenyon's right end on a trick for a touchdown, after six minutes of play. Holter kicked goal.
Oberlin returned Aubrey's kick-off to the forty-yard line by tackle bucks and end runs. Kenyon's defense was stubborn, but Oberlin made steady gains through the right side, and by a series of straight bucks carried the ball over the line after ten minutes' play. Holter kicked goal.

On the third kick-off Oberlin was held for downs and tried to punt, but fumbled, Kenyon securing the ball on Oberlin's five-yard line. Cunningham bucked the center for a touchdown. Aubrey kicked goal. No more scoring was done this half, the ball changing hands frequently near the middle of the field. Score, Oberlin 12: Kenyon 6.

In the second half Kenyon kicked off to Oberlin, and frequent exchanges of punts followed, in which Kenyon invariably allowed the ball to roll ten or fifteen yards before downing it. Morris was injured, Oliver taking his place. Oberlin secured the ball on a fumble on Kenyon's twenty-yard line and bucked it over for a touchdown after ten minutes' play.

Oberlin made two more touchdowns in this half, largely through the superiority of her kicking game over that of Kenyon.

Kenyon secured the ball on her thirty-yard line and by steady bucks had carried it down the field to Oberlin's thirty-five-yard line when time was called.

KENYON 6—CASE 5.

On October 19th, Kenyon defeated Case School, at Cleveland, by a score of six to five, and outplayed her in a way that the score does not show. Kenyon's defense was very good, as she seldom failed to hold Case for downs. Had the offense been equally good, the outcome would not long have been in doubt. The offense was weakened by the absence of Morris, who was injured at Oberlin. In handling punts Kenyon was no better than at Oberlin, and it is largely owing to this that Case was able to score and to keep Kenyon from scoring more.

Case kicked off to Cunningham, who was downed on the twenty-yard line. Kenyon advanced to Case's forty-yard line on bucks, when Case secured the ball on a fumble by Wright. Case advanced the ball about ten yards and then punted to Kenyon's twenty-yard line. Kenyon carried the ball to Case's twenty-five-yard line on short bucks and end runs. Here Case secured the ball on a fumble and several exchanges of punts followed, Case gaining each time and finally getting the ball on Kenyon's twenty-five-yard line. Muter got around the end for twenty yards, and Sullivan was then pushed over for a touchdown. Muter and Aubrey were both injured on this play. Osborne failed goal.

Case returned Kenyon's kick off to the middle of the field and after short gains aggregating about ten yards, and an exchange of punts, Sullivan tried to drop kick a goal, but failed. Kenyon secured the ball on her ten-yard line, and rushed it into Case territory, having it on Case's thirty-five-yard line when time was called. Score, Case, 5; Kenyon, 0.

Kenyon began the second half with a determination to win, and her offense was much steadier. Case received the kick-off, and carried the ball to the middle of the field, punted on the third down.
Kenyon bucked the ball through the left side of the Case line to within ten yards of her goal. Here the Case line held and Sullivan punted out of danger. Kenyon carried the ball to Case's twenty-yard line, where Aubrey tried a place-kick for a goal. The ball went wide and Case punted out to Kenyon's forty-yard line. Kenyon again rushed the ball into Case territory on bucks by Cunningham, and an end run by Wright. Cunningham and Carlisle went through Case for steady gains and finally Carlisle went over the line for a touchdown. Aubrey kicked goal.

Kenyon received the kick off and again carried the ball through the Case line on bucks by Cunningham and Carlisle. Time was called with the ball in Kenyon's possession on Case's thirty-yard line.

KENYON 6—O. W. U. 5.

Ohio Wesleyan proved to be one of the fastest teams Kenyon has had as an opponent this year. Both teams being light, fast and aggressive, and coached under similar tactics, the play was close throughout. The scoring was done in the first half. O. W. U. received the kick-off and before Kenyon's eyes were opened, had rushed the ball down the field. By a series of line plunges and mass plays off tackle Campbell was pushed over for a touchdown. Rickey missed goal. Score, 5—0.

On the second kick-off Kenyon steadied and O. W. U. were forced to punt. The ball hit a Delaware man and bounded over the line, where Cunningham fell on it for a touchdown. Aubrey kicked goal. Score, 6—5.

In this half Aubrey tried two goals for the field and missed both by narrow margins, one of them hitting the goal post. The half ended with the ball in Kenyon's possession in the middle of the field.

In the second half Kenyon worked the ball down the field by good hard foot ball. On a buck for a touchdown the man with the ball lost it after crossing the line, O. W. U. kicked out. After changing hands several times the ball was carried to Kenyon's 15-yard line when time was called with O. W. U. in possession of the leather.

Both teams were strong on the offense, O. W. U. excelling in team-work. Coach Boyle has worked wonders with this team and they may easily be classed among the championship teams this year.

KENYON 11—WESTERN RESERVE 0.

Kenyon played the best game of the season, so far, against Western Reserve University at Cleveland, November 2nd. Over a thousand people watched the game; fully a third of this number were Kenyon supporters. In the first half the playing was very even, and no scoring was done, but in the second half Kenyon played Reserve off her feet. The team exhibited much better team-work and physical condition than on the previous Saturday, and the game was a fierce one from start to finish.

Fairfax kicked off to Morris, who returned the ball to the twenty-five yard line. Morris bucked for ten yards and Aubrey punted forty-five yards to Fairfax who was downed on Reserve's forty yard line. McCleary made three yards through tackle, but Fairfax fumbled on the next play and Coolidge fell on the ball. The ball changed hands frequently during the rest of the half, and Reserve rushed the ball to Kenyon's ten yard line, where Reserve fumbled, Coolidge falling on the ball. Aubrey punted out of danger, but Reserve again carried the ball to the five yard line on end runs, her interference being excellent. On the five yard line Kenyon held for three downs and Aubrey again punted out of danger. Kenyon's goal was not threatened again during the whole game. The ball stayed in Reserve's territory for the rest of the half, which ended with the ball near the middle of the field. Score, Kenyon 0, Reserve 0.

In the second half Kenyon's playing was much faster and it was soon evident that Reserve could not hold out much longer, several of her players leaving the game on account of poor condition. Aubrey kicked off to Fairfax, and Reserve, after two ineffectual attempts to gain through the line, punted to Morris, who made a magnificent run of seventy yards for a touch down. On this play Morris eluded the whole Reserve team, assisted by McCalla's splendid interference. Aubrey kicked goal. Score, Kenyon 6, Reserve 0.

Reserve again kicked off to Kenyon, and the ball was advanced to the middle of the field, where it was lost on a fumble. The ball changed hands frequently on fumbles, penalties and failures to make first down, and considerable punting was done. Reserve was seldom able to make first down, and although she put up a stubborn defense, the ball gradually approached her goal. An end run by Morris brought it inside the twenty yard line and hard bucks by Carlisle and Cunningham finally carried it over for the second touch-down one minute before time was up. Kenyon failed to punt out, and the score stood, Kenyon 11, Reserve 0.

It would be impossible to mention any names as bright, particular stars, as all of the members of the team, without exception, played splendid foot ball.

In the evening a very enjoyable dinner was given in honor of the team by the Cleveland alumni, at the University Club.
