Foot ball may have been played somewhere, sometime, under worse conditions than prevailed at Case field, when Reserve and Kenyon lined up for their annual contest. The steady rain had flooded the gridiron. A spectator was blown down by a gale. Anything like real foot ball was impossible.

The two teams had not been on the field five minutes before it was a quagmire. The few who were present to watch the mud splattered players, or caught a glimpse of Carnegie medals for their heroes. Half a dozen women were on hand.

Kenyon, depending on speed for its gains, was handicapped by the slippery field. Reserve, having more beef to back her ground gains, was given considerable advantage. Despite this, Kenyon was hopeful of a victory before the kickoff.

That Kenyon surprised even her most ardent supporters was the opinion of the majority who knew the actual conditions under which the game was played. The superb offense which had originated in Coach Pierse's strategic mind wore a heavy weight in the first half. All the plays which had taken up a week's hard work, had to be abandoned because the ball would not stay on the ground to allow the long forward passes which we had placed such great hopes upon.

Despite these oppressive handicaps Kenyon played Reserve to a 0 to 0 score in the first half. The ball was turned over but repeated in the second period of play. At this time a punt of the giant Portman sailed over the head of Kenyon's quarterback and even for a gain of 80 yards. This proved Reserve's salvation and the turning point of the contest.

The team did remarkably well and the defeat is one which should throw no discredit upon the men who wore the maroon. The game in detail:

First Half

Axtell kicked off to Kayg, who came back 15 yards. Portman pointed to Young, who was downed by Schiller on Kenyon's 14-yard line. Bently pointed out bounds on Reserve's 40-yard line. Corlette failed to gain, but Portman recovered the ball on Kenyon's 8-yard line. Kenyon put up a good defense and took the ball on downs on their one-foot line. Lord pointed out of danger, Kayg made a fair catch on Kenyon's 20-yard line. Lint made 15 on a punt to Barney on Kenyon's 5-yard line. Lord gained 4 yards on a punt to Barney on Kenyon's 5-yard line. Notes of the Game

This form the Cleveland Leader's writeup of the game.

As usual, Kenyon played a wonderful defensive game. The desperate goal line stands which have made Kenyon a synonym for defense in former years were more than ever in evidence.

Center Bland's passing throughout the contest was nothing less than wonderful. This ever-ready stand-by pasted the slippery pigskin in perfect style and his work holds fair to gain him All Ohio honor.

Kenyon's defense was the best up to this season and lifted a load of anxiety from the shoulders of those who had grave fears upon this point.

THE KENYON COLLEGIAN

First-Class Pool

Capt. Siegrist and Cable: guards put up great games. This pair did much toward nullifying Reserve's plays at critical moments.

One consolation to be had from the witness is that the plays we made for Reserve were not uncovered and hence can be used to good effect against Case.

Last Saturday's game brought further elimination of teams for the championship of the Ohio conference. Wesleyan was already counted out of it and Kenyon's defeat at the hands of Reserve, put the former out of the running. It is still possible for Kenyon, however, by winning her remaining games, to throw the championship contest into the minds of the people that it resulted in last season.

trade unionism, the monopoly of industry. It works against freedom by restricting the individual freedom. Filthily, the union label acts against democracy and liberty for it seeks the individual manufacturer.

There are two kinds of strikes with very destructive methods used by strikers are those of warfare. Suddenness of attack is a favorite one and safety in numbers employed. In Canada a law requires a public inquiry before any strike or lockout can take place. America is adopting this system. Gradually the piece work and the premium systems are creeping in to do away with the evils of restricted output. Instead of war to the knife and knife to the hilt, agreements are reached to stop these evils. Trade unions and capitalists are adopting the joint agreement plan. But even this has its own evils. This plan the consumer is not considered. Values go down, goods are made cheaper and the great mass of the public is unable to get justice. When it becomes possible for the consumer to have a hand in the arbitration between capital and labor, the plan of joint agreement will be just to all concerned.

wise legislation is a potent remedy for these evils. Democracy allowed trade unionism, in fact it caused trade unionism. If it must do so, it will remedy the evils resulting therefrom.

On Tuesday evening, October 26th, Dr. Eliot delivered a second lecture in this lecture he spoke on capitalism. He pointed out that Capitalism. He pointed doing, what its duties are and what the effects of liberty and democracy are upon it. He dealt with tendencies rather than events. He expanded the subject in the following ways:

Associations of labor and capital are very large, yet they are mobile. Invention has made possible this mobility in both cases. The "combined action of multitudes" is easy with modern conveniences. Within days and even hours vast forces can be set in motion and made formidable. Capital is more mobile than labor. Of all labor, the mining trade is the most mobile because it is a nomad occupation. The men in this trade are easily aroused, because they are not settled. Especially in the West is this so where few miners own their own homes. Yet capital is more mobile than the most unsettled body of workers. It can change its environment thousands of miles within a very short length of time. It is oligarchic in government, whereas labor is democratic. A few men issue an order, the thing is done in the government of capital.

Capital management is an ethical idea. This was not always so, but capital is now becoming more just, more in favor of the working class. The old-fashioned owner is the same as a thousand years ago, but modern democracy says a man must consider the interests of the masses. The manufacturing interests recognize this principle, realizing that with the growth of industry, the old economic order is passing away. Democracy says: "You must not sell injurious products." It says to the builder of a house: "You must not build as you please." In some cities wooden houses are not allowed, and a large number of rules and regulations must be observed in the building of any structure. Precautions against fire and proper sanitation are required. The owner is thus limited out of regard for the public health and safety.

Again, an owner in employing women and children must see that proper sanitation is observed in his factory. Shorter hours are prescribed and in some trades he must not employ women or children under severe penalty of the law. Many states have these laws and enforce them. Because the society demands that everyone meet his responsibilities of public health and of the workmen he controls. The care of the physical health of the employes is a recent thing. These trade unions were responsible for starting this reform, but society has taken up the work.

Capital must allow labor to improve. An individual is not happy unless he can improve. "Every work is more important than education," but it must have a chance to improve. Machinery has largely diminished the expectation for improvement. A man should not be employed upon one piece of machinery for a long time, if the control of that piece of machinery is simple. He loses interest and is not happy. Every good and happy workman works zealously.

Capital should offer the rising wage until middle age. A man must feel that he will some day get higher wages, or he is dissatisfied. Labor unions are cruel to two classes of laborers. First, to men who are incompetent to earn the minimum wage and enforcing them. Because the society demands that everyone meet his responsibilities of public freedom. The second class are those who have begun to decline in efficiency. These are generally men past fifty. The duty of capital in this case is to aim to prolong the period of earning.

To do this, lodgings, housing, and food should be provided and the laborer settled comfortably. Wise capital has seen this duty, and where vast investment of capital exists, the workman is settled in his home.

Democracy says "capital should rest monopoly of labor" by the trade unions, since monopoly of labor abridges the liberty of the individual, and as a national result, content and happiness are diminished. Teachers of a trade should be employed by capital to lessen the evil of strikes. Young men easily learn a trade if they have had any experience in another trade, and so when a strike comes these teachers could take hold themselves while in straung others, and the power of the strikers to monopolize labor would greatly decrease. On the other hand, capital should never seek a monopoly of its own.

Twenty years ago every man

THE AMERICAN TOBACCO CO.
facturer aimed to get a monopoly

of labor.

Capital has been abused by writers. The horrors of competition have been depicted, and capital has been called remorseless. Dr. Eliot said he believed this attitude to be wrong. "It (competition) is the source of progress and is essential to freedom." No one ever does anything without learning to do it through competition. It is a kenimental social thing. No child learns what it can do without it. It is essential to progress in trade and to the nation as a whole.

Capital must maintain competition. The limit to competition is the abandonment of property, and the selling of product at a loss.

It should never reach this extreme stage.

The people must be educated.

Long age education was thought to close at the age of twenty,

from which time the individual

was supposed to apply his education to his occupation. The point of view has changed. We know that education is continuous,

life long process, wherein the mind never ceases to develop and to acquire wisdom. "The growth and enlargement of mental and spiritual power" goes on always.

The education of industry is necessary for the masses and capital is responsible in large measure

for this education. The responsibility of capital in this matter is growing heavier. Most nations of Europe have a system of militarism which gives the individual valuable training, but in this country the "armies of industry"

must supply this training. Decocracy gives over this duty to capitalism at the close of the communical school education. Where capitalism fulfills its duty in this respect, it effects some wrong

tensions of trade unions.

"The capitalist is a teacher and educator of men."

There must come political reform of all sorts. The citizens of America must need think of this.

In fact too much thought can not be spent upon this subject. Capital has great influence in deter-minting the character of the American people. Its funds should never be on the side of corruption.

Capital should be allowed fair profits, in return for all it can do to promote the public welfare.

There are three kinds of corporations of which democracy demands strict accounts of money matters. They are: (1) Banks,

(2) Public utilities, which are inevitable monopolies, (3) Corporations which ask the public to subscribe in order to raise capital to supply what is lost. This is a new demand of democracy. It has grown in the last few years ago. It is the duty of democracy to fulfill this public need. It has shown its value in promoting regularity and general security. The public law governs the above case.

Democracy expects two things:

First Justice and second Humanity. Capital and labor concentrated produce rich men.

Democracy creates no social distinctions, but they come anyway.

Democracy has no objection to rich men who are good. It rather enjoys the sight of the splendor of the rich. It likes to view the yachts and equipages, the lake side and forest homes. So long as riches are humanly and unselfish-up used, democracy won't interfere. Yet it expects that the rich man has in the way of stream and forest, lake and mountain. In England the poor man may go hunting in the great game preserves, he may gather fallen wood and use the footpaths. To shut

the footpaths is impossible because they have been used for centuries. Only in America can the footpaths be shut up. Democracy asks the opening of these footpaths. Fortunes should be acquired only to do perpetual good. "Angels might envy mortals so fine a luxury." Democracy demands this and the just apportionment of taxes. Capital does evade taxes levied for pubcolons needed by the masses for their physical, intellectual, and moral welfare. This is another duty democracy asks, not to evade

just taxation.

All these are "ideals, hopes, exceptions" regarding trade unionism and capital. Reforms are under way. To perfect them is the desire of the American nation.

MESSRS. Kenyon very collegiate all did so upper office. This has demonstrated. It was, "What has become of the ancient and honorable institution of the Sophomore Court of Inquiry? In our opinion this question is both pertinent and timely. As far as this year's Sophomore class has shown lamentable neglect in this direction. Whether this is an intentional neglect of one or more of the college traditions or is due to a lack of organization among the members of the Class of 1912, we have no means of ascertaining. However, the fact remains that the institution of the S. C. L is badly needed at present on the Hill and its abandonment will be felt in college both this year and in years to come.

The S. C. L is one of the means whereby a new class of men are reminded that they have yet to learn how to govern themselves on the Hill. It is an effective agent of discipline, a wholesome means by which the Freshmen are introduced into the customs and ideas of Kenyon College. Of course, like everything else, it may be abused, but it has been grossly abused in the past, but this fact does not alter the other fact that when rightly administered it is a godsend.

We would earnestly urge the members of the Sophomore class and the upper classmen to see to it that this institution is immediately reconstituted from its temporary state of uselessness and is brought back again to the normal state of effectiveness. This is a stand which we are sure will meet with the approval of every Kenyon man both upper and lower classmen and therefore—members of the Sophomore class, get busy and accomplish something.

Let us have all for the doors in Rosse Hall. The search will be for every one entered the building during the Eliot lectures resum ed in the fabled wrecking in the joints of Rip Van Winkle when that worthy came again to life. From us to certify previous understanding of the bart and sale variety. It was to prevent just such previous understandings that the clause in question was inserted. It is very seldom indeed that a deal can be arranged whereby a candidate can receive five votes. Witness the last election. The result is, as in the case in the other election, Mr. Sackett, a unanimous selection of a man suitable to all, is as well if not better fitted for the place than any man in college. Let us imagine that one of the few more deadlocks there will be fewer deals and more merit in our selections. Judging from the express actions of the executive committee which reached the air outside the Student senate, some sessions are not particularly conducive to a pleasant frame of mind.

WHERE ARE THE S. C. I.? Among the articles taken out of the collegian box Friday was one which consisted of a single sentence. It was, "What has become of the ancient and honorable institution of the Sophomore Court of Inquiry? In our opinion this question is both pertinent and timely."

On the Hill.

Nothing has happened in recent years, more truly indicative of the health of Kenyon spirit, than the turnout of the entire college on the eve of the Reunion games. About thirty years ago last Friday afternoon the entire student body of Kenyon gathered in front of Old Kenyon and helped themselves down the hill to the athletic field. Lots of enthusiasm and a spirit of rivalry with the varsity and the cheers and songs of the old college in their ears ran through the fastest signal practice of the year. They were encouraged; they knew that the students to a man were behind them and supporting them. As a result they went to Cleveland and put up an excellent game.

We were defeated by a narrow margin yet we came back knowing that nothing had been left undone to secure the victory for the school.

Last week the Freshmen woke up to the opportunities of beauti- ful weather and as a result the numerals 13 occupy the most prominent places on sidewalks and side of buildings. The Freshmen should be congratulated on their happy choice of the color of the paint i. e. green.

The Collegian Board held its second meeting in the West Wing Bulle Eye, Thursday evening, Oct. 20. The first issue of the collegian was talked over and the organiza- tion perfected. An board will hereafter meet on the next day following each issue.

About fifty men accompanied the team to Cleveland Saturday and in spite of the rain and mud field saw a very exciting game. Nothing but praise for the team was given at the game. The Freshmen returned to the Hill tired but contented with the knowledge that they had an exhibition of traditional Kenyon pluck.

Walter A. Mahaney died of typhoid fever in Columbus, October 24, 1909. Mr. W. A. Ma- haney was widely known Peace Advocate. Students of Kenyon College remember with interest his lecture on International Peace at Roee Hill. Mr. Mahaney also offered a prize at Kenyon for the best submission to the International Peace Arbitration.

A Correction

In the advertisement of the 1910 Reville in the last issue of the Collegian a mistake was made in the price of the book. It should read two dollars instead of one dollar and seventy-five cents.

The Coburn Players

This company of players of New York city have been secured as an attraction at Roee Hill early in November to give three performances of Shakespeare's plays. This company is one of the most widely known and is composed of players of this character and the oppor- tunity to see them is one which the students will much appreciate.

Smoker for Dr. Eliot

On Tuesday evening after the lecture the faculty and student body had the pleasure of meeting Dr. Eliot informally. This was held in the West Wing Bulle Eye and was attended by almost all the senior and faculty members together with a majority of the student body. Dr. Eliot is to be a most delightful guest and one whom we hope to welcome again to Gambier Hill. The evening passed over quite rapidly, enlivened by some of the Kenyon songs.

These present from out of town besides Dr. Eliot were General J. Kent Hamilton, 59, of Toledo, Rev. Mr. Hill of Mt. Vernon, Wm. P. Elliott, 70, of Chicago, T. P. Linn, 72, of Columbus and L. T. Cott, 83, of Mt. Vernon.

President and Mrs. Peirce Entertain

On Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 26, from three to five, President and Mrs. Peirce received informally in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Eliot of Harvard University. The guests included the faculty and wives.

BEXLEY NOTES

Dean Du Moulin is expected at Bexley for All Saints' Day, Mon- day, November first, to give a course of lectures to the Seniors in Pastoral Theology.

The usual Sunday mission work is being done by the Bexley men this year.

Mr. Ribble went regularly to assist the Rev. Mr. Reeve at Trinity Cathedral, Columbus; Mr. Ernst has the missions at Card- ington and Mt. Gilead last year; Mr. Sturgis goes to Gicine, Mr. Hughes is supplying tempo- rarily at Galena, and Mr. Soares at Stockbridge is applied to Copleston since last spring.

The Senior class held a debate at the Hall, Monday, October 25, over the resolution passed by Mr. Jones, "Resolved: That the fact that men do not attend largely at church, is due to the fault of our Clergy?" Messrs. Ribble and Soares affirmative; Messrs. Sturgis and Kinibald negative. Dean Jones gave his decision in favor of Messrs. Ribble and Soares on the affirmative.

Bishop Vincent of the Southern District arrived at Gambier Mon- day afternoon to give a series of lectures to the students.

It is expected that Bishop and Mrs. Leonard will open Kokosing the first week in Novem- ber.

Mr. Gritter has entered the Senior class at Bexley; he comes from the German Evangelical church.

Mr. and Mrs. Gritter entertain- ed the Student body at the members of their home on the eighteenth.

A marked improvement is noted in the singing at Bexley this year, and a movement has been set on foot by Messrs. Crawford, Kin- kaid and Hadley to establish a choral ever night at the chapel.

Dr. and Mrs. Peirce were at the home of the young ladies of Har- vard and the new men on the Hill. Friday evening, October eighth. Dr. Smythe, Mrs. Smythe and Miss Merwin assisted in the receiving line. Mrs. Weider and Mrs. Walton served delicious re- cipe s in the dining room.

The evening gave a very pleas- ant opportunity for the new men to meet the professors and their wives, and also the young ladies of Harcourt.

Freshman Examinations

At the meeting of the Faculty of Sept. 28 the following new rules were adopted:
1. That examinations be given to Freshmen before the Thanksgiving recess.
2. That to matriculate a student shall have an average standing of 3 in four studies in the mid semester examinations.
3. That non-matriculants shall be put on probation and shall be dropped if they do not pass in nine hours of work.

Rule 3 in other words means that a Freshman who fails to make standing required by Rule 2 must maintain a passing grade in all studies, without overcounts, and to remain in college shall pass in nine hours of work in final examinations at end of first semester.

Special Assembly Meeting

A special Assembly was called on Thursday, October 21st, by President Bland. The object was to arouse more spirit for the Reserve game. The meeting was opened by a few remarks by Mr. Bland on our chances for the twenty-third. Coach Pierce then gave a tour of complaint in it of the irregular attendance at practices during the last two weeks. He stated that it would take the loyal work of both the team and the student body to turn out a winning team this year, but he remarked that if he got the support of the entire college, he did not doubt that the team would make a fine showing. He was followed by Messrs. Sieg, Lord, C. Cable, J. Cable, Axtell and Young of the team, and by Manager White, who spoke of the business side of the event. Cheer leader Hayes then led in some good Kenyon cheers, and the meeting adjourned for some songs and a Hika in front of Ascension Hall.

The attendance at signal practice last Friday was very encouraging. Not only were all of the regulars, but a good number of Freshmen and subs were down also. The field was covered with men who came down to watch football practice and to encourage the team by their cheering and singing. If such spirit were always shown at practice, the team and the coach would be helped along tremendously.

At Other Colleges

Dr. Henry A. Garfield, son of President Garfield, was inaugurated President of Williams College on October 7.

A rather old debate was won by team of Chinese students from the University of Pennsylvania over a similar team from Cornell. The Celts from Penn. won the debate and at the same time a handsome cup presented by the Chinese Students' Alliance of the Eastern United States.

The Pan Hellenic system of pledging girls to sororities has been given up both at Minnesota and at Ohio State.

Dartmouth is another college to fall into line and take up the system of student self government. Kenyon has found this system an admirable one and has doubt Dartmouth will have the same success.

The Notre Dame Scholastic reviewing the trip of the Wisconsin baseball team through Japan remarks that the time for a world league is at hand, and facetiously adds that Esperanto enthusiasts should seize this opportunity for extending the long desired universal language.

The Ohio Wesleyan Transcript gave a very fair and unbiased account of the Kenyon-Wesleyan game. These accounts are so rare in college papers that they should be given credit when they do occur.

A University for Iceland.—According to the Frankfurt National Assembly of Iceland has decided to establish a university at Reykjavik, the capital of the island. The new university is to have four faculties and sixteen professors and lecturers. Icelandic students at the University of Copenhagen enjoy many advantages, such as free residence and scholarships, but a native university is being provided in order. It is said, to further the popular desire to be independent of Denmark as far as possible.—Quoted from London Times.

The Executive Committee Meet

Sometimes during the afternoon a notice appears on the bulletin board stating "By 7:20 tomorrow morning one member of the Committee and one manager in the library. By 7:20 everyone in a cheerful mood must have assembled for the meeting. It will be understood that the meeting is for the purpose of arousing three committee members are gossiping on the library steps, though they each have abstracts of sixty pages for the History Section. Two facts stand out: the nomination of the president and the nomination of the faculty manager. At quarter of eight Bugs comes in and by this time all but one of the Committee and three managers have assembled.

The question arising is the place of the faculty manager. The faculty manager must not be re- vealed to the eye and ear of the common public, so the glaring light from the library above is not to be thought of. The little room at the corner where the committee of the library nullifies the notice inviting until it is discovered that no gas was ever present there.

And it is the case that Harper won’t be able to see his nose, so it is impractical. It is the case that Harper is a member of the library and a member of the faculty and that he is a faculty member of the library. Bugs suggests that there be a place for analyzing and dissecting difficult problems (the real last laugh) so the aggregation trumps south west and we find just a band of North Ascension a call for matches is made. One by one the gas jets flash and by the end of it all are safety gathered in Bugs’s office. After a while the life of the game goes on.

The minutes of the last meeting are read and the reports of the football and basketball managers brought up. So the meeting goes on and on. In the meantime a new member of the committee has been added to the list.

The meeting of the faculty manager is to take place on the club manager. Tunks attempts to relieve the tension by saying that as a good voice and position on the club have been customary requisites to the manager, he sug- gested that Harper be unanimously elected. Bugs however with a shake of his head says that by the same token one who knows that deep laid plans are forming in that ma- ture. Bugs opens the door for our manager and hires the same man as the business manager of the faculty. Themina, and finally straightens out so that it is unanimously carried. This leaves the matter just as it was when originally suggested a month ago. —The business is to start entirely over and new Nomina- tions are to be made at the next meeting with the same can- didates eligible. Meanwhile im- portant matters in the Glee Club under the head of the Department slip by unnoticed.

A joint concert with Ambrose and another pilgrimage to Geel are also on the agenda. The men who are being phrased may be thought on account of lack of arrests.

The meeting of the Executive Committee has been a noble deed well done.

Manager Russell of the Basket ball team then astonished the committee by asking for a budget of 28.00. He finds this necessary for the season of the financial budget that was granted. The grateful reply of Master Russell to the word of promise of Mr. Windgert in offering to let Kenyon open the basketball season for O. S. U. on its own floor was unanimously approved.

Bugs then recognizes Paraghar as Tennis Manager who after making an elaborate report of receipts of 24.07 and expenses of 5.000 before the Committee a proposition from Dr. Hall who desires to give Mr. Tunks additional money to cover the College if they will fix it up and keep them in repair. This is greeted with a storm of letters and the President of Mr. Dudley of the Committee does not appreciate the manager’s philanthropic motives and thinks he is merely seeking re- wards for the sake of the Crimin- ology class. While however he will probably graduate now after all comes bravely to the Dr.’s room and in a pathetic appeal shows his purely selfish motives; in desire to promote athletic sports at Kenyon and quotes the soul stirring motto “Are you ready, Kenyon!”

Tours are seen in not a few eyes and the committee for its lack of appreciation by voting its thanks to Dr. Hall without a dissenting voice. The Secretary is instructed to extend the thanks to the Doctor and it is generally predicted that the thing will be done.

In regard to the business side of the proposition,—accepting or rejecting a lot of business without accomplishing anything”, but the committee assumes a dignified and proper manner and is shown by its business methods being crit- ical.

The football Manager is then brought in. At an uneasy bus for postage he wishes paid,—he forgets whether it is seventeen or eighteen cents but hopes the com- mittee will authorize him to pay it. Bugs says that it shall not be paid until the exact amount is known and this matter is postponed a week. A motion for adjournment is then made without warning and immediately carried.

The members file out and give an “Ex- ceptional Committee Ralph!” which resounds over the Campus, and go to their divisions and lord it over the rest of the fellows as being the only ones with whom the business of the College can be trusted.
