The Kenyon Collegian

THE ALUMNI LIBRARY.

The new Alumni Library is fast approaching completion and the subscriptions made by the college men are now due. Do not make the committee come to you for the money but help them by paying at the first opportunity. Some statistics concerning the cost of the building will probably be of interest.

The total cost of the new Library including interior finish and furnishing will be about $48,000. Of this sum $28,000 was secured last winter from these sources:

- Insurance on Hubbard Hall $8,000
- Andrew Carnegie $5,000
- David Z. Norton $15,000
- Total $28,000

The President was then authorized by the Trustees to appeal to the Alumni of the College for the remaining $20,000 and the Board resolved further that if this sum was raised the building should be called the Alumni Library. Between March and June, 1910, nearly $11,000 was subscribed by the Alumni to this fund and the Alumni committeemen present in Gambier during commencement week assured the Trustees that more subscriptions could certainly be obtained and that in their judgment the $9,000 still needed could be raised within the next year. Inasmuch as work of instruction was badly crippled by the lack of a library and inasmuch as $39,000 of the $48,000 needed was already provided, the Board of Trustees decided to proceed with the construction of the building relying upon the assurance of the alumni representatives that the remaining $9,000 could be subscribed.

The walls of the structure have now risen above the first story and as the work proceeds the beautiful lines and the pure and noble architectural style of the building are increasingly evident. In interior arrangement the building is ideally adapted for the purposes of a College Library and in appearance it will be perhaps the most beautiful ornament to the College Park. This fine structure will be a worthy and notable monument to the loyalty and generosity of Kenyon men.

During the coming spring the funds necessary to complete the building must be subscribed and raised for at the present rate of progress the Library will be ready for occupancy about the opening of the next college year.

Allegheny 35—Kenyon 17

Oberlin 81—Kenyon 10

Whatever honor there was connected with our resumption of athletics with Oberlin went to that team on Feb. 25. After an extremely hard day’s travel we were completely annihilated by the team which is conceded to be the champion of the state. Oberlin has every right to the title for their passing and floor work was of the highest class and they seldom missed a chance to drop in a basket.

Nichols started the scoring for Oberlin but from that time on this clever forward was practically helpless. But while the Kenyon guards were holding their men down, the forwards were being outplayed. No team can expect to make any showing when the opposing guards get away with eighteen baskets.

Beatty’s man, alone, made enough points to defeat Kenyon. At the end of the first half Oberlin lead by the score of 43-5. The second half was very similar to the first and although the team played hard they had no effective defense to offer to the whirlwind offense of the Congregationalists.

The game throughout was clean and exceedingly fast. The Oberlin team played marvelous ball and we have no excuses to offer. Marty played the best for Kenyon.

The musical program was excellent, so carefully selected and so well rendered by Jackson's Orchestra of Columbus that everyone was mighty sorry when the chimes struck midnight.

Dr. George Meyland, director of the Gymnasium at Columbus, has collected statistics which show that men who do not use tobacco stand higher in scholarships than those who do, but that 47 per cent. of the non-smokers among the students examined had won places on the University teams while only 37 per cent. of the smokers could secure places.

Oberlin, following after Harvard, has opened a Men's Union Building which serves the same purpose as the Harvard Common's. The building was formally opened the last week in February.

Besides the annual interclass meet, meets with Wooster and Denison, and the Big Six Meet, other meets will be arranged, so that the team will have plenty of chances to display its ability.

Prospective Coach Here

Clyde Waters, one of the foremost candidates for the position of athletic director at Kenyon, visited the Hill during the last part of last week. Waters, who is a Williams man, is an athlete of note and while in college played on the football, basketball and baseball teams. He captured the football team during his last year in school. After serving as assistant coach at Williams, he coached the Oberlin and Erie High Schools. At each place he had great success. It is probable that his greatest success would be in baseball for he caught for Montreal in the Eastern league and later played in the New England league.

Mr. Waters made a very good impression, while here, but the choice of the coach will not be made until the board of managers has had a meeting.

Harcourt Dance

The last evening in February, also the last night before Gambier's gay social festivities stop, to observe Lent, was made very pleasant for many of the college men by the Harcourt Dance given in honor of the Senior Class. Miss Merwin assisted by the Seniors, the Misses Hill, Smith and Tannen received in the gymnasium members of the college faculty with their wives and about thirty-five of the students.

The study hall was transformed by the Juniors with yellow and white Harcourt banners, rugs, oak chairs, and tables in place of desks. Drop lights, covered with dark green shades were placed on the tables, producing a dim light and such a cozy effect that this room was much sought after during the intermissions between

THE NOONDAY SERVICES

During the past few years, services have been conducted in the college chapel at 12:00 o'clock every day through Lent. These services have been well attended in the past and have been a source of much real benefit to the men in college.

During the present Lent, arrangements have been made to continue the custom of noonday services. The eleven o'clock classes will close five minutes early, thus giving all the men an opportunity of attending the services. It is the purpose of the college to make the services brief, and they will not last over ten minutes.

This is a custom which should receive the support of Kenyon men and we believe, if the college will drop into the chapel, say a prayer and listen to the short address, they will feel better for having done so. So far, the services have been well attended.

DO COLLEGE MEN LACK INITIATIVE?

It is a lamentable fact, that to a very large extent, men are mere imitators and few original minds exist. This is just as true of the average college man as it is of the man who has never had the advantage of higher education.

A very great degree, the explanation of this defect may be found in the conditions which exist in the common classroom. Education has come to be regarded by students as a grudging out of so many lines of a language, so many problems in mathematics, or so many pages from an assigned text. A matter of fact, this is almost the universal method employed in schools and colleges and from the operation of this method, instructors get the material for their semi-annual examinations.

But what is the effect of such a system upon the development of mind and character? The first and most objectionable of its evils is the fact that it deprives students to accept the statement made in such texts as law and gospel. There is little or no opportunity for the analytical mind to exercise itself and the man studying under such conditions falls into the habit of letting his text do his thinking for him. In other words, his mind becomes a machine. Having become acclimated, in the four years spent in college, to rely on such authorities, he goes out into the world and the logical sequence is, that he follows the line of least resistance.

This same thing is true at Kenyon, but to a much less degree, for Kenyon has evolved a plan which throws her students upon their own responsibility. In the maintenance of student activities, men are made to study conditions and exercise a certain degree of responsibility. The student organizations present problems to be solved, which can only be settled by exercising the individual mind.

The conditions of living lead men to think and reason about subjects which broaden his view of life and fit him for a future career.

The facts remain, however, that most college men are not original, that they do not have the ability to think out problems and to lead great enterprises. Since this is true, one of the important duties of American educators, today, is the training of men to think for themselves.

A Weak Point in Colleges

From the dean of Columbia University comes the report that American colleges do not help their students to choose a career. He declares that inquiries among college men show that most boys pick their vocations independent of any college advice or influence and out of 500 college men whom Dean Keppel interviewed, more than 200 had chosen their life work before going to college and did not change their minds.

A table is presented showing that business attracts more men than any other occupation, 22 per cent. of students use their training in business, and 17 per cent. in law. In the liberal arts and sciences, 11 per cent. of the students use their training.

The deanship of Columbia is quoted as saying that such a system of education is as productive as a 14 per cent. system of insurance.

This is an interesting statement, as the attendance at the Columbia college is over 7,000 students, and the students are given the opportunity to study law, medicine, engineering, literature, art, and science.

The report that American colleges do not help their students to choose a career is interesting, and should be a warning to all students who are considering college work.

The students should be encouraged to think for themselves, and to find the work which will best suit their tastes and abilities.

Spring

The time for the poet to start his flight has come and it is fitting that some editorial comment should be made in this change in seasons. We wish it is to be understood that this is an extremely hard subject to write about and the editor had to stop twice and banish the office boy and the sanctum sanctorum. He had insisted upon pulling the tail of the editor's cat.

To come back to the subject we might say that this will be a splendid time for many of the followers to spruce up. Away with the cordsuroys and jerseys and let the rubber collars come into their own.

At Kenyon this period of the year is the pleasantest of all. Nature, always bountiful, showers its greatest rewards on the "Hill." Everything takes on a new life and the crack of the bat joins with the whir of the racquet in front of Old Kenyon.

Last year at this time there was an agitation for a "college song" to be held every Sunday night around the prayer cross. Now would be the proper time to start the good custom again.

After getting this out of our system we feel that we have done our duty towards Spring and an appropriate ending would be:

"Spring Hath Oub."
DR. PEIRCE

Will Have a Very Fine New Home—Plans Nearly Completed.

Every Kenyon man, graduate or undergrad, is interested in the plans which have been drawn up for the President's new home, and so many questions have been asked concerning it that the "Collegian" has deemed it fitting to publish a few facts concerning this new addition to the college campus buildings. The readers must bear in mind the fact that these plans, although completed at present, must be passed upon by several authorities before they can be decided upon and specifications drawn up. Mr. Crouse of New York, the donor of the fund for building president's house, has seen the plans and has approved them with his approval. They are now in the hands of Mr. Schweinfurth, the college architect. Leaving his hands they must go successively before the committee on grounds and buildings and then before the Board of Trustees. It is understood, however, that the plans, if altered at all, will not be changed radically and the outlines given here will, for all intents and purposes, hold for the final result.

The house will be of the English cottage type, long and low, with broad full piazzas in front and a high stone gable at one end. The first story of stone (native) will be surmounted by beam and plaster construction, the ornaments of which will continue to the eaves. The roof will be broad and gently sloping, its edges forming deep overhanging eaves. Second story will consist of dormer dormer windows and small and set deep in casements. Facing the east, the house will be parallel to the middle path.

Regarding location and size, the present home of Dr. Peirce will be moved to a place somewhere in the neighborhood of Dr. Snythe's and the new building will stand upon the present site of the old one. It will be eighty feet long and thirty-five feet deep. This will make it as long as the new library. Down stairs there will be four large rooms and a small reception hall besides the parts designed for offices. The second floor will contain seven bed rooms with ample closets, and four baths.

Mr. Alfred Granger, the architect, is a member of the well known firm of Hewitt, Granger and Paint of Philadelphia and is, moreover, a Kenyon man of the class of 1887. He has drawn up plans in part for a professor's house of the same type as the president's. This house will also stand upon the same plan.

During the time which will be required in moving the present Peirce home and the completion of the new one, Dr. Peirce will reside in the house occupied last year by Professor Hall.

New Monitor announces that many members of Faculty are cut up.

It has been a source of real regret to the student body to observe the apparent carelessness with which our members of faculty are coming to regard attendance at the chapel services. While we would not like to be accused of finding fault with "the powers that be," we publish a list of the attendance, since the Christmas vacation.

March Assembly

The regular March assembly was held on Monday, the sixth with President Wood, in the chair. Very little business was brought before the assembly at this meeting, probably due to the special meeting of the 20th.

The lecture course committee reported that nothing more could be done until more payments were made on the tickets and asked the cooperation of the student body in the collection of this money.

An amendment to the constitution, which had lain on the table at the last meeting, making the president of the Assembly an ex officio member of the executive committee with no vote was passed.

Graduate Manager Walton reported that the conclusion was not yet reached in regard to the coach situation. The meeting was then adjourned.

K. M. A. Fire Recalled

The Kenyon Military fire is recalled by the death of George Hayman, a reporter on the Cincinnati "Enquirer," in the fire which destroyed the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce early in the year.

Hayman had entered the Academy as a Freshman and was sleeping on the third floor when the blaze was discovered. He climbed down to the second floor and jumped without injury. Remembering his rifle he went back into the burning building and again came out unscathed.

He then entered the University School of Cleveland and was there when the gymnasium burned.

In his last fire he was caught by the sudden collapse of four floors.

It seems that the roof was not supported by the fireproof girders, the heat softened the iron. Hayman rushed in without suspecting danger and was buried so deep in the ruins that his body was not discovered for four days. He was eighteen years of age.

Outdoor Baseball

The indoor baseball teams of North Hanna and West Wing met in Bosse Hall on Wednesday, March 1st, the result being disastrous to West Wing. The North Hanna team took the lead in the first inning and were never headed.

The following was the line-up of the two teams:

West Wing—Aves, r. f., Starr, s. s., Wickham, c., Kindar, c. f., Hall, 3b, Rockwell, p., Carr, 1st b., Nusbaum, 2b., Houston, 1. f.

Doctor Walton and Professor Dickey umpires.

The score was 7 to 0. Wickham and Kinder starred for the West Wing, while no particular star could be selected from the North Hanna team. A large crowd of enthusiastic rooters were on hand, including a number of college men and several viewers from West Wing. A committee on arrangements was appointed immediately after the game.

The following article appeared in the Wesleyan "Transcript" eighteen years ago:

"O. S. U. met her third successive defeat at Kenyon last Saturday. The score was 22 to 0. Some one, however, telegraphed the Columbus boys that the score would be 16 in favor of O. S. U., and pandemonium reigned at the Dorns. The wildly enthusiastic students went en masse to the depot to welcome the conquering heroes. After the Kenyon train had brought back the O. S. U. eleven, or what the Kenyon players had left of them, the crowd, with horns blowing and colors flying, marched down High Street, keeping time to 'Oh! Oh! O. S. U.'! When the true score became known the crowd became very much disgusted, and the procession disbanded more quickly than it had formed.

A Freshman's Way Through College

Although different students employ various means to work their way through college, one of the most unusual means is that of a student at the University of Kansas, who milks his way through college. When the boy started in college he had only $250 to pay for his entire course. He invented the whole scheme.

He made arrangements with the lady with whom he boarded to furnish stable room in return for milk. He soon had enough to dispose of a daily average of ten gallons of milk. He cares for the cows himself and the three cows are paying his college expenses.

Conditional "Exams."

Those unfortunate who failed to obtain high enough grades on the first semester "exams" are having the extreme pleasure of staying in their rooms and devoting many hours of diligent labor for the conditional "exams," which are offered at this time in order that they may retrieve themselves.

They probably are considering themselves fortunate in even getting to make a try for these conditional ones, but its no fun to take "exams," besides preparing for them along with the regular school work. It seems as though ones would be enough to teach them to get better grades the next semester, yet some, few we hope, continue to take advantage of these as though they really enjoyed the work. Possibly they do, but again it is likely they do not.

On Thursday evening, March 10th, the chapter of Ohio of Phi Beta Kappa held a meeting in South Assenion. Dr. Reeds read a paper on "The Natural Law of the 14th Century." Out of the small total of 4121 graduates during the first century of the existence of the United States Military Academy from 1802 to 1892, 2731 entered civil life at some period in their career.
