SANT, '14, SELECTED AS RHODES SCHOLAR

Signal Honor Comes to Kenyon for Second Time in Five Years and Takes Head of Assembly

Record of Successful Aspirant One of Unusual Distinction in Scholastic and Literary Activity

For the second time in five years Kenyon is able to claim the honor of having a Rhodes scholar among its sons. As a result of the recent examinations, William Webster Smith of the class of 1914 was awarded a three years' scholarship at Oxford, England. Mr. Sant won the appointment in competition with ten or twelve other candidates from two of Wales, from Yale, while the others represented various Ohio colleges.

The Rhodes Scholarship Fund, founded by the late Cecil Rhodes, an English financier who accumulated millions in South African gold and diamond mines, is designed to cover the expenses of a limited number of American and Canadian students in Oxford University. His aim was a unification, by means of educational bonds, of the Anglo-Saxon race. The choice of the Rhodes scholarship is determined by means of competitive examinations which are comprehensive in their scope. Excellence in scholarship is required, but the personality, character, popularity and general college and high school activity of the contestants are also of great importance. For this reason, Kenyon men may be justly proud of the high mark of recognition shown to the Alma Mater since 1910. William John Bland, '10, was the first Rhodes scholar from Kenyon.

Mr. Sant is a resident of East Liverpool, Ohio, and is a graduate of the high school of that city. He entered Kenyon in the fall of 1910 and throughout his college years was held in high esteem by every respect. In scholarship he has always stood at the top, but he has not failed to gain recognition in other lines. He is serving his fourth year on the Colle-gian board, and for a time he was editor of the Reville. As 1915 football manager he conducted

ANCIENT LANDMARK GONE FROM CAMPUS

Demolished House Opposite Hanna a Relic of the Days of Bishop Chase—Origin a Mystery

After eight months of almost imperceptible demolition, "Hitchie's House" is now in ruins. A pile of bricks scattered about the site is the only evidence that remains of the historic structure, and with its razing passes the oldest building in Gambier.

"Hitchie's House" antedated Old Kenyon. Many vague rumors concern the origin and purpose of the edifice. Some infer that the hitching posts indicate a stable, others that this was the "College Kitchen" mentioned by Bishop Chase in his reports on the progress of his infant institution, but the weight of evidence seems to identify the building as the "professor's house near Old Kenyon, with a well-walled cellar," to which the good bishop refers.

We have been unable to obtain any sketches of the front part, but it is, of course, of much later date than the stone portion in the rear. Members of the faculty resided here until 1909, the last occupant being Professor Frank Lauren Hitchcock of the Bowler department. For a year or two this was the home of the once-powerful Sophomore Court of Inquiry, and there are still stories in Bexley who appeared before "Tony" Cardillo and other notable judges of mechanical ingenuity in devising original modes of punishment. When Hubbard Hall burned, January 3, 1910, a room on the first floor was used as a reading room, and evening classes in sociology assembled here with Professor E. H. Downey.

For two years the ancient landmark has been unused, save as an abode for Gustave J. Roth Hurts, a Bohemian ex-operative singer employed at the Commons last winter. The windows invited stones from the passing students and rifle shots from the marksmen in Han¬sa, and last May a party of volunteers went underfoot to put "Hitchie's House" in the past tense with the lightyousaurus and the minions; the attempt failed, but the board of

SENIOR PROM GIVEN FINISHING TOUCHES

Preparations for the Mid-Year Social Festivities Insure a Successful Finish to 1914's Career

Second in importance only to the final semester examinations in the minds of Kenyon men is the senior promenade, the crowning event of the year and the social climax of senior festivities. Herebefore the mid-year dance has been given by the junior class while the seniors entertained at Commencement. This system obviously had many defects, chiefly among which was the overburdening of the graduating class in June. By an as¬sembly action of last June the two classes have interchanged dates so that the senior prom occurs in February and the junior dances in June.

The first semester examinations and on Friday, January 30, and, with scarcely a breathing space allowed between, the festivities begin. Miami University meets Kenyon in a basketball game in Rosse Hall Friday night. Saturday evening the Kenyon Glee and Mandolin Clubs will give a joint concert which, judging from the melodious strains blown over the campus every evening, will reflect credit upon the organizations. The informal dance will follow the con¬cert, Sunday will be given over to quiet and preparation for Mon¬day, February 2. The first event of importance on Monday will be the arrival of "Jimmie" Johnston and his orchestra of eight pieces. Johnston needs no introduction to Kenyon men and to those who have not yet heard him we will attempt no explanation. We only say "Wait." Thanks to a financial agreement between the Mt. Vernon Elks and Mr. Wonders, chairman of the sen¬ior committee, the class has been able to increase the number of pieces for this year. Elaborate plans are being made for the decoration of Rosse Hall. The class colors, scarlet and white, will be used exclusively, while transpar¬encies and other special features are being arranged. Refreshments will be served during the evening.

The patronesses for the evening will be Mesdames Pierce, Jones, Allen, Manning and Withd.

ASSEMBLY DEFICIT A REALITY NO LONGER

Resources Now Equal to Liabilities and End of the Year Promises to Leave a Safe Surplus

Executive Committee Considering Big Celebration to Observe End of Six-Year Fight With Debt

After laboring for nearly six years under a heavy debt, the As¬sembly has finally succeeded in meeting nearly all liabilities. The deficit originated in the fall of 1908 when the resignation of Coach Monroe necessitated the hiring of Bennie Pierce at the salary of $1,200 for the football sea¬son. The success of the 1908 team is fresh in the memories of us all. Prospects for Kenyon's future suc¬cess on the gridiron seemed excellent. Nevertheless there was a lack of cash at the end of the season and the other branches of athletics only added to this bur¬den.

Still the students and alumni were so enthusiastic over the suc¬cess of the team that Coach Pierce was engaged for the 1909 season for $1,500.

This year did not by any means turn out as successful a team as that of the previous season, and be¬cause of the few men in college the athletic fee had to be raised from $2.50 to $5.00 per semester. This increase was not sufficient to wipe out the debt, which mounted slowly until it was finally neces¬sary to borrow money for current expenses. This of course did noth¬ing to reduce the amount of bills outstanding, so at last $700 was secured on a note. The sureties were Dr. R. H. Allen and Ralph M. Watson, '12, as chairman and sec¬retary of the Executive Committee, the graduate manager, Dr. L. B. Walton, the treasurer, Professor E. H. Downey, C. B. Jackson, G. W. Freeman, Dr. Newhall, John A. Wickham and John H. Baird, pres¬ident and secretary of the Assem¬bly. The Executive Committee then set about putting abilities on a paying basis.

The college authorities agreed to give one-half of the coach's sal¬ary and the alumni have contribu¬ted about $900 during the past three years. Through these fac¬tors, and by means of careful financial supervision by the Exe-

THE KENYON COLLEGIAN

ASSEMBLY

With a pathetic absence of "pop," due probably to a lamentable absence of interest and the usual business, the Assembly lasted through twenty-five tedious minutes of routine reports.

On motion of Mr. Goode, the purchasing and framing of a photograph of the football squad was authorized. This is to hang in the Commons, perpetuating a custom inaugurated last year. Mr. Wonders, as chairman of the Senior From Committee, urged in strong terms the necessity of unanimous support of the mid-year social season, and promised as good a prom as the men on the Hill can ask.

Stires Debate

Initiated by the approach of the annual Stires debate, Kenyon's two literary societies are now in full away, and all indications augur for a successful year. The members of the freshman class are about evenly divided between Philomathes and Nu Pi Kappas, and their interest in the "twenty-second day event" is attested by the presence of several of Philo's newest initiates in the weekly preliminaries.

The question to be debated has been announced by Dr. Reeves and concerns the obligation of the United States to intervene in the Mexican crisis.

The subject is a live one and a spirited contest may be expected when the annual observance of Washington's birthday occurs. As the twenty-second falls on Sunday the debate will be held on Saturday or Monday, probably on the latter. Philo has espoused the cause of intervention, with ten aspirants out for the team, while Nu Pi Kappa defends the non-interference policy and announces six candidates for places on the debate.

Chess Expert Visits Kenyon

Kenyon chess enthusiasts were much interested in the visit of Mr. Newell W. Banks, chess and checkers master, who came to Gambier at the invitation of Dr. L. H. Welton, Saturday, January 3. Mr. Banks has long been known as an expert checker player and has more recently taken up chess with marked success. While here he defeated the best players in games both among the town people, faculty and students, losing not a single game. A particularly noteworthy and most spectacular exhibition came as a close to the evening in the Sterling Room, where he played three games of checkers and two of chess, simultaneously and with all the available boards hidden from his sight. With little difficulty he won all of these games. This was far from a record performance for Mr. Banks, but was starting enough for the crowd of onlookers.

ROOM IN THE DORMS
To Be Placed at Disposal of Father Harvey D. Officer, Coming to Gambier on Second Visit

The Reverend Harvey D. Officer, a member of the Order of the Holy Cross, with headquarters at West Park, New York, will make his second appearance in Gambier on Saturday, February 7. His visit will be heartily welcomed, especially by those who were on the Hill last year with him personally. It has been left to the Brotherhood of St. Andrew to arrange in detail the program which Father Officer will follow out.
His initial address will be made on Sunday morning, February 8, with another talk following in the evening. During the same week two services will be held daily, one at noon and another in the late afternoon or evening. During the remainder of the time unit his departure on Friday, Feb-uary 13, Father Officer will interview the college men personally, possibly making a visit to each division.

Those who are not acquainted with him may note that Father Of-icer is engaged in evangelistic work among the colleges of the country. Consequently he desires to get as close as possible to the college men and will be granted his wish to live in one of the dormitories while here. All college men will be at liberty to call on him at any time, and all are entrusted with the Brotherhood in carrying out the program arranged.

"Zip"

There was considerable excitement in college a few days before the Christmas vacation, when it was announced that a "coon" was going to enter Break. After further inquiry it was ascertained that he was coming from Kentucky through the influence of Bradstreet. According to "Brad, the newcomer was going to sit at the Commons and engage in all college enterprises, announcements which were received with indignation on the part of many of the students, who hinted at a boycott of the Commons and all athletics in which he engaged.

When "Zip Coon" arrived he soon overcame all objections to his presence. He is only fourteen months old and had in captivity for seven. His little blinking eyes gave him a very intelligent look; his hair is soft and he has a long bushy tail. "Zip" is a thorough gentleman and his man-ers are above reproach—a unique and interesting pet.

MRS. JOHN TRIMBLE
Passes Away After Long Residence in Gambier—Interesting Character Noted for Memory

Kenyon men of three generations will be shocked and grieved at the loss of Mrs. John Trimble, widow of a former member of the faculty and a familiar in Gambier for over fifty years. Mrs. Trimble passed away peacefully on the morning of Wednesday, January 7, at the age of ninety-three.

The deceased was born in County Down, Ireland, March 1, 1829.
In her early years she served as governess in the family of an Irish nobleman, and in 1850 came to the United States, taking up residence in Cincinnati. She taught in Ohio, and in 1856 came to Gambier as the bride of Professor John Trimble, who occupied the chair of Greek language and literature.

Mrs. Trimble represented the old-fashioned type of English life; she never became accustomed to American manners and politics, but retained her interest in British affairs of state.

She was noted for her brilliant mind and wonderfully reten-tive memory, and was by far the broadest reader in Gambier. Her kindly nature, exceptionally charming personality and interest in the college made her a host of friends among Kenyon's sons since the sixties, and her quaint English formality added a pleasing grace of expression to her conversation.

Funeral services were held in the Church of the Holy Spirit at ten o'clock, Friday, January 9, and the remains laid to rest in the college cemetery. College activities were suspended from ten to twelve in observance of the occasion.
Freshman Hats

The arrival of the freshmen, caps immediately at the close of the Christmas recess has dotted the campus with specks of fall colors standing out against the white of the snow. The headpieces serve a more utilitarian purpose than those of the past few years, for they are in the form of or-tones with green bands and are so warm (at least in appearance) that they provoke a murmur of envy from the members of the upper classes when an esppecially cold spell strikes the Hill.

ing for the Cincinnati Commercial ways draw—the satisfaction of successful personal achievement while the managers of Kenyon athletics, whose economy has been of material aid, can without immodesty put themselves on the back in the other club dollars.

The alumni, who have donated as liberally in the hour of defeat as in that of victory, have been a dominant factor in solving the great problem. With the fact that past few years the "old grads" have added nearly a thousand dollars to the Assembly's supply of "exchequers," and without this the old cut, the Assembly would have been bankrupt.

Mr. J. H. Dempsey, '82 of Cleveland, has long since offered to pay off some twenty-five dollars, and now Dr. Allen had previously expressed the same intention. Three divisions in college have donated hard-earned apiece, and the class of 1913 handed over a hundred from their senior play. With the athletic fees which are to be collected next semester the Executive Committee can feel "on velv.," and a continuation of the economy and efficient business methods of the past can be utilized for a permanent endowment fund for athletics.

There are rumors of a celebration when the last bill is received. Let us hope that it comes off in top-notch style. The event to be observed is one the impression which should be felt by all, especially those whose efforts have been instrumental in the achievement of the six-year task.

THE PROM

With the approach of the second semester comes the thought of social activity which manifests itself in the first of the three dances of the year, the Senior Promenade.

The bare fact that only a few dances of a formal nature are given in one year makes it imperative that every man in college should bend his support to such one, and especially to the one given by the seniors during the mid-year season.

There is much to be gained by attending a Kenyon dance, and no student should fail to grasp this opportunity and to take an important part in each social function of the year. Aside from the mere thought of having a good time himself, an undergraduate will learn much by his contact with people whom he has never before met.

He will develop his ability to mingle and conversate with numerous people and thus widen his ideas regarding the "give and take" of society. Many college men sit back and say that social life may do for those who desire it but that they have no place for it in their lives. Such men make a great mistake and enter into real life. In later years they will find that to get out and be sociable with their friends as like pulling teeth, and will deplore the fact that at college they did not avail themselves of the chances to learn to be affable and agreeable to all with whom they might come in contact.

No man wants to live apart from society. Each one owes it to himself and the world to share in the happiness of all his friends.

These are surely a few reasons why the coming dances should be attended by every man on the Hill. Others could be mentioned, but these should suffice to arouse the reader's duty, both to himself and to his college associates.

No better time than the present can be found in which to start the social life at Kenyon—a life which will have just as great an influence as the life in the classroom.

In regard to the dance itself nothing need be said, as the committee is doing everything in its power to make the first Senior Promenade as unusual and as entertaining as the dance in the classroom.

NOT ENOUGH MUSTARD

What is the matter with the Assembly? Why isn't there more interest in the affairs on the Hill? We doubt if there have ever been as many "pepless" sessions as this.

With each meeting has been a how, dragging along on routine matters and dry reports. It isn't the fault of anyone in particular, nor of everybody in general, but, the reason is, the lack of problems to be solved. During the past few years Kenyon has taken rapid strides, and under the guidance of several real leaders a great many evils have been remedied. Don't understand us to say that there's nothing yet to be done in this line—but nothing has been brought up this year over which a warm debate could arise.

Perhaps there are too few real statesmen among the upperclassmen. The best thinkers are often those men who haven't all the head because of natural aversion to authority. Whatever the answer may be, there aren't any "fire-eaters" of the type so useful in threshing out the problems of the past three years.

Something's going to explode. We refuse to prophesy, but a real fire man wants to take hold because of natural aversion to authority. Whatever the answer may be, there aren't any "fire-eaters" of the type so useful in threshing out the problems of the past three years.

The DOUBLE OUT SYSTEM

The new double-cut system has received its first real try-out and while it undoubtedly has not filled the most sanguine wishes of the faculty it has reduced to a marked degree the former evil of a very prolonged vacation.

Even an extremist would find it difficult to condemn the faculty for inaugurating the present system. It is their object to get men through in a course with a good a mark and as thorough a knowledge of the subject as possible, and the most successful instructor is the one who can do this most effectively. But they were hindered and kept from doing their best by the fact that there was a vacation in each semester, before and after which attendance was irregular; some were sure to get behind, whereas the rest of the class waited until the delinquents caught up. At the end of the semester was the time for a good work, it was to eliminate this evil that the faculty applied the present cut system.

Has it worked? Has it cut the most absurd alone? We believe so. While a good many missed Friday and Saturday, the great majority of the college was back by Monday, and thus missed by the retarders of the previous week. This is much better than the record of previous years, so much better, indeed, that it is a thing upon which the faculty ought to congratulate themselves. A few of them, however, felt guilty that as many missed as did.

It is the usual thing in every college in the country that men in their cuts, as many as they can, and add them to the long list of a vacation. The faculties of these colleges may not like it, but they have been unable to check it by rule because of much more stringent than the one in use on the Hill, which seems to be accomplishing its point.

There are plenty of men in college that have not yet used up all their class cuts. They might just as well have taken the extra days, but they did not. They had sense enough to realize that these days were much too precious, hence they came back. For such men a cut system ought not to be necessary.
BASKETBALL SEASON

Well Under Way With Local Quintette Improving in Every Game—Ohio University An Easy Victim

By showing a marked improvement in the last two games played, Kenyon's chances for a credible basketball season seem very bright. While only one game was won of the four played on foreign floors, yet the fact that Kenyon held Oberlin and Denison, two of the best teams in this part of the country, to credible scores, gives hope for better success in the future.

Kenyon 27, Ohio 15

Kenyon won her first college game of the season at Athens on Friday, January 16, by defeating Ohio University 27 to 15. The game was a close one with Schafer last few minutes of play, when Kenyon with a great sport forged ahead. Aggressive playing and excellent shots were the main factors for victory. Thiele 3, Thiele 2, Biggs 3 of the team playing his best game, Schafer proved to be the best scorer, with nineteen points to his credit.

Leading by a score of 13 to 10 in the first half, Kenyon threw a scare into the famous Denison quintet on Saturday, January 17, the game being played at Granville. The weight of the Denisonians told in the second half, however, and the game closed with the Buckeyes five on the long end of 34 to 14. In holding a team which usually scores from fifty to eighty points to such a low score, Kenyon's scrapy basketball defense deserve much credit than the fourteen points indicate.

SCIENTIFIC ADDRESS

Delivered by Professor W. B. Patt in Larwill Lecture

Col. W. O. Shields Talks on Animals

Since at least one of the lectures given during the college year on the scientific discoveries of comparatively recent date—wireless telegraphy, radium and liquid air, by means of practical demonstration these three topics were discussed as in a completely equipped laboratory. Prof. Patt showed what progress wireless telegraphy had made since its entrance into the commercial world and how vast was the future it was to have in settling the affairs of great nations, particularly as it may be applied to engines of war which remain to be seen.

Most of the members of the audience had a vastly different impression of radium when the speaker concluded his talk on this fascinating element. Several of the erroneous ideas of the substance gathered from newspapers or magazines were quickly dispelled by the speaker and, on the whole, the subject was admirably treated despite its complexity.

By far the most interesting part of the lecture was that dealing with liquid air. Through the medium of this peculiar substance many unique tricks were accomplished, such as freezing of alcohol and mercury, while a rubber ball was kept as hard as a condition that it shattered, as does glass when dropped. No doubt the most spectacular to witness was the boiling of a kettle of liquid air upon a solid piece of ice.

Immediately after the lecture the Science Club tendered the speaker a smoker, where he continued to demonstrate a few of the wonderful possibilities of the fluid ozone.

Col. W. O. Shields

The third lecture on the Larwill foundation was held in Ross Hall Saturday evening January 13, the speaker being Colonel W. O. Shields, a well known authority on bird and animal life. Colonel Shields, who has delivered lectures in Granville before, chose for his subject the "Timberline of the Rockies" and under this head discussed the birds and animals which inhabit the high mountains of the West. Profusions of such information the speaker was enabled to impress his hearers in an

BREACHES OF RULES

Lead Library Authorities to a Timely Protest—Magazine Contributor Hits the Nail on the Head

At the request of the library authorities, we reprint below a communication from the "Public Library, "The Public." The article has been deemed appropriate in view of the breaches of rules at the library, such as taking reference books, clipping from periodicals and carrying off books not properly checked out.

At one of the meetings of a class in sociology in one of our large universities, the professor—a man of international fame—waited a moment before beginning his lecture. He let his eyes travel tentatively over the two hundred upturned faces before him. Then he said:

"There are certain books placed on the Reading Room List of the University Library for the use of this class. For the most part there is but one copy of each book, and that one copy has to serve the entire class. Before the last examination I received a number of complaints from students declaring that these books had been taken from the reading room. They were kept until the examination was over. Of course, it is gratifying to a professor to feel that he has so inspired some of his students with his subject that they feel that they can not be without the textbooks during noon and night; but I have been wondering just what those examinations pupils will do when they go out from this university and are brought face to face with some of the serious temptations of life. If they can not conform to the few simple laws of this institution and be honorable in their dealings with their fellow students, what will they do when they have to meet the press and stress of the world? This is a class in social problems. How will a man or woman meet a world problem who hasn't the manliness or the womanliness to conquer his own?"

Every college professor and every college student in the country will recognize this reproof and its cause as applicable to his own college. There is dishonesty and trickery in every institution, just as there is in every college. But the pertinent question to ask about it is: What can a university do to educate it out of existence? The Government legislated slavery out of the country—can a university educate away cheating and dishonesty? Would it not be possible, furthermore, to give courses... in the making of citizens—not merely to turn out men trained to lay out cities, to conduct Boards of Health, to adjust an income tax; but men trained to recognize every form of bribery and to despise, reject and denounce it! Men trained to know and to fear the first tempting argument—"it’s only for a day or two!"—that blinds the defaulting bank clerk; men trained to the finest shades of honor, as to the finest technicalities of the law.

Why not? In our law school we teach "Jones on Evidence," "Anson on Equity," "Wilton on Sales." Why have we no course anywhere on "Social Man," or "Honorable versus Dishonestable Practices," showing which laws encourage social responsibility, which lack of it?

One of the contributions that this generation is making to our thought is that there is something higher than the question of whether action is legal or illegal, and that is, whether it is social or anti-social. Are our law schools teaching this?

One of our most advanced educators said the other day, "I think that every professional school ought to give in its senior year a course in the analysis of the temptations that may assail its students in the practice of their professions, and especially in the analysis of subtle snarest not immediatelyrecognizable as mischievous.

Insidious gainful methods of conducting business often deceive the honest and capable. Experience in some of its forms will start a man toward corruption, and hurry him there almost before he knows it. The proper study of mankind is still man. No boy is educated and ready to begin life who does not know himself, his own problems and the problems of the society in which he must work, better than he knows the technicalities of his profession or his art. This is the field in which our universities have still to turn the sod.

Fine! Fine!!
Are you talking about the lady or the tobacco?

Talking about "Velvet" tobacco!

I told Jimmie Johnson that the minute I saw this "Smooth Smoke" Circle, in I got, and that I had doubled the satisfaction of living! Say—are you talking about the lady or the tobacco. I’m talking about Velvet, the smoothest tobacco! Talking to convince you that this is exceptional tobacco—the best tobacco flavor of all—the smoothest in the smoking—the most enjoyable!

Will you go inside with me? Good!

Velvet
THE SMOOTHEST TOBACCO

The best tobacco leaf grown. Perfectly aged. A mellowness rarely attained. A flavor most satisfying. Velvet will delight any pipe smoker. Too smooth to bite or burn. Great!

W. T. Pitt Cooke

William Townsend Pitt Cooke, a member of the class of 1889, encumbered this important curet early Wednesday morning, January 7.

For the past twenty years he had been connected with the management of the Eocene House, Sanddusky, Ohio.

The deceased was born July 27, 1845. He entered Kenyon in 1864, graduated with the B. A. degree in 1868, and thirty years later won that of A. M. In early life he was active in political circles, and entered the government customs service in New York City. He was appointed collector of the customs at Sandusky by President Harrisen in 1890 and held the position for four years. Since 1894 he had been in the hotel business.

Mr. Cooke was found dead in bed after the repeated efforts of a bell-boy to arouse him from his last slumber had failed. The exact hour of his end is unknown.

Mr. Cooke was a well known figure in hotel circles and popular with the travelling public. He was a nephew of Jay Cooke the financialist, and represented a family which was always generous to Kenyon, as evidenced by many Donations, notably from his uncle who endowed a chair at Bexley.

The deceased was a loyal alumnus and until comparatively recent years a familiar figure on the Hill.

The funeral services were held January 9 at the residence of his sister, Miss Mary E. Cooke, and the remains laid to rest in Oaklawn cemetery.

Progress of Glee Club

That the Glee Club means business this year is evidenced by the fact that the frequent rehearsals interest shown by each mem-er of the club has resulted in unparalleled progress during the past few weeks. By consist-tant training the club has now been brought to a point where it is practically ready to stage a first-class concert. Except for the working out of a few details in one selection, each number on the program is ready to be given at a moment's notice and within a week the specialties will be in shape to make the club a single unit.

The Rt. Rev. William A. Leonard, Bishop of Ohio, was chief consecrator and celebrant of the Holy Communion. Bishop W. Lennox of Ontario read the epistle and the Rt. Rev. Courtland W. Hunt, head of Pittsburgh the gospel.

Bishop Charles P. Anderson of Chicago was preacher. After the consecration the bishop-convener was presented by the Rt. Rev.
Theodore I. Reese, Coadjutor of Southern Ohio, and the Rt. Rev.
Charles D. Williams, Bishop of Michigan.

The testimonials of the bishopcrere then read and the oath of consecration taken.

The litany was read by the Bishop Williams of Milwaukee. In the ceremony of consecration the Bishop of Ohio was assisted by the Rt. Rev. Boyd Vincnet, of Southern Ohio, and Bishop Samuel C. Edsell of Minnesota, who joined in the laying on of hands.

The pastoral cross, the episcopal ring, and the Bible were then delivered to the newly-consecrated bishop and the common service was finished.

A luncheon in honor of the Bishop Du Moulin was given by the parish of Trinity Cathedral.

There were present representatives of the University of Denver, Ohio State University, Western Reserve University, Oberlin College, Case School of Applied Scicence, and Kenyon College, which was represented, in the absence of President Peires, by the Register, Dr. Newhall.

Conservation of Bishop-Convener

The consecration of the Very Rev. Frank Du Moulin, LL. D., to be Bishop-Convener of Ohio, was held at Trinity Cathedral, Thursday, January 8, in the presence of over fifteen hundred peodle.

The services began with the procession, hymn, the "Litany of Church," the procession comprising over fifty choristers, the divinity students of Bexley Hall, the representatives of the cathedral chapter and of instructions of learning, the various oficials and committees of the diocese, and finally the clergy, including over eighty priests and twenty-three bishops.

The Rev. D. B. Ray

Beloved news has been received of the death of the Rev. David Brainerd Ray, 55, at Huntington, Long Island, October 30, 1913.

The deceased was born at Worthington, Ohio, March 23, 1855, and was the son of Dr. John L. and Mary E. (Massey) Ray. He entered Kenyon at the age of fifteen and four years later graduated with the B. A. degree. Immediately after graduation he entered the faculty as Latin instructor, and several years later became professor of ancient languages at Wash-fort (Kentucky) Military Academy.

Mr. Ray's theological training was obtained at the Philadelphia Divinity School. He went to New York in 1888 to become rector of Grace Emmanuel Church in Harton, which position he filled until 1893, when he retired from active service to spend the winter of his life at Huntington. The deceased married Mary E. Frost, February 14, 1887, and of this union four children were born, two of whom survive him.

one.

Ochor Recital Postponed

According to plans previously announced by the director, Don Woods, the choir had intended to render a recital on Wednesday, January 21. On account of the conflicting plans of the Glee Club, however, it has been deemed wise to postpone the recital until Palm Sunday, April 5. The program will be announced later.
Basketball Season

On Friday, January 9, Buchtel

In addition to views of feathered creatures some excellent slides of standing timber were dis- played, among which were several showing curious growths due to extreme climatic conditions of the high mountains.

Colonel Shields’ address was delivered before a large audience and his ability to keep his hearers interested, together with the excel- lent views covering the subject rendered the entire address one easily understood and remem- bered.

Following the lecture a reception was held at the college, where the students were given an opportunity to meet the speaker informally. Several stories of adventure were related by Colonel Shields and each tale received hearty applause from the auditors.

Thomas J. Goodard, ’03, and Miss Elsie Johnson, of Columbus, were married at the home of the bride, December 13, 1913. “Tom” is in the insurance business in New York.

Senior Play

After a semester’s reading in Shakespeare, the Seniors have practically decided on the class play to be staged at Commencement “The Knight of the Burn- ing Pestle” by Beaumont and Fletcher, will be the production this year. “Weary” Wonder, an inimitable Falstaff in “Merry Wives of Windsor,” appears as Ralph in the preliminaries, and while little has been done of the work promises to be interesting and the culmination of Dr. Reeves’ efforts next June should be anticipated with pleasure.

“The Knight of the Burning Pestle” is a satirical protest against the survival of romantic excesses. Like Don Quixote, Ralph falls a prey to mediæval romances and becomes a knight errant. It is a play within a play, and the success of the production depends upon making the audience grasp this fact.

The class of 1903 used this as a graduation play, and according to Dr. Reeves succeeded in presenting one of the best ever given on the Hill. The result which 1914 may obtain may therefore be watched with interest.

Article in “The Outlook”

Kenyon’s name has been given pleasing prominence in a recent number of the Outlook, in an aricle on “The College Man in Business,” by Ernest G. Draper. The writer, after discussing the degree to which a student is inssured by his alma mater, cites as an example a Kenyon alumnus whose name is not given. We append that portion of Mr. Draper’s article which contains the reference.

“Some time ago a young man entered my office. I had never seen him before. He said that, although he was born in this country he was a Pole; that his father and grandfather were Poles. He represented a Polish newspaper, and sought, not an advertisement, but any company’s permission to send, at our expense, his paper to each of our seventy-five Polish employees. At first his request seemed of no interest to me, and, being busy, I gave him the scant attention I believed he deserved. In only a few minutes, however, I realized my mistake. In elaborating his first remarks the young man talked so clearly and concisely, so easily and yet so earnestly that his manner compelled respectful attention. I questioned him about his former life. He said he was a graduate of Kenyon College. He spoke so sincerely and fully of the debt of gratitude he owed to his college that one could easily see how large a factor his college had been in molding him. “Outlook, January 3, 1914.

Carl F. Holzapfel, ex-’16, was married to Miss Eloise Elizabeth Raum at the bride’s home in Fremont, January 19. “Dick” is in the camera business at Sandusky.

“Keeping in Front!”

You fellows know what that means! We’ve been very successful in this regard with Fatimas Cigarettes. By the way, these cigarettes were first sold in the college towns—and you agreed with us that they were good. Then we put out for the big race, to make Fatimas of nation-wide reputation, and today more are sold than any other cigarette in this country. No purer, or more carefully chosen tobacco grows than that in Fatimas. We purposely put them in a plain inexpensive wrapper—in this way we can afford quality tobacco, and twenty of the smokes for 15 cents. Now your college crew is of utmost importance to you—so is a good cigarette, and it’s your aim in life to keep Fatimas in the lead—right up to their good quality—right up to where you first found them, and will always find them. Success fellows! You started this cigarette on its successful career—and you pull a strong oar all over this country.
