The seventy-sixth anniversary of the building of Bexley Hall was celebrated on October 22 and 23. On Friday evening, the 22nd, special services were held in Bexley chapel. On Saturday, the 23rd, ivy from St. Mary’s chapel was delivered to Bexley, England, was planted.

At the special Friday evening service the late Bishop McVeagh’s address at the laying of the cornerstone of Bexley was read by Dean Jones. Bishop Leonhard and President Peirce were present at this service. The ancient English service of sweepers was used.

On Saturday at 11:30 a.m. a procession was formed which included Bexley students, and professors; also President Peirce and Bishop Leonhard. The procession marched around Bexley Hall and planted the ivy at previously designated places. At each of the four corners of the building the procession stopped while clippings were read in Hebrew, Greek, Latin and English. W. C. Selz read in Hebrew, E. F. Hoekz read in Greek, W. F. Whitman read in Latin, and W. J. Barret in English.

Bishop Leonhard gave a short talk which was very appropriate for the occasion. Dr. Barrett delivered a short address in which he told the purpose of the ceremony of planting the ivy, commemorating the seventy-six anniversary of the building of Bexley Hall.

Before the recent renovation of Bexley Hall, the old building was completely covered with ivy, but of course the ivy vines were destroyed when the building was re-modeled. The ivy which was planted during the ceremony was said that Canon Watson had received from England. It covers the walls of St. Mary’s chapel of Bexley Manor in England. This is the chapel after which the Bexley chapel is named. It will probably be some time

Kenyon 52, Antioch 0.

In the fourth game of the season on Saturday, October 23, Kenyon defeated Antioch 52 to 0. This was Antioch’s first appearance in Gambier. Antioch had a light green team that displayed practically no football knowledge with the exception of several good forward passes. By this method several first downs were made by Antioch.

The score would have been doubled what it was, had Kenyon taken advantage of their opponents. As it was Kenyon played a good many second string men, and experimented with several new plays.

Galberach was easily the star of the game. He made five out of the eight touchdowns. Time after time the ball was given to “Galdy,” and first downs usually followed. Several times “Galdy” got away on end runs and dashed down the field with the whole team after him, but they were soon left behind by the fastest back in the state. The other touchdowns were made by Eckerle, Schafer and Schafstall.

This being the first home game a good crowd was in attendance.

The Glee Club has secured its first engagement, a concert to be given in Mt. Vernon on December 2, under the auspices of the Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Reeves Delivers Lecture

On Wednesday evening, November 2, Dr. Reeves delivered a lecture before the students of Hixley Hall on John Huss, the Father of the Bohemian Reformation, and the independence of Huss to John Wycliff, the English reformer and writer of the first English Bible.

Dr. Reeves based his lecture upon the more recently discovered manuscripts which have been brought to light within the last fifteen or twenty years, among the records in the various parts of Bohemia and Austria. These records show conclusively that the seeds of the Huss Reformation were sown in England. The arguments of Huss are found to follow the writings of John Wycliff almost literally. These documents were taken from England by the Bohemians who had gone to England with Anne of Bohemia. They came under the influence of Wycliff while in England and upon their return to Bohemia carried the germs of the Reformation with them. This year marks the 500th anniversary of the martyrdom of John Huss.

Choir Is Busy.

The choir has not started any special music as yet but Mr. Donald Wonders who is in charge, thinks that as soon as the roughness caused by the football games is gone he will be ready to commence on the special music for Advent. There are a number of old men in the choir and these are helped out by six new men who made the choir at the time of the tryout. Out of fifteen men who tried for the choir six secured regular berths and five become substitutes. The choir is made up of Day, Bowman and Wood as tenors, Welch, Thorne, Wigg, Heck, Sadler, Shaner, Danforth, and Perrin as airs. Cross, Steinfeld, McKeehan and Sapp as baritones and Meldrum, Jordan, Park and Williams as basses. The substitutes are Miller, Tilden, R. H. Sanborn, N. P. Sanborn, Henderson, Parker and Edwards.

BEXLEY IS ACTIVE.

The student body at Bexley this year, while comparatively small in numbers, nevertheless seems to be wide awake, and endowed as it were with a public spirit.

At recent meetings the students have received the Bedell Missionary Society and organized themselves into a Bexley Assembly. A constitution for this Assembly has been drawn up.

The Bedell Missionary society has not been active at Bexley for some time. The society was organized in March, 1855. It has for its purpose a study of foreign and domestic missions, and also a study of all modern day problems confronting the Church, and especially among Bexley men. At a recent meeting Donald Wonders, '12, was elected president of the society, and R. F. McDowell, '16, secretary.

For the purpose of considering in a corporate body any questions concerning the employment of the Bexley Assembly was formed. It will also look after the entertainment of any visitors at the seminary. Dr. W. J. Barretts, '02, has been elected president of the Bexley Assembly, and C. T. Hull, '14, secretary.

Kenyon Alumni Completes

Important Government Work.

Oscar S. Adams, B. S., '96, is the compiler of a table of United States Coast and Geodetic Survey connections, recently published by the government. The title of the publication is "Application of the Theory of Least Squares to the Adjustment of Triangulation."

Mr. Adams has been in the employment of the government as a computer for the Coast and Geodetic Survey for a number of years. He has spent much time on the recently published computations. His work has been highly praised by the government and it will be of invaluable use to the Survey as many of the computations he has never been worked out before.

Last commencement Mr. Adams received his A. M. degree from Kenyon College in recognition of his valuable work. In a recent letter from Professor J. B. Woodworth of the department of Geology at Harvard to Mr. Adams, the former says: "You are to be complimented upon the clean-cut, almost diagrammatism presentation of a difficult subject."

Collegian Epistle Writer

For American Magazine.

David W. Bowman, '14, an editor of the Kenyon Collegian, has an interesting article in the October issue of the American Magazine. "Dave" was editor of the Collegian during his last year in college. At present he is reporting Congressmen Robert Cresser, '97, Speaks on Armament Question.

In a recent issue of the Cleveland Leader, the opinion of Congressman Robert Cresser, '97, 23d district Ohio, was given. It follows, in part:

"Men of recognized standing on both sides of the armament question have, by their actions at least, said that the principles for which they have contended during a lifetime are all wrong. Expenditures for the army and navy have been constantly increasing, although it is well known that military efficiency has not increased in proportion. Investigation has shown that private concerns have received from government appropriations for military purposes profits out of all proportion to what is reasonable or even decent."

"I believe that before we can have any trustworthy plan to act upon we must eliminate the element of private profit from the business of war. I say this not so much because of the tremendous pecuniary loss to the people, but because of the difficulty of reaching a sound conclusion as to the proper thing to do when we have private manufacturers and builders using every argument and influence to have a program adopted which will be primarily to their advantage."

"At present I do not feel that a change is necessary in regard to the army and navy plans which have been hitherto followed but I am quite certain that the program of the extremists for military and naval defense would not be to the ultimate advantage of the American people."

Chicago.

The article by Mr. Bowman occupies about twenty-four inches in the American and is entitled "Maker of Newspaper Reporters." Franklin Matthews, who is a professor at the Columbia School of Journalism, is the one about whom the article is written. His methods of making newspaper reporters is discussed, along with the editing of the "Blot," the newspaper which has never been printed. Bowman attended the Columbia journalism school after graduating from Kenyon.

Be Useful

We come to college for the purpose of fitting ourselves for our life's work, which is in most cases "to do for others." That is, to be useful.

In fact too often we apply ourselves so diligently to our work, and set only the one object—our profession—before us that many times we forget to be useful while in college. We forget that there are opportunities opened to us where we might very easily do some little good, which surely would be far more profitable to the world, of preparation, but only strengthen us in our purpose to become useful.

While Gambier is only a small village, yet there are many opportunities open to all college men who would be useful. That is, useful outside of college activities. Some of the college men in the past have taught Sunday school, others have become interested in the welfare of the town itself, others have aided themselves in boys' work. At present our chaplain, Mr. Winslow, is looking for some college men who would like to become useful. Perhaps he has some Sunday school classes without teachers, but that is not the only opportunity for service at present. The boys of the town are anxious for a boys' scout organization, and some of the younger boys would like to become Knights of King Arthur. Mr. Winslow is looking to the college men for leaders who are interested in boys.

Are there any men in Kenyon College who care to spend their leisure time by being useful?

The Reveille

From more than one quarter this year has come the statement that upon the success or failure of the next edition of the REVEILLE depends the continued existence of the book. The reason assigned is simple: Our yearbook has been poorly supported, financially and in a literary way, and as a result, each succeeding class has found itself burdened with debt at the beginning of its senior year. Last year's class furnished a striking example: after two or three men had done the work in which the whole school should assist, is writing the REVEILLE, the book was finally published; and out of a total enrollment of two hundred and seventeen students, only twenty-five were so liberal as to purchase copies. As a result, the class of 1916 is facing a deficit of over two hundred dollars.

Now, there is probably not a man in Kenyon who would wish to see the REVEILLE discontinued, for it is one of the very best possible means of advertising the college, and it stands, besides, as a monument to the achievements of the students. If, therefore, you have a desire to have the REVEILLE continued as a feature of Kenyon life, the means by which you may help are few, simple, and direct.

In the first place, pay your assessment promptly. This is the actual life blood of the publication, and every Kenyon man should give his quota.

In the second place, if you have any suggestions or criticisms, make them to the REVEILLE Board, while there is time to act on them. You will not help to make a good book by pointing out the weak points after it is published; and the Board of Editors are not so gifted that they can write a uniformly good book without some assistance.

Lastly, when the REVEILLE is published, experience a "Thrill of spirit" and buy a copy. After all, you know, the book is really not printed so that a lot of extra copies can be put in the library.

Remember that as the REVEILLE is a monument of student achievement, it is our duty to make it a good monument; and with present favorable conditions, if every student does his share, the combination can be made equal to the realization of beauty and excellence.

Consider Others

Through somebody's inconsiderate actions frequenters of the Library are now obliged to apply at the desk for certain popular magazines. In other words, the scissors fraud is again at work among the periodicals.

Enough has been said in the past of the selfishness and immorality of such acts; and it is to be hoped that whoever is doing the pilfering, will summon up a little common courtesy, and restrain his fishing fingers from further depredations.

Moral Victories

The real meaning of the term "moral victory" has always been extremely vague in the minds of Kenyon men and yet the student body is continually being appealed by this ambiguous voice. When the plucky football eleven meets an opponent from the standpoint of advantage, the result is a "moral victory." In other words Kenyon has gained a spiritual victory merely because they were able to achieve an end, even competitive with a college which has every advantage over them.

Looking at the matter from a psychological standpoint, a series of so called moral victories will ultimately ruin the pluckiness and spirit of Kenyon athletes. Victories where there is no physical supremacy seem ridiculous to the eye of the materialist. The fundamental principle of athletics is physical competition and not spiritual consolation. The fact that Kenyon wins a great many moral victories is not the fault of the team but rather the culpability of the sobredale. There is not the slightest doubt but that Kenyon cannot continue its victories if the class of 1916 fail in the mission of their class numbers in both numbers and equipment.

If we look at the question from a purely practical light we must come to the conclusion that the only case in which it would be much more beneficial to both the team and the college if a schedule were drawn up with a school of the same class with Kenyon. If this should be done competition would grow keener, spirit would survive and the members of the team would have a fair chance to show their worth. As the matter now stands moral victories are few and many physical and victories are few. In fact under the present conditions when the team leaves for a college far superior in numbers and equipment to Kenyon, the password has come to be "another moral victory."

Phil and Nupi

It is a well known fact that interest in the Literary Societies has gradually been decreasing during the last few years. Every fall an article appears in the Collegian commenting on this lack of interest and urging the men to show their spirit and put the societies on their feet once more. But it is of little avail. After the initiation season their attendance is small and the interest less.

The fault of this lies to a large extent with the upper classes. They have acquired the idea that Phil and Nupi are only a source of much and pass this idea on to the freshmen. Consequently no one takes the work seriously and the lower classes are only attending the meeting or carrying out their ideas for the betterment of the societies.

This spirit of contempt ought not to exist. Every man ought to be able to stand on his feet and state his ideas in a clear and simple manner. Classroom work teaches how to do this, but in the literary society the opportunity is given for practical training.

Again, the Literary Societies are next to the college itself the oldest institution on the campus. With them have been connected some of the best and oldest traditions. They themselves are traditions of the Kenyon campus and can not be given up. In former years they were the chief activity in college life. As shown by the history of our alumni they were of great influence and benefit to the students.

It is now time for Phil and Nupi to again take up their activities. It is obvious that much good can be made of them. Let every man realize that he is good and connect himself with one of the organizations and attend the meetings. The amount of time required each week is small and well spent. If every man will take the work seriously, these societies can be made a source of great interest, and benefit to the individual and the college.

Tennis Courts

Tennis is supposed to be one of the chief sports at Kenyon. Yet this fall only one court has been put into shape for use. This means that at the most only four men can play tennis at a time. All others wishing to play must either wait a long time or give up their match.

And this is the condition most of the time in the spring also. This means that we are discouraging the playing of tennis. Even at the best two courts are not enough for the majority of a hundred men.

We should have more courts. But why can't whoever is responsible see to it that the two we have are put in shape for use?

Allegheany College has made a twenty-five cent addition to the tuition of each student in order to put its debating and oratorical departments on a firm financial basis.
Why? Why? Why? The editor-in-chief in conjunction with the faculty decided to offer $50.00 in prizes for the best answer to the problem involved in the following story. The answers, which should be addressed to M. O. X., Literary Editor, Col- legian, written on one side of the paper only, and in a legible hand will be carefully studied, and the winning answer judicially chosen by a committee of keen-minded Harcourt ladies.

Note—Even before the problem story went to press I mentioned the idea to several men who are especially interested in such a problem, and have already received the few letters which I submit in this issue.

Title of the Story—"It's All Wrong Little Girl! It's All Wrong!"—or—"Life As It Aint."

She was fair—Ah, but she was fair. She had the Southern accent. She dressed like one of the "Pol- lice." Her eyes—some eyes, they would bubble and gurgle like the brooks. Her voice, it was queer and quaint and peculiar, like one of "Chamber's" best sellers. She called her friends Ha-ar-vard scholars. She never eudums in this issue. She used perfume that you only could smell every now and then. In this story she is languidly reclining on an oriental couch—dressed in plain but costly white—reciting Rossetti to the music of an Hungarian orchestra playing "Wagner's Evening Star."

And our hero. Some boy. Six feet two in his socks. Played ball on old Dartmouth back in ninety-nine, when he won the game from Princeton. Often he would stand up and give the old college yell, and his secret past. It was simply great. His father being a million- aire something or other the papers had given him much press notice over it. His past, I repeat, was even had enough to please the literary taste of ladies who live in expensive flats, own poodle dogs and read French classics. Any ambitions book heroines could be proud of this guy's past.

He always alcanically smoked cigarettes, and had looked all over the glasses in George McCutcheon's geography, and still he had found no romance. Also, he always wore expensive but rather worn-out clothes, not because he had to, but a hero must.

Our heroine was short, of poor but dishonest parents, and the awfulness of it was that he was an honest lawyer. His father was an honest man in a small town, however, he is only poor in this story, and not even poor enough to have brought his son up in a log cabin. Our sub-hero wore glasses, he had never traveled, he was a respect- able bank clerk. Absolutely no romance here, he was too short. Yet he won the girl. How? or why? that is the problem. For the best answer you will receive the prize. Why did he win her? How would you win her?

I have already received the following letters:

Dear Literary Editor: Being not only in love, but I blush to say, perhaps I better not say. However, I am extremely short, and wear nose glasses, I think they look much more distinguished than spectacles even if they slip off the nose. Your story interests me personally. No doubt many will give the trie ans- wer. 'Precious jewels come in small packages,' this axiom, however, is rather vague. Perhaps the other not so succes

The Red Leaf.

As I was walking on an autumn day
Along the Middle Path, and saw the dead
Memories of summer round me shed,
Consigned to life's ebb-water of decay,
I found a yellow leaf upon the way
Shewing a spot of red, as if, heart-red,
A drop of blood had aplashed there; and I said:
'O Nature kind and cruel, stern and gay!

Would that for one brief hour might be
So far from this strange-time of wrath and grief
Which such dark coils of painful puzzle hath,
That all this bloody year seem to me
A single spot of red upon a leaf,

A yellow leaf in Time's long winding path?"

Why I Came To Kenyon.

Almost without exception, when the average preparatory school graduate makes his choice of a col- lege or university, he is either prejudiced in favor of an institution by the reputation which it bears for ath- letics, scholarship, college life or whatever he is most interested in, or, he may have friends who have gone to that college, and have told him in glowing terms of their Alma Mater.

Both of these conditions in- fluenced too in making Kenyon my choice. I had friends in the class of '83 who seemed to be imbued with that old spirit and loyalty, which gives Kenyon a greater hold upon her alumni than any college anywhere. My first introduction to Kenyon was hearing Raymond Calsah and other Kenyon men sing "The Thrill." That song made deep impression upon me which I never forget.

From the purely practical stand- point, I decided upon Kenyon be- cause I knew that many men went to Johns Hopkins from Kenyon, which I wished to do for my med- ical course. Kenyon also held advan- tages for me in being near my home, and not being, as the prev- alent opinion seems to be, a school for the sons of the "idle rich." I had heard much of the college life at Kenyon, and I wished to enjoy some of it, unaltered, myself. And lastly but not least, I had been informed that great advantages were to be gained from the small classes and acquaint- ance with the professors. M. D. D., '18.

Yale University has just con- cluded a series of revival meet- ings of unparalleled success, un- der the leadership of Sherwood Eddy, who was the ripest leader during the whole campaign was unprecedent- ed and many decisions were made.

On Friday evening, October 29, Dr. and Mrs. Jones gave their anual Halloween party to Bexley men of the Hall fraternity. The members of the Bexley faculty and their wives were present, also Bishop and Mrs. Leonard. A pleasant evening was enjoyed amid beautiful and artistic decorations.

Saturday evening, October 30, the home of Dr. and Mrs. Newhall was the scene of a small dancing party, composed of Harcourt girls and Kenyon men. About twelve couples were in attendance. Victoria music was provided, and an enjoyable evening ensued.

On Saturday evening, October 29, a pre-Halloween masqueradedancing party was given at Harcourt. Kenyon men were the guests. There were about twenty-five couples present. The costumes worn were various and in many cases, especially those of the Harcourt ladies, were elaborate.

Brotherhood

Under the directorship of J. R. Goodwin, ’16, the Brotherhood of St. Andrew is planning several events for the coming year.

In addition to the regular weekly meetings, smokers will be held, to which the men of the college will be invited. It is also planned to bring Father Officer to Gambier for a few days, sometime during the winter. The older men on the Hill will remember with pleasure the last visit of Father Officer two years ago, and will look forward to his arrival.

The Rev. Mr. Winslow is taking an active interest in the Brotherhood and with his assistance a successful year is anticipated.

Rifle Club at Ohio State.

In a recent issue of the Ohio State Lantern, notice of the formation of a rifle club was given. It follows in part:

Ohio State is to be represented by an intercollegiate rifle team, if plans of certain officers of the cadet regiments mature. At a meeting this week in the officers' room in the basement of the Armory final arrangements will be made. The meeting is open to all who are interested.

It is necessary to secure the sanction of President W. O. Thompson before the club can be formed. The organization intends to affiliate with the National Rifle Association. A suitable place for a 20-yard range with a hill for a backstop has been found on the Olentangy river north of the University, which will enable the club members to use high-power rifles.

Suggestion to Kenyon Rifle club, Arrange a meet.

Does Study Pay?

Very few realize the great value of each day or hour spent in honest study and educational training. Experience and observation show that the fair monthly wages of those who have had only a brief school training of from three to five years are $40. In forty years such persons accumulate about $19,000. For those who have been able to study a little longer in school, or who have completed the equivalent of the eighth grade studies whether day or night, similar earnings are $70 per month on the average and in a life time of forty years, accumulate $51,000. In other words, the 400 hours of extra study and training gained by the man over the former, enable him to earn over $44,000 more than his less favored brother. This gain is exactly equal to $3.60 for each hour of study improved by the latter over the former.

A large and abundant facts show that the similar life earnings of a third man who spends his time from the age of six until he is eighteen in school and then graduates from the modern high school or academy, are over $57,000. He spends about 4,000 more hours in study than the second man and this difference is similarly worth to him exactly $5 per hour of each study. Similarly the fourth man who goes on through college or its equivalent in day or evening study finds his life earnings to be nearly $80,000. This increase of capital gained as the result of additional study is found to be worth $7.60 per hour for each additional hour of study which the fourth man secured over the third one.

That is, the longer a person studies as a rule, whether in day or evening work, or in public schools, each succeeding hour of study is more valuable than any preceding hour, and ranges as shown above, from $3.60 to $7.60. A person can thus earn per hour through study two or three times as much as he can earn in an entire day in the ordinary business occupation of life.

These figures were compiled by a recent Kenyon graduate.

Cornell will have a college arm-mary, the largest in the world, costing $325,000.

The amendment making Phi Gamma Phi in Middle Hanna the Sixth Constitutional Division, was the most important action taken by the November Assembly on November 3. After a discussion on the advisability of this action, it was passed and the Middle and West Kenyon Divisions were made the Seventh Constitutional Division.

A very able plea on the necessity of prompt payment of the Reville class assessments was made by Manager Schaefer. He said the book had not been a success in the past because the men had not met their obligations, and that they could not proceed until they had sufficient funds with which to defray current expenses. In connection with Sec. A. J. McKechnie pointed out the efforts of the Staff to make the book a better and a more personal one and urged everyone to get behind the magazine and bind them with their financial support.

The sentiment of the athletes present was that the amendment to give them miniature fold footballs and basketballs instead of sweatshirts was inappropriate and the amendment was referred to the next meeting.

That the present constitution is inefficient was the contention of Wattley. He was supported in this by President Steinfeld. Both men pointed out that there were many useless provisions and that some clauses contradicted themselves. A motion was made and passed that a committee be appointed to draft a new constitution.

Wattley was elected to the Executive Committee from North Hanna, and Davies was elected to the Dormitory Committee for East Division.

A meeting of the Senior Council was called for November 4 for the purpose of electing a new secretary of the Assembly.

Preparations were made for a “Fest” meeting and to arouse enthusiasm for the Wooster game and it was suggested that the “Jinx” that has been following the team all season be buried before the game. Along with this Cross urged the men to raise the character of the songs sung at the Commons. He said that singing was what made the Commons enjoyable and that for the entertainment of guests it was fitting to choose a better repertoire.

C. Weatherhead, ex-’16, T. Thompson, ’15, and Gooch, Th, attended the meeting and when called on for speeches expressed their pleasure in being able to be present.

The meeting adjourned with “The Thrill!” and a good “Hika.”

EX-PRESIDENT HAYES

perpetuation and to the respect and veneration of the Nation which he served and honored in the highest capacity which can fall to the lot of man.”

Of the course of the lectures the first was devoted to the political situation in 1876 and emphasized the eminent qualifications of General Hayes for the Republican nomination. The second lecture discussed the work of the Electoral Commission and demonstrated that under the provision of the United States constitution no other decision could have been reached.

The last two lectures were devoted to the achievements of the administration in the settlement of the Southern question, in the resumption of specie payments and the currency problem and in the reform of the Civil Service. The far-sighted statesmanship of President Hayes was illustrated by his recommendation of a single term for the Presidency and his advocacy of the American ownership of the Panama Canal.

Of a single term for the Presidency Professor Burgess said: “It was President Hayes’ firm belief that the advisability of a second term in the Presidential office furnished temptations dangerous to, if not absolutely incompatible with, the most effective discharge of the duties of the great office. He was convinced that it was too severe a draft upon human nature to expect that any man under the temptation of securing a second term would not have his thoughts, time and energies diverted, in a greater or less measure, from the discharge of his official duties to the work of bringing about his re-nomination and his re-election.”

“He also believed that the policies and official activities of a President under such temptation would be more or less tainted with selfish considerations which would blind his vision and demoralize his conscience.”

Of the Panama Canal President Hayes said in a special message of March, 1880: “The policy of this Country is a canal under American control. The United States cannot consent to the surrender of this control to any European power or to any combination of European powers. If existing treaties between the United States and other nations, or if the rights of sovereignty or property of other nations, stand in the way of this policy,—a contingency which is not apprehended,—suitable steps should be taken by just and liberal negotiations to promote and establish the American policy on this subject consistently with the rights of the nations to be affected by it.”

Founders' Day Sermon

By Bishop Reese

On Monday, November 1, at Founders' day services in the College chapel, the sermon was preached by the Right Rev. Theo- dore Irving Reese, D. D., bishop coadjutor of Southern Ohio. He spoke, in part, as follows:

"Many people today have the pagan idea of death, rather than the Christian. This is evidenced by the pagan symbols which we see on tombstones, such as the scythe, the broken column, etc.

To Christians, death should rather be a cause of rejoicing. I saw, when in Rome, inscriptions on the tombs of the early Christians, they read so and so lives, or is alive with Jesus. The early saints and martyrs lived in the immediate presence of Jesus. Their faith is the kind which we need today. Christianity is not a dead reli-

No, Philburt, I am not a-arguing with you. I'm just a-telling you—when you want a real smoke, get behind a pipeful of Tuxedo and watch all the big and little Worries that have been a-besieging you, evacuate their trenches and make a rushin' advance to the rear. Those fragrant whiffs of 'Tux' make them feel too joyful—no self-respecting Worry can stand for that.

Fuxedo

The combination of the best smoking-tobacco leaf in the world and the best method ever discovered for refining and mellowing tobacco puts Tuxedo in a class by itself.

Kentucky's rippest, mildest Burley leaf, when treated by the original Tuxedo Process' leaves every trace of bite—develops a wonderfully pleasing fragrance and flavor that are not found in any other tobacco.

No other manufacturer knows the "Tuxedo Process"; that's why no imitator ever equals Tuxedo!
