Off the Tombstone

The English sense of humor and French morals have long been noted to be inextricably intertwined. Yet in the present state of the world both have been left unaltered. The English are no longer unserious, and the French are no longer amorous. The world as a whole has become too serious.

The world has become too serious.

Many people contended that the shortage of supplies was due to appropriation of money from the Health Tax for other purposes. The administration of the college reported that this was not the case, but that the money had been earmarked for the purchase of these supplies since the beginning of the college year. The administration contended that nobody could have been in a position of misuse if they were not reported cleared up.

Supplies and a good deal of new equipment have now been ordered and will soon be on hand in the dispensary. The Collegian believes, however, that such a misunderstanding would not have occurred had money been paid annually as a dispensary fee for the preparation and care of supplies.

As far as the Collegian is concerned, the purchases were due to a series of misunderstandings which are now reported cleared up. Supplies and a good deal of new equipment have now been ordered and will soon be on hand in the dispensary. The Collegian believes, however, that such a misunderstanding would not have occurred had money been paid annually as a dispensary fee for the preparation and care of supplies.

The two misunderstandings which are now reported cleared up are:

1. The misunderstanding referred to the dispensary.

2. The misunderstanding concerned the amounts of the three items purchased.

EATING RIGHT

Two misunderstandings which are now included in the history of Kenyon college have been disclosed in the last two weeks.

The first disclosure resulted from the editorial "Dispensary Needs First Aid," which was published in the October 20 issue of the "Collegian." The second disclosure concerned the manner in which the students, faculty members, and visitors, including dormitory janitors, lived and worked during the period of the administration of the college.

The second disclosure concerned the manner in which the students, faculty members, and visitors, including dormitory janitors, lived and worked during the period of the administration of the college.

The following is an article from the magazine "What Colleges Are Doing," published at intervals by Small and Co., publishers, Deering, Mass.

"Polishing the apple is a part of producing." In these words, Professor John M. Pfeiffer, professor of public administration at the University of California at Los Angeles, cast an unusual light on the much-debated question of apple-polishing.

Professor Pfeiffer believes in getting A's in school by applying his own principles of self-education, regardless of academic standards. He holds that there are only two types of people in the world: the successful and the unsuccessful. He feels that the essential difference between the two is the lack of self-satisfaction along and up along his own plan.

The letter, which was sent from the Wisconsin Daily News.

Below is a list of conditions under which the college and the college students would enjoy the use of the college facilities.

1. The college students are now aware of the conditions under which they are licensed to use the facilities.

2. All scholarship men are now required to work at one job to be considered for the grant.

3. Appointment of the officers of the student photography club were discussed in the meeting of the college.

The meeting was held at the offices of the student photography club.

SCOTTIE
Known variously in early Scottish-history as Skye terrier, Highland, Cairn, and Scott terrier, although that dog bore no semblance to Skyes and Cairns of today. nicknamed the “die-hard” for stony heart and unquenchable love for sport. Extremely independent.

Like humans, dogs have a complicated set of nerves. But dogs are kinder to their nerves than we. They rest when they need rest... we plunge ahead with hurry and worry—straining our nerves to keep up the fast pace. We can’t turn back to the natural pace of life like an animal, but we can protect, soothe, and calm our nerves. Smoking a Camel can be your pleasant method of breaking nervous tension. Camels are mild, with the flavor of a matchless blend of costlier tobaccos. Smokers find Camel’s mild tobacco delightfully soothing—outright—towards the nerves.

EARLY RECOVERY

Hopes that Chuck May,arena's Kenyon guard, will be back in the fold for the coming Featherback battle with Wittenberg a week from Friday, are brightening, according to Coach Dwight Halbert. "I am sure the one guy who gave the final word will play if he is not in perfect shape. Chuck will be the injured lip to much improved," said Coach Halbert.

Chuck, who was injured in the first half game for the past two years been one of the outstanding men on the Lester squad. In the first three games this year he averaged 15 points a game and made all three Ohio shots before he was injured in the Hobart game. Chuck, who was unable to get up of the aid down table due to this lip trauma.
