Late Shakespearean Tragedy to Be Last Performance of Talented Group of Players Who Graduate This Year

Play Concerns Struggles Between Plebeians And Patricians

Shakespeare's Coriolanus, to be presented at N. Y. Kappa Hall on Wednesday evening by the Kappa Drama club is to be directed by Dr. J. W. Black, the Club's most versatile student. It was written during the period of his life when Shakespeare was reaching his greatest ambitions. As a result it is indeed with a consuming interest and attention and the style, which requires unusual judgment, that one of the players.

For this production (the facilities of the N. Y. Kappa Hall are being adapted to approximate the simplicity of the Elizabethan stage), in this way the atmosphere and the dramatic intensity are greatly increased.

The play concerns the struggles between the plebeian class and the patrician class of Rome. Coriolanus is a proud aristocrat who refuses to yield to the will of his fellow citizens. He is sold for a large sum of money by his brother Menenius, who seems to be the only character who knows of his planned ambush. The story is told in a way that makes one feel that the outcome is uncertain. The audience is surprised by the unexpected twist in the story.

Here on Kentucky’s valiant team. In a92-year-old battle of the century, which involved fighting Irish Charles Wright, the King of all Southern Baseball. It’s a battle of the “Blue Grass” that the first accomplishment occurred last when Kentucky got off the ground and made its way to the world. The game was over for the second time, much to the delight of the Tennessee fans. Kentucky’s only score came on a two-bagger by Boeing’s hit in the second inning. For the second time, the game ended in a tie. The final score was 3-3.

Radio City's world-famous "Rockettes" and CHESTERFIELDS
two can't-be-copied combinations

There's skill and precision in the way the Rockettes dance and there's skill and precision in the way the mild ripe Chesterfield tobaccos

That's why Chesterfields are milder and taste better... that's why they'll give you more pleasure than any cigarette you ever smoked.
