CAVENDER, KOHLER BATTLE FIERCELY: OUTSIDE ATTACK ENDS GRUDGE FIGHT

Large Crowd Sees Duel Neither Dueler Wounded

By PHINAS PREEP

The much publicized duel between Art Kohler and John Cavender came off slightly before scheduled time yesterday. A large crowd consisting of three skunks and a night crawler seemed much disappointed in the tameness of the affair, and after the skunks decided to leave things up a bit the contestants along with your scribe retired in confusion.

Up to the moment of the fire the postponement seven volleys had been fired and, though each man seemed well versed in the use of shotguns, no damage was done. (That is no damage to the contestants, the toll of live stock and poultry was heavy.) Though the rules of Count Thweet were strictly adhered to the volleys were accompanied by shouts of "Highboy Silver" and "Go for your hawg legs boys" from the referee who was from West Canton.

On the first volley Cavender narrowly escaped injury when Kohler's shot hit the tree above him_dialoging a youth in a white summer formal. His name has not been discovered because it was thought volleys were content to pepper the one in McGugan's hollow. Neither contestant had any apparent advantage though Cavender became a little more terse after a bound shot.

The clothes of the contestants which were expected to be the latest from Bond Street in sport clothes were also a disappointment. Both showed unmistakable signs of having attended church last Sunday and even the cause of the duel was a bit in doubt as neither man had a tie and both were barefoot from wading in the Kokosing.

What the ultimate result of this untimely postponement will be time only can tell, but when last seen they were standing arm in arm singing the new favorite dueling song, "Who says America at first this world" expression on their faces. It is safe to say that there will be no immediate renewal of hostilities.

Facts

There are approximately 5,280 legs in Miss America consisting of 1,760 yards, which is really remarkable in itself. There are also 2 legs in one pint, as you well know to do it well.

Did you know that there are 14,541 stop-lights in New York City? Well, there are 3,500 of these lights in New York City.

THE TIP OFF

By JIMMY THE HAT

The Casey Loma Boys had fun watching the intercollegiates at work in the Cosh. The cocktail parties around the Hill were swell—saw Norm Smith at most of them. Trigger Prosser of the dag-

Snooper Mac Fry

Mac Fry Sheriff of Gambier, seen above in one of his quieter moods, is reported to be on the march this week-end, searching out unsuspecting innocents and accusing them of fastest crimes. Clearer view of him for your own good. Not only is he an officer of the local law—but he is a veritable demon when aroused. Norman has it that he has been known to shoot young women on sight, and his haul is always crowded. Often, with himself, so be on the alert if you wish to escape this invincible minion of the law. Don't forget, he shoots to kill, and he always gets his beer!

Two National Records

Fall In Furious Week

Last week two very famous and indisputable records were broken. They were both personal records resulting from a certain indefatigable something much too seldom found in the human species. Briefly: Lou Gehrig failed to make an appearance with the Yankees for the first time in fourteen years; Dr. R. W. Ashford was incredibly but undoubtedly absent from the Coffee Shop one entire evening; and it is alleged that an early readjustment is expected in both instances.

CAUTION

Fire Drill

Do not be alarmed if you hear fire alarms above the usual evening. Fire Chief W. Blaze Buhimes is planning a short drill for the Mt. Vernon volunteer fire brigade.

WHY YES, PANGO

It is late afternoon of the third day when I hazard a peek at the world outside, and open my eyes. The whirling feeling has gone, but there's a throbbing of the temples, a stiffness of the neck which takes its place. As I cautiously hang my head over the side of the bed, and open my eyes a little Pango playing leap-frog with a quasilly looking food.

Auno, I exclaim shutting my eyes, get your little playmates out of here before I have a relapse. Okeh, says Pango casually, he's out of sight. What have you done with it, I ask suspicious of foul play. In my pocket, says Pango, Aunoo, I render again. Okeh, says Pango, I'll throw him out the window. Tired now, there it goes. Anybye Joe, he says.

Boy what a party. I say reopening my eyes, I scarcely remember what happened. Well, begins Pango more like a severe father than a personal biographer, Friday night about three-thirty you. No, I say, did I do THAT. That's just the beginning, says Pango, at five o'clock you went up to your neck in the Kokosing. Wow, I say, I don't remember that. And I continues Pango, at . . . . and at . . . . . I say, I certainly had a swell time. Boy oh boy, what a swell Aunoo. I can't move my head yet, I inform Pango. And I conclude with saying what a party, what a party, as I slip back under the covers. What a head, what a head.
