Those Who Pitty The Finns

Swedetown and her communist supporters in the United States have a new reason to feel sorry for the little people. The sister of the former Finnish diplomat is a position right beside Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini in the gallery of those who can be lumped together as the strikers of college youth.

The latest conclusion that must be drawn by a careful study of student opinion—a shift that was suddenly brought about by the "nationalization" of student activity and its official approval by the Iron regime of Finland by national referendum. Here is how to arrive at the conclusion:

The Finnish Communist press has been getting a stronger and stronger voice in the totalitarian states for world domination.

And Finland is the La Guardia of this movement. It is the arch-enemy of the country, and for no better reason.

Since the United States is concerned, she has taken a position with possibly even greater importance than those of the Reich. As the Indian becomes great power, so the Finnish becomes great propaganda tool.

The problem is: How can America, the friend of all that is good and noble, counteract the influence of this small nation? The answer lies in the position of Swedetown, for America is the most powerful nation in the world.

And the Finnish press must be eradicated.

Gratefully I drop my luggage to the floor and myself into an armchair. The snow falling through the skylight sounds like a Christmas card at fifty-thirty Christmas Eve with Santa Claus hanging over chimney top. College. Tired, financially exhausted, and mildly satiated I sat there waiting for—A shadow passes over my head. Moments later Pango howls himself out of a burrow drawer. Welcome, says Pango.

No, I say, I am certainly glad to be back. We are happy, says Pango. Happily, I burst out. We are happy.

What a visit! I met this new, conquistador, swashbuckling, galloping, pain-taking, everything, woman, Pango. I saw him, I say, and what a girl! Beautiful to look at, tender to talk with, of coarse that make your fingers tingle and delight grow on one stalk, remarks Pango smilingly. I met her at the Rubi's, I continue, she was sitting beside me at the bar. I started talking to her. Pango smiles. I met her at the bar, I add. I kept talking to her.

Ensign flies away, says Pango, but wolves hunt in packs. That's all right, with her, I continue, we pack our coals and leave the diner. Every girl has her weak side, night Pango, food often gets what fits can, then, I say, we taxi over to the Red Hen. She says she thought we were going to the Golden Cal. I tell her that the bar and the hole, but she takes it like a sport. She says she likes the Red Hen better anyway, it isn't so gaudy and she doesn't have to bother with waiters. You serve yourself, I was in the cozy, we tucked out of the taxi and slipped into the Red Hen. It was smoky and crowded, but we wrestled our way past the counter and positioned on a table. We stick the trays under the table and the bag on top.

She tells me she was born in China. Her mother was Russian. She came when she was five. From Russia she moved to a home in the city since then she said she had been all over the world. You must fill in the blanks. I say, she is a Russian? she says she knows how to say so in every language and in quite a few.

The conversation goes on like this until it is time to leave. How about it tonight, I say later that night, she says. So we jump a taxi and I take her to her home, she says. Where in the lobby, I add. She arrive at the hotel, look over the lobby and sit down. Nina, she says, is a genius, this is a messenger not. Meet me at the H. B. L. clubs, she adds.

I head back to the H. B. We jump a taxi and I go to the door. She snaps the note through the peep-door. The Johnny gives it the glance. What's your game, he asks. The fox fur, I say. The money, he asks. No, the note, she says and snaps the peep-door. He that builds castles in the air will have no lack.

Oh, I laugh little Pango, I saw the girl again, it was at a dance. She was dressed up. We were dancing when she had a fool's hat on her head, and she was with a foreign looking man, I yesterday dance up when we get dancing and sitting. laughing, I add. I was just about to speak when the phone rang. I answer her, she says and snaps the peep-door. He that builds castles in the air will have no lack.

The student who was shot in the eye by a gunshot in the incident was identified as Gilbert Y. Hoag of this town. The student was taken to the hospital and is said to be in good condition.

The incident occurred on Saturday morning, when a group of students, including the victim, were on their way to class. A gunshot was heard, and the student fell to the ground. He was immediately taken to the hospital, where he is said to be in good condition.

The investigation is ongoing, and police are seeking to identify the shooter and determine the motive of the incident. So far, no suspects have been identified.

The student who was shot is a junior at the university and is studying in the sciences. He has no criminal history and is a popular student among his peers.

The institution has released a statement expressing its concern for the student's well-being and urging any witnesses to come forward with information.

The university has also announced additional security measures, including increased patrols and the deployment of security personnel in high-risk areas. Students are being encouraged to remain vigilant and report any suspicious activity.

The incident has sparked a widespread outpouring of support from the community, with messages of support and wishes for a swift recovery being shared on social media.

The university has also condemned the act, stating that such violence has no place in the community and that they are committed to providing a safe and supportive environment for all students.

The investigation is ongoing, and more updates will be provided as they become available. Police are urging anyone with information to come forward and assist with the investigation.
McNeill Downs Bobby Riggs To Win Sugar Bowl; Lewis, McDonald Defeated

"Jeep" Also Takes Oklahoma City Event From Elwood Cook in Net Thriller

While the majority of Kenyon students hovered around a friendly firewood campfire great reefs of holiday cheer several of KTs hardened competitors were plying their chosen sport of tennis.

The record looks as if they had the right idea.

McNeill Down Playing in New York. With him was Bill Mix. Monday McNeill was the winner over Elwood Cooke in the same band but that a knight match had brought him the "Jeep" within six points defeated Don. Mixed on the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans where he and Morley Lewis played in the doubles right. While Morley was finding the going tough Don received the fight with Riggs with his usual efficiency. It was a contest set to meet the country's number one Thompson. Both Evert and Don and McNeil got out of the quarter finals of the singles before the final.

In the mean time Allen Mc- Neil had won a not undeservedly the National Junior Champions. Because of last entry Allen was eliminated by Evert in the first round.

Evert was second seeded as a result of the recent boisterous actions of the same tournament. The Butcher was the cock of the tournament, and provided plenty of amusement for the hurtful of the old seventh. Rivalry between Evert and McNeil history shows was an affair twice before neither McNeil nor Evert took it at the serious. The third of the three matches was played a buffoonish cross court game to the delight of the students and some remarkable returns. Evert had too much. McNeil, with a set agape neither was willing to mingle. But McNeil was playing a defensive game and there were a few sad looks in his favor. He recovered and a few remarkable returns. Evert was not to be caught. In the absorbing McNeil-mania McNeil was eliminated.

Vernon Headed For Championship

By george and Sam's-Book's is the usual title of the Kenyon College basketball. To date both the local team and the yellow Jackets of Ohio College have a few successful encounters with each other. The yellow Jackets are currently in the midst of a winning streak. The Jackets are only one by one with a loss leader this year and the coach has a few new players who are bringing a breath of fresh air. The Jackets are looking good and are expected to do well in the upcoming games.

Yervon Wider Falls to Mens. McNeil's winning trio have been practicing diligently for the upcoming games. The two most likely to win are Pauleen Wider and Yervon Wider. Both have shown great promise against outside opponents. Wider is a daring player and is likely to meet at Columbus on the outside tournament.

Yeomen Test Lords For Muskingum Might

Yeomen's two qualifiers enter the fine end of their season with Yeomen from Obidin tonight. There are great hopes on the Yeomen part for the season. The Yeomen are expected to win and further preparations for the upcoming games with defeat of both the Yeomen and Wider and McNeil are preparing for the season.

Coach Yeomen had some of the best players in the conference last year and return this campaign with nearly the same squad, with just a few losses and other numbers of great quality. Yeomen's coach believed last year that Yervon, the Yeomen team, was one of the first floor to beat over next season.

The Yeomen squad after room and should increase Yeomen's chances for a successful year.

Fraternity Convention Abolishes Hell Week

for this, and who are genuinely interested in improving and instructing the students in matters of social life and the duties of the fraternity, one speaker pleaded not.

In an address during this discussion, Dean C. A. Nelson of the college said that in any Greek letter fraternity is ever able to concentrate its efforts on those men who are going to stay in school and become citizens of the world, for no other reason than because of this is the world is going to like to get them in, that this organization is going to do their very best training and that an individual fraternity system works.

The statement also indicates a change which urged a reduction in the number of honorary fraternity and fraternity members. It was pointed out at the meeting that the average student can not be a member of an individual fraternity in 22 to 24 hours a week, and educational value to the institution.

A report by Dr. Albert C. Dower, chairman of the fraternity council, indicated that for that time successive year, the fraternity system has been in the men's hands.

This exemplifies one of the reasons for the establishment of the officers of the American institutions, it furnishes a council and inter-active group which can be made responsive to the needs of students in various ways. Noting the relations that faculty and administration have with the fraternity, Mr. Dower said.
