Spring Vacation Herolded By Arrival Of Robins

By arms ajar Kenyon breathed into its collective nostrils—those nostrils, which were not stomachs. It was a process of exhalation and absorbed through the vestibule snow to Palm Sunday (not a feat of prestidigitation).

SUNDAY EVENSONG Well Received

Choir Presents Chanted Service

Last Sunday afternoon a number of students and faculty had the pleasure of hearing the choral performances of the major choral groups of the University. The groups were composed of students and faculty under the direction of Virgil P. Ruhim, assistant professor of music. In these performances the Omaha Symphony Orchestra, the University Men's Glee Club, and the Women's Glee Club were heard in their entirety. The programs included works by Verdi, Faure, Grieg, and Dvorak.

Douglas House Near Tragedy Neatly Averted

A tragedy which would have reduced the number of all Kenyon males is averted. Douglas House, home of the University Debating Association, was in immediate danger of a fire. After a catastrophic blaze, McClure closed the auditorium. The Association had just finished a practice session when the fire broke out. The house was saved by the quick action of the people who were present. The fire was under control within two hours.

White Offers Possibilities For Spring War In East

Imperialism Is Chief Threat To Balkan and Turkish Peace

Dr. Wilbur W. White, Dean of the Faculty and Associate Professor of Political Science at the University of Western Reserve, at a speech in March 1940 at the Whitehouse, also spoke of the threat of war in the Balkans and Turkey.

Deaver's talks with the Chinese and the Soviet Union are in the nature of a prewar conference. Deaver's talks are the prelude to a more extensive conference in the East. He plans to visit China, the Soviet Union, and Turkey in the near future.

Kenyon Debaters Featured In Speaker Article

Dr. Black, Speakers Presented Pictorially

Kenyon debater was featured in the "Speaker," a national magazine of P. F. K. The "Speaker" carried pictures of the debaters, including Dr. Black, and McNees.

The indication to the activities of the Speaker.

In Africa, Imperialism was increasing. In the Near East, the British were fighting a bitter war against the Italians and the French. But these were the only areas of conflict at that time. There were, however, tensions in other parts of the world, such as the Middle East, where the British and the French were facing each other.

Dr. White continued in making the point that there has been a conflict between Nationalism and Imperialism. The only way to resolve this conflict is to let the governments of the world have their way. Dr. White also noted that the view that the British and the French were fighting each other is not accurate. The view is still being argued by many people.

Here we are at forty-three in the morning sitting on the floor with our backs to the wall. The dears of last night’s meeting have all gone around to the other side. Well, says Pango after a time, how do you feel? I feel like talking about something vital. That takes in a lot of subjects. Incidentally, I want to talk about war. I suggest, that men’s talk. Let’s forget about the war, please. Forget about it and let’s talk about power. All right, we’ll talk about Hitler. No, says Pango, let’s forget Hitler. Let’s have a white talk, and talk about us. I see, I can’t get anywhere with you this morning. That’s right, you say. We’ll get some sense, Mussolini, Hitler, and Roosevelt rolled into one.

I listen, you can’t oppose what makes and what makes what operates is the important thing. Take this case, President E. was a popular man, and the same thing once in 1936. He got his brain troublers, his paper troublers, people who never had any practical experience before. All of them had good ideas, but none of them knew how to put them into operation practically. Take Wallace’s AAA program which was designed to put the 1936 farm laws into operation practically. The government has stored large amounts of foodstuffs to make a large amount of foodstuffs available. To keep prices high. Artificially high farm prices, and a controlled security of foodstuffs.

Anyway, says Pango, that’s not exactly what I started to tell you. I came to tell you that when all those plans were formulated, President E. shoved them over to Congress and sent a protest. President E. controlled Congress as if they were a crown of jewels. Every single one, business men who were in favor of a code of conduct and industry and in favor of keeping the market. They thought that they would draw up the code themselves. That was the Administration’s idea. The first thing, for instance, was to declare a code, a government. The second thing, for instance, was to hire a sweeper to buy a code, and not tell them what the code was. Roosevelt told them that was the code. That was the beginning. The result was that the AAA was done away with, only after a great deal of argument. He tried to pass the Supreme Court. That failed. But he was still the leading man, and he could be that all five agreed with him on policy.

This is the Administration that was constituted previously, and how one branch has been able to hold both other branches. The AAA, the SEI, the NRL, the WEI, the foreign policy, the domestic policy, and all the extreme agencies are all part of a control policy.

Well, Pango adds, that’s why I included The Great Railroad Strike, along with the two other great events of this age.

Although as yet it hasn’t been officially announced that this year’s spring offering is in the offing, however, if it snows before we go to press, we won’t be surprised. We can envision the tender green shoots, at first cautiously, then boldly, making their way into the warm spring sun . . . but we digress. First comes a rather dusty bit from the Pages staff.

Kenyon Review No. 5: But Clinton, former President of the College’s Chapter of Psi Upsilon, another active member of the most effective political machines ever developed in this country, he knows where a good many diverse parties and would give a creditable account of himself in the presidential campaign, of course. His political capacity and his almost unanswerable ability in dividing popular tracts. It is doubtful, however, that a man of his impressively political acumen would care to suffer the fate of Alfred E. Smith.

The University of Texas Daily Texan predicts that President Roosevelt could not win the nomination or the election should "General Jim" desert him. "A fair walkout with Jim, to-day, and the three other men who have a tremendous personal following—a strong and genial personality, he makes the right combination of the most effective political machines ever developed in this country, he knows where a good many diverse parties and would give a creditable account of himself in the presidential campaign, of course. His political capacity and his almost unanswerable ability in dividing popular tracts. It is doubtful, however, that a man of his impressively political acumen would care to suffer the fate of Alfred E. Smith."

Several of the college newspapers are thumping for Cornell Hull as the next candidate. The editor of the Ohio College, for example, says: "The general public understands that Cornell Hull is a brilliant debater as well as a public debater but is not accustomed to vote for men. As capable as Cornell Hull has been in his political career, making few enemies in the years since 1920 when he first entered Congress, his age alone is enough to keep him from getting the democratic nomination for the presidency. A second barrier to the nomination of Hull is his relationship to Roosevelt in the party. Were Roosevelt to announce his intentions of running for a third term, even the slim chance that Hull now has to get the nomination would fade.

So, while P. D. R. is still favored by collegians in sample polls, there is still much talk about other candidates. Only one political development can bring an indication of dissension of Democratic collegians—A.P.P.

Kenyon Trackmen Ignor Nasty Spring Weather

Snow Plow Used To Open Track For Early Practice

Winter snow and ice again descended on Beaver Road and causing the cancellation of this season's track. Ask the Kenyon track men who is coaching this year's edition of the Kenyon track team.

It's a hard thing to grasp that practice could be held in February, and yet the team is already preparing for its first meet. The track season is already well underway and the early season radiation weather few men could have imagined would set the stage for the Kenyon track men: the rain and the cold. The only comfort that can be given to this season's track men is that their rivals are in the same boat.

Golfers Limber Up On Kenyon Campus

"If you want to play golf, you've got to do it," said R. J. Kutler announcing this morning that there would be a four hour practice and seven trips during the coming campaign.

Coach Kutler will probably be the best man in the world, he said with a smile. John Allen and Dick Brown will be quite a team to watch.布局 the purple boards.

Seven Meet Schedule Faces Track Team

Fenn College Is First Opponent

A seven-meet schedule has been arranged for the first Kenyon track team and will be highlighted by Conference competition. The seven opponents include the Caliphs, the Kettering Cobras, the Mount Union, the Snowbirds, the Mt. Wittenberg Tigers, the Cones and the Otters. Members of the squad have been working hard the past weeks but miserable weather conditions have greatly cut down practice time. However, immediately after vocation, the squad will assemble into strength work and is in position for the first meet which will be held on the field in the oil-filled stadium.
