The Kent Student looks at the student body and the activities taking place around campus and the many different types of people who make up the student body. The student body is a diverse group of people who come from all over the United States and the world).

Did anyone ever stop to think how helpful the Lees could be to the city of Kent? The city of Kent is full of help and would love to have any help that could be offered. There are many volunteers that would be happy to help.

Our Policy

It is unfortunate that the editorial policy of a newspaper is one that is not widely understood by the people who subscribe to the newspaper. The Lees are just one of the many newspapers that often times seem to be too true to the COLLEGIAN in which the editorials express his own personal opinions. The Lees also report news on current events and sometimes events that seem to be interesting or important. The LEES do not make the decisions for the College and we cannot be held responsible for any decisions made by the College. It is important to keep in mind that the Lees are not owned by the College.

on both sides, and we are all in very enjoyable teams. We are very pleased to hear that the Lees have been very honestly presented in editorials and letters both pro and con this week.

In several instances these conclusions have been reached after considerable investigation. The Lees have included some interesting and profitable conclusions in all their editorial comments and in friendly gatherings which have been very profitable to all readers.

We are convinced that the honest presentation of opinion and the defense of the right to express that opinion, whether we agree with it or not, is a fundamental principle of a free democracy. After all, we come to Kent College to ask questions, to research, to express opinions, and have the right to do so. We have the right to think what we like and to be accepted as such. In the past our differences in opinion have been expressed, sometimes unnecessarily, perhaps, but we have tried to understand the other side's point of view and to point out our disagreements. In all such instances we have tried to understand the other side's position. Consequently, we feel that we have profited by these discussions, and hope that they will continue in the future.

Letters to the Editor

I appreciate your treatment as concealing my name. Everyone else is on a "roll," but you must imagine that I want to make sure that I can't be traced. The only thing I can think of is that you may have a few more friends than I thought you had. Please be sure to continue with this.*

Rice To Bear Brunt of Collegian Criticism

The literary revolution which has regulated Kenyon College news bowed out one of its last remnants of conservatism when Prof. Philip Blair Rice was appointed faculty adviser of the Collegian. Prof. Rice, whose faculties include such an opposition as the German language and history, has already gained for his advanced views. Nothing whatever is expected to maintain the quiet unassuming spirit of the little literary paper as in its former capacity, but some expect a Collegian more alive to the realities of today and more willing to stand for the working principles on which it has been hallowed than can be provincial in one of the classics.

The Collegian will not endeavor to compete with the Kenyon, but will continue to represent the entire College.

Arrival of New Plane Ends Fliers' Waiting

The long-awaited Kenyon training plane arrived last week in an Aeroplane, a sixty-day training plane equipped with six-wheel control and a forty-five-minute engine. The plane is the second of its kind to arrive in the College, and is expected to be available to the students this spring. It has a special feature in that it is equipped with a control panel, and is capable of handling a student with a license to fly. The plane is a valuable addition to the College and will greatly improve the flying facilities available to the students.
