MUSICAL STERILITY

In view of the recent activity in the field of music on the college campus, it is inevitable that the entire question of music at Kenyon would be brought up for consideration. Several factors, both within and without the College, have paved the way for this discussion and have put the music situation in its present state. The interest shown by students in music has increased in general, and finally, some suggestion of remission of the term "musical sterility" at Kenyon.

There are at present several sources of music which are available to students. Among those interested in active participation, there are various choirs and clubs for contact with music. There is also the presence of a few music instructors who teach in the College. The problem of the musical situation is, however, not so much a problem of availability as it is one of quality. The music that is available to students is not always the best, and the opportunity for students to participate in music is limited.

The Athletic Department requests that the spectators not exceed eight persons sitting or standing during the basketball game. The playing conditions at both ends of the small side of the hall are too much overpopulated with the same increase of the small side of the hall is usually overheated. The added moments to a smoking atmosphere makes this more difficult for the players to perform to the best of their ability. In order to realize that most of the smoking has been thoughtfully and uses are made to the inconvenience it causes, cooperation on the part of the students may be expected in the future.

Fencers Lose To Oberlin-13

An inexperienced, nervous, and hopeful Kenyon fencing team jourested to Oberlin last Saturday afternoon, February 15, and returned loser 14-3 in a very hard fought, and close, though the score being, fitting meet. The meet was between Mr. Michael L. Dober, a director and representing the League of American and former captain of Farmer's fencing club.

Hard luck dogged Wedder's men as they dropped seven of the seventeen points by the margin of one point. Shale Hall was out standing for the Lords in winning one out and one out of two matches, while McMurtry and Storm were the only fencers counted for the other winning win.
