The Heat was tapped. I lead a dog's life, anyway, it's guilt by association, that's what it is. Just because I like my food in three flavors, this fellow Stugatz comes along and makes unfounded accusations I did my bit for the K-9 Corps during the war, but lately business has been terrible. Drat it, that ain't money. But Senator Stugatz, when informed of their intention, said something about a "bureaucratic煤炭", and that's straight from the horse's mouth. We've been "led a cat's life" and "the heat was tapped." I lead a dog's life, anyway, it's guilt by association, that's what it is. The Daughters of the American Counter-Revolution, while not disapproving of the sale of "Hoppalong Chastity" belts, did object strongly to literature (HIKA in a plain, unmarked wrapper) accompanying the merchandise, and threatened to prosecute under the provisions of the First Amendment. While the opportunity was at hand, they insisted upon going on record as against colored TV.

MOSCOW! He threatened personal investigation of Kenyon College, and hinted that his search would include the Library and the International Relations Club. He was suspicious of the debate team as well, declaring that "HONEST and LOYAL citizens don't need tricky arguments and DOUBLE-TALKING discusssions to be AMERICAN!" Undoubtedly, McYohe concluded, this corruption has its focal point at WKCG. "I'm sure," he said, "that there is a short wave radio set in that building!"

A rather large, unwholesome woman inquired hopefully about the possibility of the Pure Food and Drug Commission's conducting an investigation into the products of the program's sponsor, but seemed quite disturbed when told that the Commission would undoubtedly investigate the whole Food and Drug situation at Kenyon very thoroughly.

The sponsors, makers of ALCOHOL, were unavailable, but people connected with the show were confident: "Y'awl stick with ALCOHOL. they shouted, Hand ALCOHOL will stick with yew!" Furthermore, they maintained that ALCOHOL had always tried to maintain Kenyon traditions, and vice versa.

Col. Robert R. McYohe, noted historian, outspoken American patriot, and newspaper publisher, charged the perpetrators of the Bird Show with personal slander, MacArthur, the Ivy Club, and the Aqua Velva Club. Knarf modestly predicted failure of the suits, "At any rate," he said, "Old Birds never in the TWO-FACED hands of die; they just fly away."

The "Everybody Loves that Hadacol" balladeer appears ready to confirm his hit wax streak with another big item, this one the story of the confused lad who couldn't stand to be in an enclosure, and just laid down and died, but whose spirit took the form of an accordion and brought him immortality. Here is a song so BIG it can't die — it can only fade away, after making its share of nickles.

GEORGE ALLIEGRO

George "Raunch" Alliegro, noted Malvene, N.Y., public citizen and meat packer was found dead in his leopard-skin upholstered mahogany convertible last night. The car was found at a dead-end in a nearby Mt. Vernon cemetery. Footprints were discovered upside down on the dashboard and police authorities suspect foul play.

Alliegro was known as a faithful showman and a hardworking partyman, and was well-beloved by his associates. In the meat packing business he built up a nationwide reputation, and developed a small independent concern into the largest in its field of operation.

Services will be held tomorrow night at 4 p.m. Flowers have poured in from every state in the Union since Alliegro's death last night.

It is expected that the Alliegro business will continue to grow and expand under the wise tutelage of the deceased's many friends.
