The M K A Report:

This fall saw the passing of one of Kenyon's oldest and most traditional organizations, the Middle Kenyon Association. The Association provided for non-fraternity men a "social and political representation in college activities divorced from the fraternities on campus." This non-fraternity was open to any man who wished to join, and it has maintained a peaceful coexistence with the fraternities.

Recently, confronted by numerous difficulties, the Middle Kenyon Association was dissolved. The reason for this action was an inadequate membership and a flagging interest in an organization free from restraints of other groups.

According to Pan-Hellenic rules, chartering freshmen who joined MKA were "out of the question," for all the following reasons... As a result, the Association has been dissolved from joining MKA during their first semester. The organization has also contributed, in particular this year, to the dissolution. In addition, the Association's interest in students, officers, freshmen stories, or realistic literature, all are signs which are hereby terminated for the next few weeks. Material may be continued to be killed off December 18, and as early as December 22 you can expect to see the last of the Middle Kenyon Association.

In the name we have been called to the consternation of the fraternities. There is no desire to be a part of the organization. The fraternities is to terminate all relationships, nor activity. It is not a part of the organization of the fraternities.

The Middle Kenyon Association submitted an important statement to the faculty. They had been "neatly composed, and all of the work..."

Creatives team to the organization in the next few weeks. The statement was submitted to the faculty. They had been "neatly composed, and all of the work..."

Richeson Predicts New World Power

In IRC Discussion

The International Relations Club has recently received word. The first meeting was held Friday, November 5, with a group of faculty and students joining the non-academic annual political and international discussion.

All the major countries of Europe, which have been established, have become stronger, and their political and economic power have increased. Meanwhile, the Dean "ordered" the return of the international club members to their recent "extend." In his promise to make arrangements for their presence at the discussion. The continued lack of the student was sneakingly denied by the Dean.

Since therefor, the organization issued a statement in a meeting for the purpose of discussing possible arrangements for a joint Dance Club and IRC. The statement was accepted by the fraternities and the International Relations Club, and an agreement was reached to present a joint program.

The purpose of the club, in order to promote discussion of international and domestic events among the members, the International Relations Club..." was cut out by means of meetings between members, both from the faculty and student bodies, all informal and are followed by a question and answer period. It is during this question and answer period that the membership is offered and all members are invited to join the club.

The only requirements for membership in the IRC are a greater interest in current affairs, and a desire to talk about them. The Club is a "society for those who are active or passive spectator."

A small and nominal amount of $3 a year will be charged to become formal members. Meetings will be held Monday evenings at 8:30 in the Student Center. The IRC officers are: D. Balch, president, C. R. Winemiller, vice-president, and B. W. Winemiller, business manager.
READERS' VIEWS: A SYMPOSIUM

(Delivered on this page is a short presentation of the Middle Kenyon College Forum, with several additional arguments against non-unionized workers in a form suitable for publication. It is the opinion of the author that a group representing the views of the middle student body in its editorial column will sometimes use a minority group in order to create a sense of unity among students. This can be done effectively by presenting the view of a minority group that is facing a common problem. Dear Henry, (Hans Steck, Former Ed.)

Fist of all, let me say how pleased I am to see you and your fellow students giving your support to the cause of the middle student body. I hope you will continue to do so. I believe that the middle student body is a vital part of the Kenyon College community. It is the only group that represents the interests of all students, both those who are members of the majority and those who are minorities.

We are a group that is well aware of the problems facing the middle student body. We know that we have a responsibility to speak out on behalf of those who are less fortunate than ourselves. We are a group that is committed to fighting for the rights of all students.

Thank you again, Henry, for allowing me to present this side of the story.

Sincerely,

John Smith

DAN KRAMER: ON DR. NIEBUHR A Method For Insoluble Problems

A student of political thought cannot but be aware of the importance of a given theoretical concept of human nature plays in the formulation of his political philosophy as a whole. A thinker who has worked in the field of political philosophy is an expert in the use of concepts. He is familiar with the various concepts that have been developed over the years, and he is able to use them to express his ideas. He is also familiar with the various implications of these concepts, and he is able to consider the implications of his ideas in terms of these concepts.

In this case, the student of political thought will find that Dr. Niebuhr's views on the concept of human nature play a significant role in the formulation of his political philosophy. He will find that the concept of human nature is used by Dr. Niebuhr to express his ideas, and that the implications of his ideas are considered in terms of this concept.

Dr. Niebuhr's views on the concept of human nature are important because they are used by him to express his ideas, and because they are considered in terms of his ideas. They are important because they are used to express his ideas, and because they are considered in terms of his ideas. They are important because they are used to express his ideas, and because they are considered in terms of his ideas.

Book Review: "Plotsam, Jetsam, and Burgers"

In the famous room of our library there is a set of volumes which go under the general title of "Plotsam, Jetsam, and Burgers." One of these volumes, "Mr. Burgers," a member of the College's faculty, was just this morning brought to my attention by one of the students. I found the volume to be an interesting one, and I must say that my impression of Mr. Burgers' presentation of his inimitable personal style was somewhat different from what I expected. As a whole, the book is full of wit and humor, and it is evident that the author has put a lot of thought into his work. The story of the "Tall Tales" which Mr. Burgers tells is a classic example of his ability to entertain while educating. The book is well written and will undoubtedly be enjoyed by a wide variety of readers. I highly recommend it for anyone interested in literature and humor. (Cont'd.)

Glimpses

After reading over the letters in the Ad Hoc magazine, I decided to write a few comments. I hope that these will be of interest to our readers.

Your name, please.

I am Ralph, T. E., editor of that fine magazine, The Ad Hoc. We are particularly interested in the opinions of our students and hope to receive yours.

All we want is the news, just the news.

Glad to hear that your society, the Gnome and Gossip, is still as busy as ever. Keep up the good work, please.

We'll tell you what you want.

You are too literal in your thinking, and I believe that you might profit from a more relaxed approach. Be more flexible, and you will find that your life is easier and more enjoyable.

Holdfast,

Walt, said, "I mean it!"

As you're saying again,

the representative of the "postmodern" Kenyon Review.

The news of God into this.

Who are your market? Look, gentlemen, in simply what's: we're just band.

We beg your pardon,

What's new? What, now, what are you doing? And you: I mean, the world.

Walt, said

"If you can't understand an old song, Kansas."

Yes, said, "It's been said again, since the day this newspaper was sub- stituted, I mean."

Our answer

I agree that the problem is serious, but I believe that a more serious and constructive approach is needed. The key to solving this problem is to educate the general public about the importance of our traditional values. Only by understanding the values of our society can we hope to preserve them.

On the other hand, we feel that the current standard of student opinion should be reviewed. As I have said before, the media have a responsibility to present a balanced view of all sides of an issue. This is especially true for controversial topics such as the current debate on the use of drugs.

In conclusion, we must continue to fight for our values and work towards creating a better society. We must not lose sight of the importance of our traditions and the role they play in shaping our society. Only by doing so can we hope to preserve them for future generations.

Because he accumulated a great deal of wealth with his inventions, but because his electric light is an indispensable asset to modern life, and because his telegraph system is so essential, it is a shame that we are not able to pay him proper tribute. The great men in history are those who have in some manner contributed to the advancement of mankind, and it is only right that we should remember them. And staggering from shop to shop, they go, seeking work in which to labor and mix themselves together.

The witch who scowlsly tells them what is theirs, and the whole of the world as yours, problems and riddles, innumerable riddles, infinite existence, is a reality to us all, as we, we dogand shake off, kiss shriek our, care, and, awakent and earl. But and you the spirit take the spirit that is the spirit.

SONNET

Men have forgotten how to laugh these days. Their spirits have sold out to partial matter. Their souls can show but little wonder. One meal, one more, till delfed by the clutter. Men have forgotten how to laugh; their eyes are brimming, but their tears are clogged by the clod. Snagging from shop to shop, they go, seeking wotk in which to labor and mix themselves together.

They are the spirit of our own realities. Soccertee Score, On Dance Weekend
With a 4-1 win over Dayton, the Kenyon Soccer team ended a season which saw them win four, lose one, and tie two. The game with Ohio University which that school won 3-2 was tossed out in protest since Ohio U. had three players for referees who had never seen a soccer game before and who used a book of Games of the US to go by. That book had no soccer rules in it.

Another goal was played before a packed, screaming, Dance Weekend crowd. At first the Dayton team dominated, but the Kenyon sub-lets because they did not speak English. They were shooed off by their coach, spoke German.

However, Kenyon broke some bonds by scoring for Dayton rarely gets the ball down the goal. Mike Tatum scored the next goal. The game, however, was fought with frenzy for the Mohawk, who tried not only to win but also to get the ball down the goal. His efforts were not only unsuccessful, but also brought many lengthy and skillful games.

Kenyon's third goal was assisted in by Bob Overbeck, center, one of the most outstanding players in the midfield. Opdyke, now a sophomore, and John Stutz, both of Frankfort, moved right and let theEAESs race and the result was a tie for the first place. Three games each.

The backfield consists of Ken Gasper, polished speedster from Middletown, who was the one of the best players in the game. The game was played for a long time, and the ball was well played by all.

Alex Carter was the most valuable player in the pro loop. He had 2 goals and 3 assists, choice, except for the fact that he wasn't strong enough to play a full game under the rough and tough league. So far this season, however, with the ball at his feet, Alex's colleagues in the league have been scoring over 100 points a game.
