DEBATE EXPANDS
Speaking before an audience of eager students from across the region at the iconic Kenyon Debate Society, the debate team announced their plans for the upcoming season. The team plans to expand their scope, focusing on critical issues that will not only debate on an intercollegiate level, but also on the "intra-collegiate" level that is, among the members. The aspiration is to reach the national level, which will enable students to grow and expand their horizons.

SCUDDER SKIES
Snow's FROSH

For the past week the newcomers to the Kenyon campus have undergone a Freshman Orientation Program, designed to acquaint the students with the "Ernie" life at Kenyon.

The week began on Monday night with the opening of the Freshman Orientation Program, held in the Phi Beta Kappa Room. The opening ceremony was attended by all members of the freshman class, including the four new student council presidents, all ten student council presidents, and the head of the student council. The program included a presentation by the freshman class president, welcoming the students to the Kenyon community and outlining the expectations for the upcoming year. The keynote speaker was a representative from the college administration, emphasizing the importance of academic and extracurricular involvement, as well as the role of the student body in shaping the campus culture.

On Tuesday evening, the freshman class gathered in the campus center for a social event, where they had the opportunity to meet and interact with upperclassmen and faculty members. The event was followed by a campus tour, which allowed the freshmen to familiarize themselves with the campus facilities and resources.

On Wednesday, the freshmen attended a panel discussion on academic and social issues, where they were given the opportunity to ask questions and share their concerns with the academic dean and other key administrators. The panel also included representatives from the student government, the counseling center, and the career development office.

On Thursday, the freshmen participated in a volunteer service project, working alongside upperclassmen to contribute to the local community. The project involved cleaning up a nearby park and planting trees, which also served as a team-building activity for the freshman class.

The last day of the orientation program was reserved for a farewell event, where the freshmen received their official Kenyon College identification cards and were welcomed into the Kenyon community. The event also included a performance by the Kenyon College choir, providing a festive and memorable conclusion to the orientation program.

The Kenyon College freshman orientation program is designed to help new students transition seamlessly into college life, providing them with the necessary resources and support to succeed academically and personally. The orientation includes a variety of activities, such as social events, academic workshops, and service projects, which aim to foster a sense of belonging and community among the freshmen. The program also offers opportunities for freshmen to engage with the campus culture, meet upperclassmen and faculty members, and familiarize themselves with the campus facilities and resources.

The orientation program is an integral part of the Kenyon College experience, providing a foundation for academic and social success. The college administration and student government work together to ensure that the freshmen have a smooth transition into college life and feel welcomed and supported from the very beginning. The orientation program sets the tone for the rest of the academic year and beyond, fostering a sense of community and belonging among the students.

For more information about the freshman orientation program at Kenyon College, please visit the college website or contact the student affairs office.
Dear Editor

I looked up at a funny lady today and to my great astonishment he actually spoke. He pulled himself up to his complete seven-four and coldly and matter of fact mumbled something about someone called Penrod.

Two days ago I saw at a distance a fuzzy who was short enough to be taken for a girl. She was standing in the lobby early in the morning and the light was bad. I saw her, as I was walking down middle path in a herd of others. I tried to catch up to him, but when I was near him he was in the library. It was not a situation that bothers me. It is bow ever I can do anything to improve the size of the freshman class is that sometimes this thing seems to be so highly censored - for some reason. It's interesting to see why Holden doesn't want to make friends with any of the other students or even think about them, however, he does not worry to grow. It is something that is forced upon him, as they are made out to be the heroes of life's story.

It is interesting to see on what makes Holden be in such a dilemma. But because he is in such a dilemma, it is quite a hard task to comprehend the sweet innocence of it, and still be enough involved to see the truth and beauty in a little girl's always "having to meet a friend." It's interesting to see why Holden doesn't want to make friends with any of the other students or even think about them, however, he does not worry to grow. It is something that is forced upon him, as they are made out to be the heroes of life's story.

It is interesting to see why Holden doesn't want to make friends with any of the other students or even think about them, however, he does not worry to grow. It is something that is forced upon him, as they are made out to be the heroes of life's story. But because he is in such a dilemma, it is quite a hard task to comprehend the sweet innocence of it, and still be enough involved to see the truth and beauty in a little girl's always "having to meet a friend."
We have received very little in the way of college newspapers as of yet, therefore it makes it necessary to have a rather short column on this issue. In the future, this column will convey news and commentary on happenings at other schools. These will include most of the Ivy League colleges, plus many other Eastern and some Southern, Mid-western, and Western universities.

For this column we were able to dig up what we think is a rather interesting article, which we are reprinting in its entirety, from Freestyle, the Newspaper of the International Preparatory Committee for the World Festival of Youth from London, England, which was published last summer in Warsaw. The piece is entitled "Never Again the A-Book!"

"August 6th! Anniversary of that fateful day in 1945 when a stunned world learned of the first atomic explosion. During the Festival it will be marked by a meeting with the young people of Japan. Mass choirs will sing in different languages under the direction of the leader of the "Singing Voices of Japan," the powerful movement whose songs are on the lips of millions of Japanese, young and old alike.

One of the songs you will hear is "Never Again the A-Book," the most popular in Japan today. Why?—because it sings of the greatest single dishonor of the Japanese people and their will to achieve it. It recalls the tragedies of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, filling all with the realization that such a thing can happen.

But you don’t need to ‘listen’—you can sing it too, and join in the swelling chorus of youth that says for all the world to hear, "Never Again the A-Book!"

Original text and arrangement by Koichi Kikuchi

Renting a pair of monogrammed phosphorescent-you guessed in or book mart) called

A Bantam Book was done on the college campuses. In the direction of modern writing using

For this column we were able to dig up what we think is a rather interesting article, which we are reprinting in its entirety, from Freestyle, the Newspaper of the International Preparatory Committee for the World Festival of Youth from London, England, which was published last summer in Warsaw. The piece is entitled "Never Again the A-Book!"

"August 6th! Anniversary of that fateful day in 1945 when a stunned world learned of the first atomic explosion. During the Festival it will be marked by a meeting with the young people of Japan. Mass choirs will sing in different languages under the direction of the leader of the "Singing Voices of Japan," the powerful movement whose songs are on the lips of millions of Japanese, young and old alike.

One of the songs you will hear is "Never Again the A-Book," the most popular in Japan today. Why?—because it sings of the greatest single dishonor of the Japanese people and their will to achieve it. It recalls the tragedies of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, filling all with the realization that such a thing can happen.

But you don’t need to ‘listen’—you can sing it too, and join in the swelling chorus of youth that says for all the world to hear, "Never Again the A-Book!"

Original text and arrangement by Koichi Kikuchi

Renting a pair of monogrammed phosphorescent-you guessed in or book mart) called

A Bantam Book was done on the college campuses. In the direction of modern writing using

For this column we were able to dig up what we think is a rather interesting article, which we are reprinting in its entirety, from Freestyle, the Newspaper of the International Preparatory Committee for the World Festival of Youth from London, England, which was published last summer in Warsaw. The piece is entitled "Never Again the A-Book!"

"August 6th! Anniversary of that fateful day in 1945 when a stunned world learned of the first atomic explosion. During the Festival it will be marked by a meeting with the young people of Japan. Mass choirs will sing in different languages under the direction of the leader of the "Singing Voices of Japan," the powerful movement whose songs are on the lips of millions of Japanese, young and old alike.

One of the songs you will hear is "Never Again the A-Book," the most popular in Japan today. Why?—because it sings of the greatest single dishonor of the Japanese people and their will to achieve it. It recalls the tragedies of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, filling all with the realization that such a thing can happen.

But you don’t need to ‘listen’—you can sing it too, and join in the swelling chorus of youth that says for all the world to hear, "Never Again the A-Book!"

Original text and arrangement by Koichi Kikuchi

Renting a pair of monogrammed phosphorescent-you guessed in or book mart) called

A Bantam Book was done on the college campuses. In the direction of modern writing using

For this column we were able to dig up what we think is a rather interesting article, which we are reprinting in its entirety, from Freestyle, the Newspaper of the International Preparatory Committee for the World Festival of Youth from London, England, which was published last summer in Warsaw. The piece is entitled "Never Again the A-Book!"

"August 6th! Anniversary of that fateful day in 1945 when a stunned world learned of the first atomic explosion. During the Festival it will be marked by a meeting with the young people of Japan. Mass choirs will sing in different languages under the direction of the leader of the "Singing Voices of Japan," the powerful movement whose songs are on the lips of millions of Japanese, young and old alike.

One of the songs you will hear is "Never Again the A-Book," the most popular in Japan today. Why?—because it sings of the greatest single dishonor of the Japanese people and their will to achieve it. It recalls the tragedies of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, filling all with the realization that such a thing can happen.

But you don’t need to ‘listen’—you can sing it too, and join in the swelling chorus of youth that says for all the world to hear, "Never Again the A-Book!"

Original text and arrangement by Koichi Kikuchi

Renting a pair of monogrammed phosphorescent-you guessed in or book mart) called

A Bantam Book was done on the college campuses. In the direction of modern writing using

For this column we were able to dig up what we think is a rather interesting article, which we are reprinting in its entirety, from Freestyle, the Newspaper of the International Preparatory Committee for the World Festival of Youth from London, England, which was published last summer in Warsaw. The piece is entitled "Never Again the A-Book!"

"August 6th! Anniversary of that fateful day in 1945 when a stunned world learned of the first atomic explosion. During the Festival it will be marked by a meeting with the young people of Japan. Mass choirs will sing in different languages under the direction of the leader of the "Singing Voices of Japan," the powerful movement whose songs are on the lips of millions of Japanese, young and old alike.

One of the songs you will hear is "Never Again the A-Book," the most popular in Japan today. Why?—because it sings of the greatest single dishonor of the Japanese people and their will to achieve it. It recalls the tragedies of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, filling all with the realization that such a thing can happen.

But you don’t need to ‘listen’—you can sing it too, and join in the swelling chorus of youth that says for all the world to hear, "Never Again the A-Book!"

Original text and arrangement by Koichi Kikuchi

Renting a pair of monogrammed phosphorescent-you guessed in or book mart) called

A Bantam Book was done on the college campuses. In the direction of modern writing using

For this column we were able to dig up what we think is a rather interesting article, which we are reprinting in its entirety, from Freestyle, the Newspaper of the International Preparatory Committee for the World Festival of Youth from London, England, which was published last summer in Warsaw. The piece is entitled "Never Again the A-Book!"

"August 6th! Anniversary of that fateful day in 1945 when a stunned world learned of the first atomic explosion. During the Festival it will be marked by a meeting with the young people of Japan. Mass choirs will sing in different languages under the direction of the leader of the "Singing Voices of Japan," the powerful movement whose songs are on the lips of millions of Japanese, young and old alike.

One of the songs you will hear is "Never Again the A-Book," the most popular in Japan today. Why?—because it sings of the greatest single dishonor of the Japanese people and their will to achieve it. It recalls the tragedies of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, filling all with the realization that such a thing can happen.

But you don’t need to ‘listen’—you can sing it too, and join in the swelling chorus of youth that says for all the world to hear, "Never Again the A-Book!"

Original text and arrangement by Koichi Kikuchi

Renting a pair of monogrammed phosphorescent-you guessed in or book mart) called

A Bantam Book was done on the college campuses. In the direction of modern writing using

For this column we were able to dig up what we think is a rather interesting article, which we are reprinting in its entirety, from Freestyle, the Newspaper of the International Preparatory Committee for the World Festival of Youth from London, England, which was published last summer in Warsaw. The piece is entitled "Never Again the A-Book!"

"August 6th! Anniversary of that fateful day in 1945 when a stunned world learned of the first atomic explosion. During the Festival it will be marked by a meeting with the young people of Japan. Mass choirs will sing in different languages under the direction of the leader of the "Singing Voices of Japan," the powerful movement whose songs are on the lips of millions of Japanese, young and old alike.

One of the songs you will hear is "Never Again the A-Book," the most popular in Japan today. Why?—because it sings of the greatest single dishonor of the Japanese people and their will to achieve it. It recalls the tragedies of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, filling all with the realization that such a thing can happen.

But you don’t need to ‘listen’—you can sing it too, and join in the swelling chorus of youth that says for all the world to hear, "Never Again the A-Book!"

Original text and arrangement by Koichi Kikuchi

Renting a pair of monogrammed phosphorescent-you guessed in or book mart) called
EDWARDS NEW COACH SAYS SOCCER HOPS HIGH

Twelve daily practice sessions and rough weather have marked the start of pre-season workouts as the soccer squad begins its first official practice of the season on October 1, Dan Wilson, the team's president, deplored the loss of six regulars, but he expressed confidence in his successor. This may mean the difference in the team's performance this year.

The opening day, which ended without a goal, may be delayed until the Lords travel to Earlham, and after having five more hours of practice, will play a soccer game with the Hinsdale School. The following Saturday, October 15, the Lords face Oberlin here.

According to Wilson, the starting lineup for the opener is composed of seniors Ray Brown, Fortunat Gove, Bill Swing, John Wilkin, and Ralph Kennedy, as they were all backfield for soccer last season. The returning one at the same position is George Cummings, a member of the class of 1954. Also included in the backfield are men on the baseball team: Bob Fullwood and Bob Rush, along with former soccer player George Towne, a candidate for senior backfield. The other coordinator, John Wilkin, will play at either center forward or center back. Scott Brown, who played on the varsity last season, is a new addition to the squad. He was paid to personality and character as exactly right for the team. Three new arrivals to the squad, Bill Swing, Bill Mathews, and John Wilkin, will play in the backfield for the first time.

If the weather permits, everyone will be out on the field to try to do the best they can. There is no way to pay for their books and whether they will be able to wear their uniforms will be determined by the weather. Kenyon will feel its graduation losses next season, and the team may not be as strong as last year.

In baseball, Coach Skip Falkenstein is in charge of the baseball and soccer programs. He is a member of the American Philosophical Society and has written several books in the field.

The Drama Club has announced that the plays selected for this fall are "The Sea Gull," and "The Visit." The latter will be presented at the Kenyon College in the fall. The club is composed of students who have been successful in previous productions. The new director of the club, Dr. Thomas M. Prescott, brings with him a wealth of experience in the field and is expected to bring new life to the club.